TERRAPLANE—the car for speed —and speedy comfort

"We're buying a Terraplane this year."

No need for us to dwell upon the various incomparable advantages offered by the Terraplane. You probably KNOW, as do most motorists, that it is THE car without rival, of 1935. Speed, power, luxury of line, safety, comfort, acceleration, and ruggedness—the Terraplane has them all.

Yet, the Terraplane costs less in Dublin than in London. But we DO want to stress the fact that you can own one without having to wait. Remember that! We offer immediate delivery from stock.

BROODIES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Broody hens are one of the pests of this season, and often a source of much loss. To avoid this loss they should be treated so that they will return to lay as quickly as possible. Immediately they are noticed "clocking" they should be removed to a broody coop" and given a little Epsom salts through the food. Give a liberal allowance of food and plenty of fresh water and greens, and in a few days they should be quite normal, and can be restored to their place in the flock. Occasionally, however, it may be advisable to use broodiness as a means to hasten the moult. Sometimes there is much loss with good breeding stock which moults so late that hatching eggs are not obtainable until late in the season.

OUTDOOR OPERATIONS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Complete final potting of chrysanthemums as soon as possible, and shift late struck cuttings intended for blooming in six-inch pots into their flowering pots without delay. Constant supervision of the plants is now necessary, in view of the depredations caused by insect pests if not immediately detected and controlled. Zonal pelargoniums for autumn and winter flowering should be in six-inch pots, plunged to their rims in coal ashes, in any position out of doors. Keep all flower buds removed and pinch the points of over-luxuriant shoots to make them break.

TO-DAY'S MOTOR NEWS

INTERNATIONAL CALENDAR

REVISED COST OF INSCRIPTION

STATUS OF DOUBTFUL VALUE

FROM OUR MOTORING CORRESPONDENT.

IT is necessary that applications to have events inscribed on the International Sporting Calendar of the Association Internationale des Automobile-Clubs Reconnus should be made early in the autumn. If any of the Free State clubs promoting car races intend to have their events made international next year they should consider the matter very soon.

The only international race in Ireland this year is the County Down Trophy, though it was a surprise to many that international status was not sought for at least one Irish Free State meeting.

The cost of inscription on the calendar, provided the event actually is held, is 500 francs—approximately £7 at the present rate of exchange. When application is made for an international date 2,000 francs must be forwarded. If the event is held 1,500 francs will be refunded by the A.I. If the cancellation of the event is announced two months before it is due to be held 1,000 francs will be refunded, and if the event is cancelled at less notice than two months the entire 2,000 francs deposit will be forfeited.

Theoretically an event gains in status by being on the international calendar, and its promoters are entitled to accept foreign entries. Whether this status is worth £7 is a question clubs must decide for themselves. It is interesting, by the way, that this year's Tourist Trophy race is not on the international calendar, and its importance seems just as great as ever.

It is extremely unlikely that foreign entries ever will be offered for an Irish race, while English entries always can be accepted as a result of the agreement to give each other's nationals the same standing as natives, which was made by the Irish Motor Racing Club, the Ulster Automobile Club, the Royal Irish Automobile Club, and the Royal Automobile Club a few years ago.

Another factor which induces Free State clubs not to seek international status is the trouble about securing suitable international dates, clubs with events already on the calendar having the right to a sort of "protection" for their fixtures.

SIX DAYS' TRIAL

The Ulster Centre of the Motor Cycle Union of Ireland have nominated the following riders as their recommended representatives upon Ireland's teams in the International Six Days' Trial:—T. Stewart, C. W. Duffin, and J. G. Sinclair.

Sinclair has not previously ridden in a six days' trial, but Duffin and Stewart have represented Ireland on a number of occasions. This year's trial is to be held in Bavaria in the second week of September.

The Ulster Centre have recommended that two Irish teams be entered for the Vase competition.

F. W. DIXON'S COMPLAINT

LETTER FROM RACING COMMITTEE

The Racing Committee of the Brooklands Automobile Racing Club have written to Mr. F. W. Dixon, following upon the stewards' action at the Whit Monday meeting, stating:—

"Recent decisions by the stewards at the track with regard to your driving do not reflect at all upon your sportsmanship, but merely upon your failure on certain occasions to observe the local and general rules of racing.

"The medical examination of which you complain was carried out in accordance with the rules set up to safeguard the public and your fellow-competitors. In this instance it was only insisted upon because you had recently been the victim of a serious aeroplane accident.

"The committee regret your inability to observe the chequered flag at the conclusion of the mountain race last April, but it must remind you that a chequered flag waved from the side of the track or road is the normal method of signalling the end of a race, and is universally used.

"As regards the green flag, a recognised British racing signal, no blame can attach to the B.A.R.C. if you do not understand its meaning, as you are supposed to do.

"In respect of your suggestion that you should look behind, it is the duty of every driver to keep a look-out for cars wishing to overtake in any race on road or track, and in this race you undertook to keep a special look-out in view of the fact that you were permitted to cross the black line at the fork."

MARNE GRAND PRIX

Three English drivers—Earl Howe, the Hon. Brian Lewis, and C. E. C. Martin—are to compete against leading European drivers in the Marne Grand Prix on the Rheims Circuit on Sunday.

RECORDS EFFORT

Mr. John Cobb, the well-known racing motorist, arrived at New York on board the Berengaria on Tuesday. He left for Salt Lake City, and hopes to make an attempt on the 24 hours' record in about a week's time. His co-drivers are C. J. P. Dodson, winner of last year's T.T. Race, and "Tim" Rose-Richards. Their car is a 500 h.p. Napier-Railton.

BELGIAN GRAND PRIX

The Belgian Grand Prix for formula type Grand Prix cars will be held on Sunday week over a 310 miles' course at Spa-Francorchamps. The entry includes two Bugattis (Benoist and Wimille), two Alfa-Romeos (Chiron and Nuvolari), two Auto Unions (Varzi and Stuck), two Mercedes-Benz (Caracciola and Fagioli), and two Maseratis (Etancelin and Zehender).

It was announced in the London Gazette last night that the Duke of Gloucester has been promoted to the rank of major in the 10th Royal Hussars.

PRICES FIXED FOR UNTENANTED LAND

COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER APPEALS

Mr. Justice Wiley presided yesterday at a sitting of the Land Appeals Court, 23 Upper Merrion street, Dublin. With him were Commissioners Browne and Mansfield.

The Court heard a number of appeals from compulsory purchase orders of the Land Commission in regard to prices fixed for untenanted land.

Most of the cases were referred to assessors.

Miss Ellen Heaslip appealed against an offer of £400 for 41 acres 1 rood 27 perches of fee simple land at Aghakilmore Lower, County Cavan.

Mr. G. O'Keane (instructed by Mr. W. O. Armstrong) submitted that the land was valued for probate purposes at £500 in 1933. Counsel said that they were prepared to produce probate.

The Court allowed £500 purchase money and £30 costs.

Leopold Charles appealed against the price of £5,000 fixed in respect of 69 acres 2 roods 38 perches at Collierstown, 155 acres 30 roods 21 perches at Milton, and 95 acres and 20 perches at Fowlerstown, in County Meath.

The Court upheld the appeal, and fixed the price at £5,500 and allowed £40 costs.

The Court adjourned.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Dublin Presbytery held its July meeting on Tuesday evening. The Rev. J. C. Breakey reported that he held a meeting of the congregation of Tullamore and Clara, and that steps were being taken to appoint a successor to the Rev. John Humphreys, D.D., resigned.

The following were appointed a committee to consider and report as to the improvement of the Evening Service on the Lord's Day:—The Revs. R. K. Lyle, M.A.; R. Crossett, B.A.; J. S. Rutherford, B.A.; Dr. R. K. Hanna and J. C. Breakey, B.A., with Messrs. Macmillan, Kyle, Wright, Gall, Williams and Stewart, elders.

The Rev. T. Bole, B.A., reported that the Sabbath School Committee had recommended that the annual examination in 1936 and following years should be held on the last Friday of November. A preference for December having been expressed it was decided to refer back to the Committee the decision as to the exact date.

The Moderator, the Rev. James Henderson, was granted leave of absence for four months to enable him to join the British Medical Association tour to the meeting in Melbourne in September next.

MOVEMENTS OF THE ACCUSED MEN

EVIDENCE IN MORE O'FERRALL MURDER TRIAL

SHARP EXCHANGES BETWEEN COUNSEL

EVIDENCE was given yesterday regarding the movements of some of the men accused of the murder of Richard More O'Ferrall on the night of the shooting, 9th February last.

Several sharp exchanges between counsel followed questions in regard to the admissibility of statements.

DETECTIVE-OFFICER RECALLED

The prisoners in the dock at the Central Criminal Court are: John Reynolds and James Joseph Reynolds (a farmer's sons); John Shanley (garage proprietor), all of Dromod, Co. Leitrim, and William Mulligan (carpenter), Longford town.

Counsel in the case are: For the Attorney-General, Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C. and Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor); for the prisoners, Shanley and John Reynolds, Mr. A. Lynn; and for the prisoners, Mulligan and James Reynolds, Mr. Art O'Connor (both defending counsel, instructed by Mr. George P. Hogan).

Yesterday, Detective-Officer John Preston, Dromod, was recalled to the witness box.

Replying to Mr. Lynn, he said that some days after the shooting he asked accused man, Shanley, to account for his movements on that night. Shanley said that on the 9th of February he left Dromod at about 10 p.m. and got to Carrick-on-Shannon at about ten to, or ten minutes past, 10 o'clock.

Mr. Lynn—Why didn't you tell the Court yesterday about Shanley's account of his movements on the 9th February—I can't say, sir.

It is only a chance that you have refrained from mentioning this circumstance either in the District Court or this Court yesterday?—It would be, I suppose.

No superior officer told you to keep it out?—No.

If Shanley was telling the truth, could he have been at Lisard at 9.15 p.m.?—I could not say.

You know nothing about the speed of cars?—No.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that in fairness to the witness he must ask the question—Did you answer all the questions put to you in your direct examination yesterday?—Yes, my lord.

Did you think it proper or right to volunteer evidence of your own?—No, my lord

IN A CAR

Guard Thomas A. Lindsay (Dromod) said that when he was standing with a friend at the local post office on the night of the shooting John Shanley, the accused man, passed in an Armstrong-Siddeley car.

"I observed," said the witness, "that he had no tail-light. The time was then five minutes after 11 o'clock. The car was coming from the direction of Carrick-on-Shannon and was going towards Shanley's garage."

Mr. Maguire—Who was driving the car?—John Shanley, the accused.

Was there anybody else in the car?—I could not see anybody.

How did you fix the time?—I looked at my watch.

The witness, proceeding, said that at about 10.50 p.m. he saw three men standing outside Faughlen's shop in Dromod. One had a bicycle with an unlit lamp.

Mr. Maguire—Did you recognise that man?—Yes. I did not know him at the time, but I recognised him since as one of the accused men.

What time was that?—Fifteen minutes before the car passed.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lynn, the witness said that his watch might be six or seven minutes slow. He had not looked at his watch on any previous occasion that night. He returned to the barracks at 11.10 p.m.

Counsel produced the record book of the Dromod Station, and the witness agreed that the time recorded there as the time of his return to the barracks was 10.15 p.m.

The Judge—Does that represent you as returning finally to the Guard station at 10.15 p.m. that night?—Yes, my lord.

The witness agreed with Mr. Lynn that another entry in the book showed that the roll-call was taken at the station at 11 p.m. and the witness was shown to be present. The times on the book were correct if the barrack orderly's watch was correct.

He denied that he ever had had a conversation with Shanley, in which he said that he had made a mistake and might get into trouble with his officers, and in which Shanley said that he would back up the witness, in answer to a request from the witness, and say that he returned to the Dromod garage later than he actually did.

The witness explained to the judge that the record in the station-book was: "At 10.15 p.m. Guard Lindsay returned, regular, off recreation."

Mr. Lynn—That meant that you were in proper condition every way, perfectly sober and in accordance with the time-table?—Yes.

Do you now learn for the first time that Shanley told Superintendent O'Boyle that he returned to Dromod after 11 p.m. that night?—Yes; I did not know what time he told the Superintendent.

SAW ACCUSED MAN

Thomas J. Diffley (Dromod) said that he was with Guard Lindsay and another man when, at 10.45 p.m. on the night of the 9th February, they saw J. J. Reynolds with a bicycle and with two other men outside Faughlen's shop.

Mr. Haugh, examining—Had you seen J. J. Reynolds previously that night?—Yes; I saw him when I was coming up the road with Guard Lindsay at about 9.30 p.m. He was accompanied by George McGarry, a motor mechanic, and I had a conversation with McGarry. This is not in my deposition, because I had forgotten this at the time of the deposition and giving the statement to the Guards

Upon the judge's suggestion, the jury retired.

When the jury was recalled, Mr. Haugh proceeded to cross-examine Diffley.

You appreciated, Mr. Diffley, that your evidence at the District Court was important, and that the men you were referring to, and the others, were engaged in the preliminaries of a very serious trial?—Yes; the other thing escaped my notice at the time.

The witness agreed that before making the deposition he had previously made two statements to the police. He knew that J. J. Reynolds had been arrested, but he was not aware, from the newspapers, of the time of day at which the shooting occurred.

Mr. Haugh—I want to ask you, Mr. Diffley, what occurred after you had made the first and second statement, and given sworn evidence in the District Court, that reminded you of this vital meeting at 9.30 between yourself, J. J. Reynolds, and McGarry?

The witness said that he had been in Dublin on an excursion, and in the train, on the way back, he had time to think over the incidents of the 9th February. Then young D'Arcy, who worked in the witness's garage, said that Guard Lindsay had not told the truth at the court. The witness then remembered his conversation with McGarry at about 9.30 p.m., and that J. J. Reynolds was in his company then.

"As soon as I made myself sure of it, I went to the Civic Guard station on the Friday after the District Court," said the witness, "and told Sergeant Kelly and Sergeant Tuttle that I wanted to add to my statement. They refused to accept my statement, and told me that they were finished with the matter, and made remarks suggesting that I had made a mistake."

Mr. Haugh asked the witness why, before visiting the police, he had not gone to McGarry and verified the facts of the 9.30 meeting.

"McGarry said to me: 'I am a member of the I.R.A., and I do not believe in making statements to the Civic Guards,'" said the witness, "and he commented about incomplete statements. McGarry has always refused to converse with me about that particular night."

The witness further said that Guard Lindsay was in a position to see J. J. Reynolds at the time of the meeting at 9.30 p.m. The witness had talked with McGarry, while the Guard went on, and Reynolds walked on also, in a different direction. The Guard was wrong in stating that there was nobody with McGarry at that time.

Mr. O'Connor, opening his examination, said:—There seems to be something mysterious about this day's work.

The witness, in reply to counsel, said that on the 9th of February he was not on friendly terms with James J. Reynolds, and was not now on friendly terms with him.

VISIT TO GARAGE

Sergeant E. Tuttle, Carrick-on-Shannon, gave evidence that on the 18th February he visited the garage run by Shanley for another reason. He found there two cars, both Armstrong-Siddeleys—I H 1924 and I N 1046. The first was a blackish saloon car. On it were two Dunlop tyres, a Michelin and an Englebert.

Mr. Maguire—Did you notice anything about the tyres?—The left rear-wheel was cleaner than the others. That was a Dunlop tyre. There was no spare wheel.

Did you notice anything about the number-plates?—The front number-plate was thinner than the back plate, and there were twelve holes bored through the plate.

The sergeant said that after the District Justice had accepted informations, and the accused men had been returned for trial, Diffley came to Dromod barracks, where the witness was assisting Sergeant Kelly, and stated that he wanted to amend his deposition. Without instructions, however, a statement could not be taken from him.

In the course of cross-examination the Judge refused to call for the production of a statement made by Patrick Coogan (a defence witness) to the police, and which Mr. Lynn sought.

"Go on, Mr. Lynn," directed the Judge. "You are doing exceedingly well."

Mr. Lynn—I cannot agree with your lordship.

The Judge made a similar ruling in regard to Edward McKenna's statement to Sergeant Tuttle. The sergeant said that he had taken so many statements that he could not remember this one in detail.

Mr. Lynn—Do you not remember questioning McKenna, who said he had seen Shanley on the night of the 9th of February?—I do not.

Then I take it you do not remember telling him that that was impossible?—No.

The witness said that Mrs. Carty and Miss Carty corroborated Shanley's statement that he had been in their publichouse in Carrick-on-Shannon on the night of the shooting. Mrs. Carty said that he came there half an hour after closing time, which was at 9 p.m., and Miss Carty said that she saw him at about 10 p.m., when he was going out.

Detective Officer D. Hayden corroborated Sergeant Tuttle's evidence regarding the cars in Shanley's garage. On I H 1924 he found the near side rear tyre free from the mud splashes of the other tyres. Both number plates were perforated with small holes.

The Judge—What would that suggest to you?—That there had been other figures fitted on the plates at some time, my lord.

Sergeant A. Kelly (Dromod) said that he took a voluntary signed statement from the accused man, Shanley.

Upon Mr. Lynn objecting,

The Judge ruled that he would not hear the statement.

COUNSEL'S PROTEST

A few minutes later Mr. Maguire said—"I must protest against these observations of Mr. Lynn, which are calculated to create an impression that any obstacle of any kind is being placed in the way of the defence. I must protest in the strongest terms against it. Every facility has been given."

Mr. Lynn—Then give us this statement.

Mr. Maguire—I beg your pardon. Don't interrupt. Your remarks are entirely unjustified and without foundation, and are an unfair and improper attack upon counsel conducting this case and doing an unpleasant duty.

I ask your lordship to protect me, and if I am not protected I shall take steps to protect myself.

"I will not be threatened in this case by Mr. Lynn. He is uttering threats, my lord, to the effect that if the statements he wants are not admitted he will pursue a policy of obstruction—obstruction of legal evidence. If he pursues that policy it is a matter for your lordship to see that the time of your lordship and the jury is not wasted."

Mr. Lynn—I protest against the conduct of the prosecution, which I do not like to characterise with a proper epithet. Mr. Maguire says, one moment, that I am facilitated, and as soon as I ask for a statement which is going to be damaging to the prosecution that statement is objected to, and your lordship rules that the statement is not permitted.

The Judge—You cannot harp back like that.

Mr. Lynn—I am only harping back to the vehemence with which Mr. Maguire says he is helping me, and whenever a State witness comes to a dangerous statement he interrupted.

Mr. Maguire—That is untrue.

The Judge—Well, never mind. I think the prosecution is being conducted perfectly fairly, and every facility that is reasonable is being given. Proceed with your examination, Mr. Maguire.

A moment later Mr. Lynn jumped up to object to the form of a question by the State prosecutor, who exclaimed: "This is utterly intolerable."

Sergeant Kelly, continuing his evidence, said that he cycled from the Reynolds's house to Dromod Barracks, two and a half miles, in thirteen minutes by day, and twelve minutes by night. The attitude of James J. Reynolds had been one of non-recognition and refusal to answer questions since his detention.

"The first I knew of the shooting at Lisard was when I read it in the paper on Sunday."

Shanley said also that he had not attended the I.R.A. meeting in Edgeworthstown because he had not received any instructions to do so. He did attend the meeting at Mohill as a member of the I.R.A. He cycled there with forty or fifty members of the pre-truce I.R.A. from Dromod.

When the statement was concluded Mr. Maguire remarked: This is a statement that Mr. Lynn objected to my producing, and now he had read it himself.

Mr. Lynn cross-examined the witness about a statement that he had taken from William Clabby, a witness for the defence. The sergeant denied that he had threatened to break Clabby's mouth or had threatened and abused him. He said that a second statement that Clabby had made was different to the first, and that he had received from Clabby's solicitors a letter complaining of his "extraordinary" conduct at the interrogation and demanding an apology.

A STATEMENT

Mr. Lynn read a statement which the accused man Shanley had made to the witness.

In this Shanley said that he had left his home at Dromod at about 9 p.m., and went alone in the car IH. 1924 to Carrick-on-Shannon. He could not say if anyone saw him leaving. It was a dry night, and it took him twenty to thirty minutes to reach Carrick, where he went into the Cartys' house. He did not drink, as he had been "pledged" seven months' before. He went there to see Miss Mollie Carty. When he first went in he did not see her, but she came in ten or fifteen minutes afterwards. He conversed with her and with Mrs. Carty, and left the house at 10.30 p.m., arriving back at Dromod some minutes before 11 p.m. At that time he saw Guard Lindsay and Diffley at the post office.

"I was never in Lisard," said the statement, "and I don't know where it is. I don't know where the More O'Ferralls live. I have made inquiries since the shooting took place about the location of the O'Ferrall's place, and I can say I have never been nearer to it than Edgeworthstown."

The witness added that he did not answer the letter, no proceedings were taken, and nothing further happened in connection with this solicitor's letter.

Remarks by Mr. Lynn now brought a renewal of Mr. Maguire's protests. "I wish Mr. Lynn would conduct his defence without introducing personalities. This is not a case in which personalities should be introduced," he said.

Sergeant Kelly, still answering Mr. Lynn, agreed that he had interrogated Shanley in the middle of the night, when he took him from bed at the time of the Ballinamore bank robbery. The criminals in that instance had been brought to justice after a long time.

Mr. Lynn—Wasn't it after information had been conveyed to you by the I.R.A. in that area? Wasn't it the Blue Shirts of that area who committed a robbery you charged Republicans with?

The Witness—I am only Sergeant at Dromod. I am not in charge of the whole area.

Before the Court adjourned, the Judge told the jury that the case would not conclude this week, and added: "It is very seldom we have such a serious and lengthy case as this."

The Court adjourned until 11 a.m. to-day.

EXTENSION OF TIME

APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL

SEQUEL TO DUBLIN FRAUD CHARGES

BEFORE the Chief Justice, in the Court of Criminal Appeal, yesterday, William J. Lyons, who attended in custody, applied personally for an extension of time for the making of an application for leave to appeal against his conviction in the Central Criminal Court on charges of conspiracy to defraud by inducing certain people to apply for or pay for shares in Associated Engineering Industries, causing money to be paid by false pretences, and obtaining money by false pretences, and against a sentence of fifteen months' imprisonment imposed on him on 17th May last by Judge Davitt in respect of the charges.

The applicant said that he was not aware that there was a limit of four days for making the application. He thought it was necessary that he should write to England, and as soon as he came to a decision he took steps.

The Chief Justice said that the applicant's written statement of his grounds of appeal was not such as would justify him in granting the application. Not merely must the applicant give a good explanation of the loss of time, but he must show that he had good grounds of appeal.

The applicant, in reply to the Chief Justice, said that he was represented by solicitor and counsel at the trial. One of the things that he objected to was the opening speech of State counsel, in which, he said, there were very grave inaccuracies never substantiated in evidence.

Chief Justice—Your counsel must have called attention to that at the time.

The applicant said that they, naturally, thought that evidence would be produced in support of the statements. Proceeding, he quoted statements alleged to have been made by counsel for the prosecution, and which, he stated, were not correct.

CO-DEFENDANT'S APPEAL

The Chief Justice said that the Court could not hear the case over again at that stage. He asked why did not the applicant explain these matters when giving evidence.

The applicant said that one of his co-defendants was appealing, and he understood another wished to appeal. It was a terrible thing to allow wrong dates and other things to go to the jury about him.

The Chief Justice said that the applicant was offered an appeal on the question of law and did not accept it.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., who (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Attorney-General, said that he was instructed to oppose the application because there was no merit on the question of time. The judge at the trial granted a certificate of leave to appeal, and Lyons was granted immediate permission to write a letter, as he requested. The truth was that probably Lyons had no intention of appealing until a co-defendant, McDonnell, decided to appeal. McDonnell had appealed in time. Lyons was a solicitor's clerk and knew the practice and procedure.

Lyons—That is not much use to you in Mountjoy.

The Chief Justice, refusing the application, said that there was not a tenable ground in the applicant's statement of alleged grounds of appeal, and, in addition, he had let the time go from 17th May to well over a month, and the explanation offered was really no explanation, particularly having regard to the fact that another of the defendants had complied with all the formalities within the time.

LAND TRUST COTTAGES

JUDGMENT IN THE CALLAN CASE

EX-SERVICE MAN'S ACTION DISMISSED

MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH delivered his reserved judgment in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, dismissing the action that was brought by Hugh Callan, a British ex-Service man, residing at Phibsborough road, Dublin, against the Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust, and Joseph McCann, who resides at Abbeyfield, Killester.

The plaintiff had been a tenant of a cottage which was one of those provided by the Local Government Board and transferred to the Land Trust. The Land Trust obtained an ejectment decree against him and put the defendant Joseph McCann in possession. The plaintiff claimed a declaration that he was entitled to possession of the cottage for life without payment of rent, he relying on the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Leggett and others against the Land Trust. He also claimed a refund of rent and an order directing the defendant Joseph McCann to give up possession of the cottage to him.

Mr. Justice Meredith ordered the plaintiff to pay the costs of the defendant Joseph McCann.

In the course of his judgment, Mr. Justice Meredith said that this cottage was one of those provided by the Local Government Board and let to the plaintiff at a weekly rent of 16s., subsequently reduced to 12s. 6d. The cottage was afterwards transferred to the Trust, subject to that tenancy. The agreement was, on the 10th September, 1924, endorsed: "We, the Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust, hereby ratify this agreement." In 1927 the Trust obtained an ejectment decree and then gave the defendant McCann possession, he being a duly qualified ex-Service man.

EFFECT OF RATIFICATION

Mr. Justice Meredith held that the effect of this ratification was to put the plaintiff in the position of a qualified ex-Service man selected by the Trust for the cottage. The Trust argued that the plaintiff was accepted only as a tenant, and that he was not selected as a beneficiary, to be entitled, perhaps as equitable tenant for life. But the statute imposed no duty on the Trust in respect of the mode of selection, and the Trust might have adopted the simple expedient of assigning cottages in the order of application or of drawing lots.

The fact that the Trust, in providing a qualified ex-Service man with accommodation in a particular cottage, were influenced by the erroneous impression that they could require him to sign a tenancy agreement, and that they gave him a cottage only because he signed a tenancy agreement or because he was bound by an existing agreement with the Local Government Board, was a matter entirely extraneous to the duties of the Trust and altogether immaterial. But the plaintiff could have no claim for having been put out of possession, or to be put back, because his selection for the cottage made him no more than a mere tenant at will, free of rent. The view that he was only a tenant at will seemed, apart from other reasons, most consonant with the provisions of the section.

LOCAL ACTS

Before the modern development of local government there was a number of local Acts under which commissioners or trustees were incorporated and given certain powers and duties to be exercised for the benefit of the various sections of the community. When the Irish Free State was about to be set up, and this work of providing accommodation for the ex-Service men could not, appropriately, be left under the control of a Department of the Irish Free State Government, the Legislature reverted to the original plan.

Such he took to be the meaning of the Supreme Court decision in Leggett's case, holding that the Trust were trustees and had to execute a trust.

Sub-section 7 of Section 3 seemed to recognise that—considering that the Trust was to be able to hold an unlimited quantity of land in mortain, a large quantity of land and cottages, which, as matters stood, would not eventually be held in trust for the British Treasury, were to be handed over to the Trust, and that Section 3 did not contain the usual forfeiture clause on failure, within a specified time, to sell the lands that ceased to be required for the purpose authorised—a good deal was being expected from the Irish Free State if it was to pass the requisite legislation. The Trust had never given any explanation why the name "Trust" was applied; and if they were not trustees, such as the old-time Commissioners used to be, then the only explanation that suggested itself was that the name was intended as mere camouflage to disguise the nature of the transaction and to induce the Free State Government to be obliging.

TENANTS AT WILL

Looking at the matter in this way, and treating the Trust as having been, in effect, and held to be in the same position as the old-time Commissioners, he could not think that the persons intended to be benefitted by the provision of accommodation were intended to be equitable tenants for life, or, in fact, anything more than tenants at will.

The Trust said that they were now in an impossible position, as they could not charge rent to meet the necessary expenses of upkeep, and that everything was at a standstill. Certainly that was most regrettable, but what he understood the Trust claimed in Leggett's case was a right to charge commercial rents for the purpose of building up a reserve with which they could extend their scheme indefinitely. There were prescribed minimum rents, but no maximum limit. And with the rents actually being charged a reserve was in process of being accumulated. Obviously, if the Trust could charge whatever rents they pleased, the whole object of the legislature would be defeated. A Treasury regulation prescribing maximum rents, permitted for the mere purpose of covering necessary upkeep and management expenses, did not, as far as he understood, come under consideration.

The plaintiff's action was accordingly dismissed, and the plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs of the defendant, Joseph McCann.

Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C., Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. John Farrell (instructed by Mr. Joseph H. Dixon) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. Ignatius J. Kelly (instructed by Mr. P. Coll) for the Land Trust; and Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Art O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. Reddin and Reddin) for the defendant, Joseph McCann.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

APPLICATION FOR EJECTMENT ORDER

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Richard D. Bolton applied for an order of ejectment against his tenant, James O'Donnell, in respect of a house at Grove Park, Rathmines, for arrears of rent.

The Judge decided that the fact that a former tenant had surrendered his tenancy to the landlord, who promptly transferred it to the new tenant, even if a short period of vacancy elapsed, did not constitute possession on the part of the landlord, thereby entitling him to eject the new tenant.

The summons was dismissed, and the defendant was allowed his costs.

Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Mr. D. Morris) appeared for the landlord; and Mr. Corbett (instructed by Messrs. Bradley and Sons) appeared for the tenant.

DUBLIN STREET ACCIDENT

TWO MOTOR DRIVERS CHARGED

GARAGE ATTENDANT'S EVIDENCE

IN the Dublin District Court, before Mr. Hannan, Capt. Patrick Hughes, proprietor of Midland Hotel, Upper Dominick street, Dublin, and James Maguire, Bray, County Wicklow, were yesterday charged with causing the deaths of Leo Corr, Patrick O'Toole and William Hoey at Mount Street Bridge, Dublin, on the night of the 1st instant.

Mr. T. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Bradley and Sons) for Maguire; Mr. T. A. O'Reilly, solicitor, for Captain Hughes; Mr. C. Daly (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) represented the next-of-kin of Leo Corr; and Mr. F. W. Gilligan appeared for the next-of-kin of Patrick O'Toole.

Guard 74F produced a map he had made of the scene of the occurrence.

Station Sergeant Cotter (Lad Lane Barrack) deposed to a statement made by Captain Hughes subsequent to the occurrence, which was to the effect that he was motoring a party around Dublin, and at Mount Street Bridge his car came into collision with a motor lorry. As a result his car was "spun round like a top." At the time of the impact his car was practically at a standstill, as it had become "sluggish."

The witness proceeded to depose to a statement made by Maguire, who expressed the opinion that the motor car collided with the lorry that he was driving and sent it into the railings bordering the canal.

The witness stated that he visited the scene of the occurrence, and saw a tractor and trailer there, and was informed that the motor car which had been involved had just been taken away. He saw an impression on the railings as if a motor car had been stopped suddenly. The mark was near the inner rail on the outgoing tram line, 31 feet from the kerb, at Clanwilliam place.

SWERVED INTO RAILING

Patrick Butler gave evidence that he was employed as night attendant at Huet's motor works, Clanwilliam place. Shortly after 9 o'clock on 1st July he was going through the showrooms of the works. He looked out of the window and saw a tractor and trailer about 20 or 30 yards from the junction of Mount street and Clanwilliam place. It was on its proper side of the road, and he considered that it was going fast for a tractor and trailer, but he would not like to estimate its speed.

He also saw a private motor car at Clanwilliam place, about three to four yards from Mount street junction. It was well on the canal side, and was travelling slowly. He next heard a crash, but did not see the actual collision.

He rushed to the side window facing Mount street and saw the tractor and trailer swerving towards the south side of the bridge, a few yards east of Warrington place. It continued across the bridge on the right side towards Percy place, and then swerved around Percy place. He did not see anybody fall. After the tractor and trailer had turned into Percy place it seemed to make a half turn and become embedded in the railings of the canal.

The driver seemed to fall out, or throw himself out, of the cab of the trailer. He did not see anybody being knocked down. He 'phoned for the ambulance, and saw it arrive at Mount street Bridge. He did not notice any other traffic at the time of the occurrence.

The further hearing was adjourned until 11 o'clock on Tuesday next, the accused men being allowed out on continuing bail.

DEATH SENTENCE APPEAL

FREE TRANSCRIPT OF EVIDENCE

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE.)

In the Court of Criminal Appeal, Mr. P. F. O'Reilly, solicitor, applied on behalf of Commandant Leo O'Brien, for a free transcript of the shorthand notes of the evidence given in the Central Criminal Court at the trial of Commandant O'Brien, on the charge of the murder of his brother-in-law, John A. Stokes, for the purpose of an application for leave to appeal against his conviction and sentence.

Mr. O'Reilly said that the accused man was found guilty of murder, and, on the last day of his trial, 27th June, he was sentenced by Mr. Justice Johnston to be hanged. The application for a free transcript was necessary because the appellant had no means whatever. Before the occurrence out of which the trial arose he was a Commandant in the National Army, and his salary as such was his only income. Since the occurrence he had been under suspension and had not received any money. Were it not for the generosity of some relatives and friends he would have found it difficult to be represented professionally at the trial. He had no funds in bank or otherwise. He understood that the cost of the transcript would be very considerable.

Mr. M. A. Corrigan, Chief State Solicitor, said that he had received notice of the application only the previous day, but he had reason to believe that the facts as stated by Mr. O'Reilly were correct, and, in the circumstances, he did not offer any objection to the application for a free transcript.

The Chief Justice granted the application.

PROFESSIONAL'S HUT ENTERED

Joseph Murray, Sothern's court, Little Bray, and Michael Berry, St. Cronan's road, Little Bray, pleaded guilty at Bray District Court yesterday to the charges of breaking into the hut of the professional, John Sullivan, at Bray Golf Club on the 27th June and stealing seven dozen golf balls, the property of John Sullivan.

Superintendent O'Reilly stated that eighteen balls had been received, and the remainder were sold to players at Woodbrook Golf Club. He asked that the case be adjourned to enable investigation to be made of charges of alleged receiving.

Mr. Price adjourned the case for a fortnight.

Mr. J. L. Reilly, solicitor, defended.

BODY OF HENRY JOHN RECOVERED

A body which was washed ashore at Perranporth, Cornwall, last night, was identified by Mr. Augustus John, the artist, as that of his son, Henry John, who disappeared twelve days ago. An inquest will be held this afternoon.

Mr. Bennett Dominion Prime Minister, has informed Mr. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, that a general election in Canada will be held as soon as electoral arrangements can be made.

EXAMINATION OF A BANKRUPT

LIQUIDATION OF DRAPERY FIRM

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

Joseph A. McGuire, Mount Alton, Templeogue, Co. Dublin, who had carried on a drapery business at Shelbourne House, Merrion row, Dublin, and who had been adjudicated a bankrupt, attended for examination.

Replying to Mr. C. Casey, who (instructed by Mr. Francis I. Clinch), appeared for Mrs. Mary Smith, creditors' assignee, Mr. McGuire stated that he was married twenty-four or twenty-five years ago and had eleven children, one of whom was working in a drapery firm. He had been living since 1919 at Mount Alton, to which there were twenty acres of land attached. He had been in Shelbourne House from 1905 until 1926. He had paid for Mount Alton. The National Bank had held deeds on a charge on the house as collateral security for Shelbourne House, and, when the latter premises were wound up in 1926, he lost everything he had. His wife purchased Mount Alton from the National Bank in, he believed, June, 1929, and paid £12,000 for it. She got the money from his brother. His wife had a bank account before 1926. His last bank account was in that year.

After Shelbourne House went into liquidation he had been employed by two firms. At present he was not employed. His wife and two sons were running Mount Alton. He believed that he had opened the account with Mrs. Mary Smith for grain, flour and pollard, which were used at Mount Alton. There were at present, he believed, four pigs on the farm. The motor car, which was now out of order, was his wife's property.

"I am down at the moment," concluded the witness, "but not out. I can only hope sooner or later to make some offer. I cannot do it at once. I must submit to bankruptcy at the moment."

Mr. D. Moran, who appeared for Mr. McGuire, handed in a receipt to show that Mount Alton had been purchased from the National Bank by Mrs. McGuire.

He asked Mr. McGuire if Mount Alton was at present mortgaged, and the witness replied: "Up to the hilt."

ACCIDENT AT SUTTON

£600 PAYMENT IN SETTLEMENT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Consents were received and made rules of Court in two actions for damages for personal injuries arising out of motor car accidents.

In the first case, Miss Edith Coyle, "Lynton," Baldoyle road, Sutton, County Dublin, claimed damages from Miss Eileen O'Brien, "Greevagh," Claremont road, Howth, for personal injuries arising out of an accident on the Baldoyle road at 1.30 a.m. on the 19th August, 1934.

The plaintiff was standing beside a stationary motor car, near the Suttonians' football ground, when the defendant's motor car collided with her, inflicting serious injuries. The settlement provided for the payment to the plaintiff of £600.

Messrs. Gilbert and Lambert were the solicitors for the plaintiff, and Mr. P. Nugent (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly) appeared for the defendant.

In an action in which Daniel Buggy, Ballyrider, Stradbally, Leix, was plaintiff, and John Mahon, Aughamaddock, Stradbally, defendant, the plaintiff claimed damages for personal injuries.

The plaintiff, a labourer, was walking along the public road at Ballycluff, near Stradbally, when a motor lorry, the property of the defendant, a farmer, knocked him down and injured him.

Mr. Drennan (instructed by Messrs. Fetherstonhaugh and Carter), for the plaintiff, said that the consent to settlement provided for the payment of £500 by way of damages.

Messrs. Hoey and Denning, solicitors, were for the defendant.

DUBLIN WILL SUIT

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT DISCUSSED

When the case of Mrs. White, of Lough Eske, Donegal, against Major Arnott, Blackrock; Mrs. MacGillicuddy, Youghal; Lady Brooke, of Celbridge, and Lady FitzGerald Arnott, Blackrock, was called, before Mr. Justice Meredith, in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday,

Mr. Jellett, K.C., for the defendants, said that since the previous day terms of settlement had been discussed between the parties. At the moment these terms had not reached their final form, and he asked Mr. Justice Meredith to put the case in the list for next Tuesday morning, when, he said, he hoped to be able to tell the judge exactly what the terms were. At the moment he would say nothing about them.

Mr. Price, K.C., for the plaintiff, agreed with Mr. Jellett in his application, and said that the case could be put in Tuesday's list, only to be mentioned.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that he would put the case first in the list for next Tuesday, to be mentioned. He would not make any comment, except to say that he hoped the parties would come to a settlement.

Mr. Jellett—Personally, I have very little doubt of it.

Mrs. White brought the action to have the trusts of the will of the late Sir John Arnott in relation to a legacy of £60,000 executed under the direction of the Court, she alleging breach of trust against the defendants, an allegation that the defendants deny.

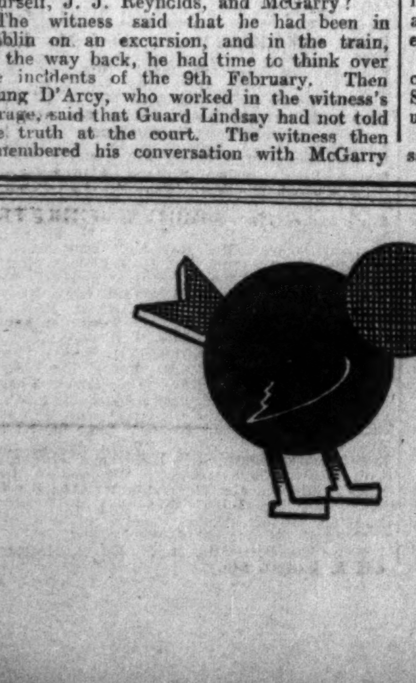
Mr. Price, K.C., Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. Monks (instructed by Messrs. Bennett Thompson and Edwards) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Jellett, K.C., Mr. Michael J. Ryan, K.C., Mr Chadwick, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. O'Connor and Dudley and Messrs. J. L. Keane and Son) for Major Arnott and Mrs. MacGillicuddy; and Mr. Jellett, K.C., Mr. Chadwick, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. O'Connor and Dudley) for Lady Brooke and Lady FitzGerald Arnott.

AUCTION SALES

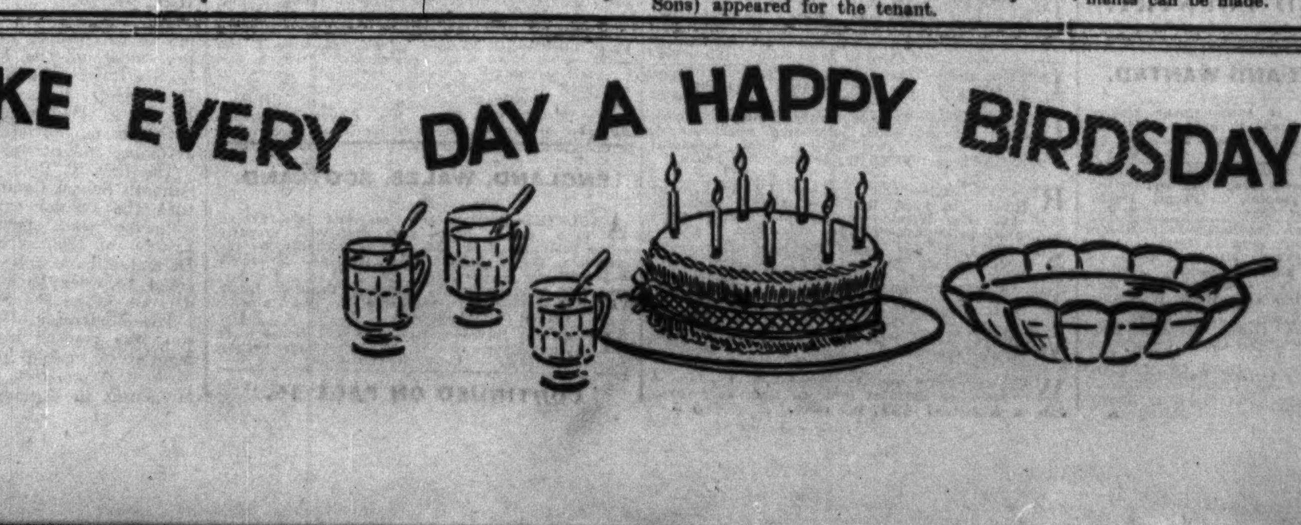
MR. W. J. HERON.

On Tuesday, July 16, Mr. W. J. Heron will offer for auction the County Dublin full seven-day licensed premises, O'Reilly's, Stepaside (on the Dundrum to Scalp road), together with outoffices, cottages, garden and paddock. The auction will take place in the salerooms, 188 Pearse street, at 1.30 o'clock.

The Heidelberg University Corps has suspended for 2 years the most famous and aristocratic of German Student unions, the Saxo-Borussia, to which the Kaiser and other Hohenzollerns belonged before the War. Among the charges is one that certain students in a Heidelberg restaurant asked in loud voices in what manner Chancellor Hitler ate asparagus.



MAKE EVERY DAY A HAPPY BIRDSDAY WITH



BIRD'S CUSTARD

HOLIDAYS : WHERE?

SUGGESTIONS THAT WILL HELP.

HAVE you noticed during the past month that some of the familiar faces have disappeared from around your district for a week or so, and then suddenly reappeared looking sun-burned and with a general air of well-being?

You have noticed these people? Well, has it not reminded you of the fact that it was time you arranged your own holiday? These early holiday-makers have come back to work with a new supply of energy, while you are still wandering around feeling tired and "fed up" with the heat of the city and the sameness of the daily round.

Think of it! They have had a fortnight or so beside the sea, basking in the sunshine, while you have been working away in the office. Surely it is your turn for a holiday now. Why not spend this week-end making the final details for the summer vacation, and have everything fixed up, so that you can enjoy the pleasurable anticipation of that fortnight or more, if you are lucky, of freedom?

"WHERE TO GO"

But, perhaps, you have been in some difficulty about where to go. It certainly is rather a problem these days—we have so many resorts rivalling each other in the attractions they offer to the visitor that the question of "where to go" has reached a point where one is inclined to put off the decision from week to week and then have to rush things at the last minute. And last minute decisions are never really satisfactory. Do you think so?

Are you considering an Irish holiday? If you are it is just as well to get in touch with the Irish Tourist Association, which has its headquarters in Dublin. This organisation knows everything worth knowing about every resort in Ireland, and is only too willing to pass on information to the prospective holiday-maker.

But to help you to get a general idea about some of the best places to spend a holiday here are a few suggestions.

BATHING AND GOLF

Bathing is a form of sport in which virtually everyone indulges these days, and fortunately Ireland has a good long seaboard, and safe bathing is available at every seaside resort.

Around County Dublin, for instance, there are such pleasant places as Howth, Malahide and Skerries on the North side, and Dun Laoghaire on the South, with Bray just over the border of County Wicklow. The appeal of these resorts near the city is principally to people who spend most of the year in the country somewhere far away from Dublin. But it is not only for the sake of the bathing that they are to be recommended. There are plenty of good golf courses around, and they are all situated within easy reach of Dublin by train or omnibus. If you are thinking of coming up to town for the Horse Show next month, you certainly could not do better than stay out in one of these places.

Lucan is another very convenient resort for the city. It is just a few miles inland from Dublin, and the spa there is one of the best in Europe. Mention of spas, of course, reminds one that if you are having a holiday in the South there is another very good spa at Lisdoonvarna.

BRAY AND WICKLOW

Looking at Bray from a geographical point of view, the visitor would think that it should be in County Dublin, since the bulk of Bray Head, rising to 700 feet above sea level, seems to cut if off from the rest of County Wicklow. In actual fact, the "cutting off" is not so complete as it looks; for there is a delightful walk over the Head down into Greystones, which makes an ideal headquarters for exploring the delightful scenery around the county. Quite close to Greystones is the famous Glen of the Downs, shadowed by the towering Sugarloaf mountain, and the Glen of the Dargle.

Wicklow itself is a grand old historic town, but it has not been content to rest on its reputation alone. It has a promenade three miles long, and just two miles further on is the pleasant stretch of the Silver Strand—a splendid place for bathing.

Down in County Wexford the eight miles of the Silver Sands at Rosslare is one of the best attractions for the holidaymaker. The beach is sheltered by a ridge of sand hills and the gentle slope towards the sea makes it one of the safest bathing places along the Irish coast. Courtown Harbour, also in County Wexford, is another resort with a charm all of its own. It does not boast of being "ultra-modern," but it certainly does offer a really restful holiday.

TRAMORE BAY

Everybody has heard about Tramore, seven miles from the City of Waterford. It occupies a leading place among the seaside resorts of Ireland and overlooks Tramore Bay, which is edged by firm sand stretching away up to the "Burrows," natural hills of sand. The town has its attractions for visitors very well organised, and there is a big dance hall and amusement park in addition to facilities for golf and tennis.

Dungarvan, on the mouth of the River Colligan, is another Waterford town well known as a health resort owing to its position between mountain and sea.

There is not time to pause long over these delightful places along the south coast, but there are resorts like Cove, Youghal, with its long, sandy beach, which is safe at all stages of the tide; Kinsale, one of the oldest towns in the south; Bantry, an excellent headquarters for tourists, who wish to explore the delights of Glengariff or the deep recesses of Dunmanus Bay.

On the picturesque road between Leap and Skibbereen is the little town of Glandore, overlooking the waters of the harbour of that name. Apart from its beautiful setting, Glandore has a mild climate and good bathing facilities. Schull is another attractive resort in County Cork, and, apart from the usual sporting amenities, the district has a great reputation for the beauty of its seascapes.

BEAUTY AND ROMANCE

Kerry blends natural beauty and historic romance more than any other part of Ireland, and there seems to be something deeper about the "Kingdom" than even the grandeur of the mountains and lakes. The three famous lakes lie in the heart of the mountains, with Carrantual (the highest mountain in Ireland) dominating the skyline. Caragh Lake is a place one does not hear much about—perhaps, the name Killarney overshadows it—but a holiday beside this six miles strip of water is a pleasant rest from the bustle of the cities and towns. Another Kerry resort, not a conventional seaside place, is Parknasilla, which seems to have no limit to the attractions which it offers to visitors. Before leaving this county, however, one should remember Ballybunion on the north-west coast, where the Shannon meets the Atlantic Ocean.

Kilkee, in County Clare, also faces the Atlantic, and is one of the finest natural watering-places along this coast. It has a semi-circular stretch of beach, which makes bathing perfectly safe. Up in Galway, a few miles from the city itself, is the delightful little suburb of Salthill. Clifden, too, overlooks the harbour of Ardbear, and is really the "capital of Connemara."

Three pleasant little resorts—all with good bathing places—are close to the town of Sligo. They are Enniscrone, Rosses Point, famous for its golf course, and Strandhill. All of them are worth visiting.

"BRACING BUNDORAN"

"Bracing Bundoran" is just up in the next county—Donegal—and provides virtually everything the holidaymaker could wish for. It faces the broad sweep of Donegal Bay and is backed by a semi-circle of mountains. Rosapenna is another good place for a holiday in this county.

Over the border in Northern Ireland, the six counties of the north-east offer many attractions for the holidays. In Antrim, for instance, are the charming seaside villages of Carnlough, Glenarm, Cushendall and Cushendun, while, of course, Larne is a very popular tourist centre. Portrush is an important place for holidaymakers, and the local Sports Committee has planned a big programme for the present season, and starts with a fancy dress carnival on July 17th. Then, in quick succession, follow a fireworks display, military tatoo, and the important business of electing the "Beauty Queen of the North." The hard-court tennis championships will be held in Portrush in the week commencing August 19th.

DONAGHADEE

Donaghadee is one of the finest health resorts in Northern Ireland, while Bangor, also in County Down, and quite close to the City of Belfast has been one of the most progressive resorts in the whole country for several years past. Newcastle and Warrenpoint are another couple of resorts in this county which can provide a very pleasant time for visitors.

If you think of going to Northern Ireland the Ulster Tourist Association, Belfast, can be very helpful, and will assist tourists with details of the accommodation available at the various resorts.

The majority of the places in the Free State which have been mentioned can be reached by fast trains from Dublin and other centres controlled by the Great Southern Railways Company. The northern and north-western resorts are served by the Great Northern Railway, and both companies have organised special facilities for holiday-makers this year, and details of these can be obtained from their local offices.

THE ISLE OF MAN

If your choice of a holiday does not lie in this country, why not try the Isle of Man? It is a great place for a jolly holiday, although one can easily slip away from the crowds if you want to. During the summer months there is a very good service of boats operated from Dublin. Perhaps, however, you would prefer to go across the Channel to North Wales. There are some very good resorts along that stretch of coast—Rhyl, Colwyn Bay and Llandudno are just three examples—and they are within easy reach of Dublin by the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company's mail steamers from Dun Laoghaire.

Well, we have had a very quick glance at some of the best places for holidays. Why not get busy and fix up your vacation right away? and then you will not be envying the people with the sun-tanned complexions—you will have one yourself and feel all the better for it.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Kilkenny Cathedral : Irish Horse Sales : "Snowballs": Coloured Flowers

"Painting the Lily"

An Irishwoman in London, who was lured into a florist's shop by the sight of large daisies of a most unusual pink shade, paid the price gladly and settled the flowers in a glass vase in her room, where she admired them to her heart's content. In the morning, however, some of her delight in the new discovery was dimmed by the fact that the cochineal used in the unsuspected dyeing had passed into the stems and had faintly coloured the water. Speaking of her experience to a friend who had lately visited the South of France, she was told that the practice was quite a common one there, but that the dye used was blue, and the colour produced in some white blossoms was a wonderful greeny-blue. Freesias were the favourite flower for such experiments, and the result was very beautiful. The owner of the daisies bought white ones next time and soaked them in a very strong solution of washing blue; but—scorners of the blue bag, take notice!—the flowers were whiter than ever next day.

Bloodstock Sales

Mr. Walter Elliot, the British Minister for Agriculture, has reason to be satisfied, I should think, with the prices made by the National Stud yearlings put up at Newmarket on Wednesday evening. The twelve youngsters fetched 19,380 guineas. As I anticipated, the Blandford fillies sold well. In securing the Endowment filly for 5,000 guineas the Aga Khan indicates his intention of keeping in the front rank as an owner and a breeder. While many prefer a bay for breeding purposes, I think Captain Cecil Boyd-Rochfort secured a real bargain when the grey Blandford filly from Tilia was knocked down to his bid of 3,100 guineas. Had Malplaquet, own brother to this youngster, won his race at Newmarket, she might have made more money. The price of 3,200 guineas which Captain Boyd-Rochfort paid for the Fairway—Savona colt is a good one. The same figure for the Bosworth—Lioness colt is also satisfactory, and places both these yearlings in the category of ones to watch, for their future career is bound to be interesting.

A Sign of Prosperity

Nothing indicates the pulse of the nation so accurately as these bloodstock sales. New bidders and good prices are sure signs of a country's prosperity. That's what prevailed at this week's sales—the first of the July lists. The Aga Khan was a seller as well as a buyer this week. In getting over 2,000 guineas from Mr. Rank for the Sheshoon-bred Rustom Pasha from Tarte Maison colt His Highness has no cause for complaint. In paying 1,200 guineas for the Solario colt out of Shirazy, which the Aga Khan named Sun of Iran, Mr. Cottrill, the trainer, has nothing to complain about either, for this is an attractive-looking yearling.

"Snowballing" Campaigns

Some years ago a "lucky charm" craze developed in the form of a letter embodying a prayer. The receiver of the communication was asked to make six copies of it and send them to friends, with the request that they, in turn, should distribute further copies. Good luck, it was said, attended those who encouraged the issue; conversely, if one were negligent in taking action, such incredulity could only invite reverse fortune. Like most other things, this scheme has been brought up-to-date on commercialised lines. Two letters reached me during the week, but instead of the prayer, one is now asked to substitute a sixpenny postal order; this to be sent to the person's name appearing first on a list submitted. I further find I am invited to send out copies as before stated, placing my own name on the top of the list, and while the name appears there and my friends further the kind distribution, supporters of the scheme assure me I have a chance of making some £300 odd. Apart from the fact that I also have a chance of winning a horse in the next Sweep, I fail to see how normally minded people can expect to reap such a reward for an outlay of sixpence without somebody being out of pocket. This "snowballing" campaign has been banned in Germany, and it seems to me it would be no harm if steps were taken here to bring the scheme to a timely conclusion.

St. Canice's

I was interested to hear recently from the sexton of St. Canice's Cathedral, Kilkenny, that brass memorial plates are not permitted on the walls of the Cathedral, the metal's bright modernity being considered out of place beside dull marble tombs and centuries-old stone monuments. The rich beauty of coloured marbles and the glow of stained glass are the only vivid notes of colour in this exquisite old building. I did not before realise the possibilities of marble for decorative purposes until I saw its lovely sanctuary floor. This floor is remarkably beautiful, and represents Munster, Leinster and Connaught, as it is composed entirely of marble quarried in the Counties of Kerry, Cork, Galway and Kilkenny. Here we find the black fossil marble (black, speckled with grey) of Kilkenny, which predominates; the green stone of Connemara, the pale dove-grey of Kerry, and the rich red of Cork woven together into a stretch of glowing colour appropriate in beauty and simplicity of design to the beautiful building of which it forms so important a part. There are, undoubtedly, a richness and simplicity about polished marble which adds to the dignity of a sacred edifice.

The Master of the Horse

The Earl of Granard, who will shortly achieve a record in holding the Mastership of the Horse for a period covering twenty years, has many friends on both sides of the Irish Sea. The eighth holder of the Granard Earldom, he succeeded his father in 1889, when 15 years of age. He served in the British Army, first with the Gordon Highlanders and then with the Scots Guards in the South African War. He was elected a Privy Councillor for Great Britain in 1907, and for Ireland in 1918, and was elected a member of the Irish Senate in 1921. During the European War he commanded the 5th Battalion of the Royal Irish Regiment. At one time the Mastership of the Horse changed its holder with each change of Government, but the Earl of Granard has held the office through successive administrations. To the ordinary duties of that office he has added the late Viscount Churchill's delicate task in connection with admissions to the Royal Enclosure at Ascot.

Irish Humour

Irishmen have a reputation for being incorrigible humorists, and the "hero" of the following story, which was told to me by a friend who has recently returned from a sea trip, bears out the statement that an Irishman can find something amusing in situations which those of other nationalities would find the reverse. During the voyage, he told me, one of the passengers died and was duly buried at sea. As is usually the case, a Committal Service was read by the captain before the corpse was consigned to the waves. The body was encased in canvas in the orthodox manner, but instead of iron, which was not plentiful, being used, lumps of coal were substituted. There was a full attendance of both crew and passengers, and during the reading of the Service by the rather pompous captain one Irishman was noticed unsuccessfully endeavouring to conceal his amusement. After the ceremony the irate skipper remonstrated with him, asking: "What was the cause of your unseemly conduct?" "Well," the Irishman replied, "I have seen many a man go to hell, but until to-day I never saw one bring his own coal with him."

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES

THE TERM ENDS

DR. WESTROPP ROBERTS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TRINITY Term ended yesterday. The Library closes to-day for the annual summer holiday, reopening on Monday, 22nd July; while the Buffet, that most pleasant of College institutions—closes down until September next. Commons gradually diminishes, with only one session at 6.30 p.m., and soon will be but a quiet dinner-party for those scholars and sizars whose devotion to duty keeps them in College during the vacation. Not until the Moderatorship and Prize Examinations will the work of the University be resumed once more.

We deeply regret to record the passing last week of the Vice-Provost (the Rev. W. R. Westropp Roberts, D.D., S.F.,T.C.D.), at the advanced age of 85 years. Dr. Roberts, who was elected to Fellowship as far back as 1882, was the son of the Rev. William Roberts, S.F.,T.C.D., and was nephew of Mr. Michael Roberts, F.,T.C.D., and Professor of Mathematics. He had been living in the Vice-Provost's house in the College since the death of his wife some years ago, and had become a familiar figure to the present generation of undergraduates, who prized much their association with a charming and courteous old gentleman. His passing removes a link with the Trinity College of the pre-war era (Dr. Roberts having been the last surviving Senior Fellow of that time), and will be deeply regretted by all who knew him.

Honorary Degrees

The Second Summer Commencements held yesterday were the chief "event of the week." The recipients of Honorary Degrees were:—Sir Frederic Kenyon, K.C.B., F.B.A.; Professor G. T. Morgan, F.R.S., D.Sc.; Professor T. H. Milroy, M.D., F.R.C.S., and Sir Norman Walker, M.D., LL.D. Sir Frederic Kenyon, who received the Litt.D. degree, is Director and Principal Librarian of the British Museum, and has received Honorary degrees from Oxford, Cambridge, Princeton, Paris and Brussels. He is an Honorary Fellow of New College and Magdalen College, Oxford, and has been Rede Lecturer at Cambridge and Romanes Lecturer at Oxford. His most famous publication is on Aristotle's Constitution of Athens. Professor Morgan, who received the Sc.D. degree, is Director of the Chemical Research Laboratory at Teddington. He was formerly Professor of Chemistry at the University of Birmingham, and Professor in the Faculty of Applied Chemistry at the Royal College of Science of Ireland. He is Editor of the Chemistry Section of the Encyclopædia Britannica. Professor Milroy, who received the M.D. degree, is Professor of Physiology in Queen's University, Belfast, and was formerly Assistant Professor and Lecturer at Edinburgh University. Sir Norman Walker, who received the M.D. degree, is President of the General Medical Council and Vice-President of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh.

The appointment of the Rev. J. E. L. Oulton, M.A., D.D., to the Regius Professorship of Divinity, in succession to the Rev. Newport J. D. White, D.D., who has resigned, will give pleasure to his many friends in the University, and especially to present and past members of the Divinity School. Professor Oulton is one of the best-known authorities in the field of ecclesiastical history, and has a distinguished record as a theologian. He was appointed Archbishop King's Professor of Divinity in 1930, and since last year has been deputy for Dr. Newport White in the Chair of Divinity.

The subjects set for two of the most important prizes in the Divinity School are as follows:—Elrington Theological Prize, "Modern Psychology and Christian Ethics," President's Prize, "Christianity and Communism." Essays, with fictitious signatures, with candidate's name and address in a separate envelope must be sent to the Regius Professor of Divinity before the 1st October for the Elrington Prize, and before the 18th October for the President's Prize.

Examination Results

The results of the annual examinations of the Law School held in June were announced last week. The prize-winners were as follow:—Roman Law—Mr. M. N. Hartnett (Sch.), Mod., B.A., and Mr. J. E. Lynch; Constitutional and Criminal Law and the Law of Evidence—Mr. M. N. Hartnett (Sch.), Mod., B.A., and Mr. Weldon Parke; Feudal and English Law—Mr. M. N. Hartnett (Sch.), Mod., B.A., Mr. J. A. D'Arcy and Mr. G. P. Andrews; Jurisprudence and International Law—Mr. S. V. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. Hartnett, who gained first place in all the examinations for which he was a candidate, is a Scholar and Moderator in Classics, and was Auditor of the Gaelic Society in the session, 1932-'33. He is a Gold Medallist in Oratory of the College Historical Society, and was elected to honorary membership of the Society last year. He was one of the founders of the Dublin University Fianna Fail Cumann.

Mr. E. W. Jones, who gained a First Class at the LL.B. degree examination, is captain of the D.U. Golf Club for the present year; and Mr. D. B. W. Good, the only other candidate to gain a First Class, was formerly captain of the Swimming Club.

The following have been elected to the Library Committee of the College Historical Society:—Mr. C. A. Preston (Mod.), B.A. (ex-Correspondence Secretary); Mr. J. A. Walmsley (Sch.), Mr. J. Gore-Grimes, and Mr. D. P. Huddie.

The Society's awards for Oratory are as follow:—Mr. D. G. Neill, Auditor (Silver Medal), Mr. J. W. Wellwood, ex-Auditor (Silver Medal), Messrs. W. A. Beers, J. R. C. Green, R. B. McDowell and C. A. Preston (Marked Thanks).

The subject for the Society's Medals in Composition is "The Idea of Progress," essays to be sent in before October 1st.

Irish University Students

At the annual Congress of the Irish University Students' Association, at University College, Galway, last week, it was decided that the next meeting of the Congress would (subject to the permission of the authorities) be held at Trinity College in July, 1936.

The Congress was addressed by President de Valera and Mr. Frank MacDermot, T.D., on the subject set for discussion: "Whither Ireland?"

The Cricket Eleven have been engaged in a most successful tour of the West of England, scoring 222 for 9 wickets against Bristol University and 152 against Bath, the latter match being on a wet wicket. J. C. Martin (Campbell College) scored 57 and 52, respectively, in these matches, C. R. Cuffe (Stonyhurst) scoring 50 against Bath and E. S. Barber (St. Andrew's College), the captain, 51 against Bristol University.

The Swimming Club on their London tour were defeated by United Hospitals and London University in water polo, but defeated the former in the squadron championship.

They defeated Brighton Shiverers by 6 goals to 2, but lost to Otters S.C. at water polo.

The Tennis Club retained the McCabe Cup for inter-University tennis, defeating U.C.D. by 5 matches to 4.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

HAS CO-OPERATION FAILED?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Is it possible that Mr. Anderson and "Agricola," in a contest which is very entertaining but also rather bewildering to the average reader, are each pommelling a ghostly abstraction which each mistakenly supposes to be the beliefs of the other, so that their doughty blows are spent on an unresisting vacuum?

Thus, Mr. Anderson supposes "Agricola" is zealous for clerical control; but is he? "Agricola" is, no doubt, fully aware that a Papal Rescript warns priests against accepting financial responsibility in co-operative as in other business ventures, and that where financial responsibility begins all other effective control ends, and vice versa. Indeed, the position of the clergyman is often even more restricted than this. I heard a parish priest, who gave co-operation "all the moral support he could," state that such support "must stop short of any patronage to trading," unless he was prepared to have his temperance work left bereft of the financial aid the traders of his congregation gave it.

"Agricola," on his side, writes as if Mr. Anderson either failed to realise that co-operation has a "spiritual"—I should have preferred the word "moral"—objective to seek, or, alternatively, that it has failed in that aspect. That can scarcely be the fact. For do not "Agricola" and Mr. Anderson both realise that everywhere, not in Ireland only, co-operation is still in the making. Thus, when "Agricola" writes, "The essence of co-operation is the production and exchange of necessaries for mutual benefit, not for the profits which capitalism seeks," he is raising a momentous and a mondial, not a merely temporary and Irish, issue. Incidentally, he seems to assume the world has solved the problem, and the Irish creamery movement, failing to do so, stands condemned! But surely he is aware that the problem of capitalism is nowhere solved, neither by the Belgian farmers nor by the British distributive movement?

In an interesting study of "The Relations Between Consumers and Producers," Professor Karl Ihreg, writing in "Co-operation and Charles Gide" (edited by Walter for the International Institute for the Study of Co-operation), points out that there are three possible roads to the co-operative goal. I cannot ask for space to quote him in extenso. It must suffice that one way is through agricultural production, organising supply to the ultimate consumer, which, of course, occurs when, as to some extent in Ireland, co-operative creameries (or the Wholesale Society) supply consumers' societies. That not all co-operative trading, even from the consumers' side, is of a direct kind is certainly the fact: but the machinery exists and something of the practice, both in producers' and in consumers' co-operation. Before it can be complete, as "Agricola" will realise, it must be internationally organised, and to blame Irish farmers as if the shortcoming were primarily, or, indeed, exclusively theirs is clearly to saddle the wrong horse. Meanwhile, to write as if capitalisation in creameries was one in kind with proprietorism, in which the producer is dominated by the entrepreneur, is to confuse the issue.

What Plunkett aimed at, and Mr. Anderson valorously effectuated, was to deliver the farmer from exploitation, as producer of certain products, and from being profiteered into bankruptcy, as consumer of certain necessaries. Those gains stand, and should have the praise that is their due. For the rest, the spiritual or economico-ethical aspects of the movement are plainly laid down in the societies' rules, which work towards an economic ideal not yet fully realised anywhere, and of which our clergymen—and, incidentally, those old "National" students of economics who came under Father Thomas Finlay's teaching—are well aware. The goal is not reached nor can be save by initiative, team spirit and high aims; but the end is not yet.—Yours, etc.,

"ECLECTIC."

IRISHMEN ABROAD

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I left Dublin about three weeks ago for a fortnight's holiday in Belgium on a seventeen-day ticket, but I made a bad mistake in forgetting to bring my passport.

The Belgian authorities reluctantly gave me a document to stay for four days. When I got to Brussels I approached the British Vice-Consul who treated me with the utmost courtesy and civility. He endorsed the Belgian document, and advised me to stay as long as I wished within the validity of my ticket. He further said: "If you have any difficulty on the matter when leaving this country, just apply to this office and we will interfere on your behalf."

I wish to put his great kindness on record, and also to advise our people to whom they are to apply for assistance in countries where the Irish Free State is not represented.—Yours, etc.,

A DUBLIN CITIZEN.

THE ABBEY THEATRE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Many wreaths are being laid beside the open grave of the Abbey Theatre. The funeral service is in progress, if one is to believe the statements made at recent functions in Dublin. The friends of the Abbey Theatre are gathered round, with heads uncovered, and there are tears. Sympathisers look back across the years, from which they receive no inspiration except, perhaps, to deliver ill-timed orations.

All of which reminds me that in Drogheda a story is told that many years ago a man entered a vault in St. Peter's Church and cut from the finger of a woman—supposedly dead—a gold ring. The breaking of this ring, which gripped a vein, renewed her life, and she walked unaided from her tomb to her own house. May I suggest that some daring person, filled with good motives for the furthering and popularising of drama in Ireland, should creep up to the mortuary where the Abbey Theatre is said to lie in state and break the ring? If there is need, then let there be a conspiracy among Irish writers and play patrons to do the deed. Conspiracies would appear to be popular here. It will not, however, be sufficient to conclude this suggested conspiracy. The body, filled with the new vigour of life, must be exhibited to the doubting persons "on the fringe of things" and to others who, as a speaker from the Dublin Broadcasting Station last night said, never have known what the Abbey Theatre has done for the drama.

One is convinced that in this age art and showmanship have a closer affinity than might be suspected. The Abbey Theatre, if it is declining, declines because of lack of discreet showmanship. There is nothing on the grey walls of the theatre to attract; even the advertising boards, telling about the next production, would appear to have been designed by someone lacking in imagination. And this is in strong contrast to the advertising signs seen on every cinema in Dublin, on every bridge and place.

Here is my suggestion. Let the Abbey Theatre players hie themselves to, say, "the Hollow" in the Phœnix Park on a Saturday afternoon in the summer, and there, on an improvised stage, produce any two plays chosen by the august selection committee; and I will bet my future as a farmer to a few cattle export licences that the "despised" artisan folk will find in Irish drama an interest which some speakers say is lacking, but which they do not encourage. The Abbey Theatre, supposed to be democratic, will find life and virtue in her new democracy.—Yours, etc.,

GEORGE H. BURROWS.

THE NATIONAL GALLERY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Art and fine arts have been loud in our ears lately, and the late Director of our National Gallery addressed us unmuzzled, as he expressed it, in order to show how much more he could have done during his custodianship. I venture to express the view that the best Director of a National Gallery is a relatively silent one, and that the only thing that really matters is his capacity as a connoisseur, and his ability to obtain for his gallery pictures of merit and to weed out of sight the inferior ones that may happen to be there.

Lecturing and propaganda are subordinate and unrelated to taste, judgment or real knowledge of the fine arts. Taste, discernment, the flair which discovers the hitherto unrecognised masterpiece, are subjective, while the ability to deliver art lectures, which is within the power of almost anyone sufficiently interested to look up the literature of the particular subject desired for exposition, is objective. It is, I think, quite certain that the enjoyment of pictures, a noble pleasure that will ever be the privilege of the few rather than the multitude, is actually lessened by the discourses given by professional lecturers in the picture galleries. The true lover of painting steals away out of earshot of those obtruders on their visual and meditative enjoyment.

The response to an æsthetic feast of colour, of construction, of imagination, is a response of the mind and of the spirit, and it can neither be taught nor acquired by any external means; and it may well be that an inductive current of appreciation lingers, aura-like, around a masterpiece from the admiration given to it by such devotees, and from that source comes the awakening of the æsthetic sensibilities of the uninitiated.

By all means let us have a re-issue of the illustrated catalogue of the Gallery and good postcard and other reproductions of the pictures. Might one hope some day to have the Leinster Lawn open again, where one could rest awhile after traversing the Gallery? And, perhaps, a café or tea stall might mitigate the repellant atmosphere in the hall of plaster-cast reproductions of sculpture, through which the main collection of pictures is approached.—Yours, etc.,

HENRY M. SINCLAIR.

CHEMISTS AND DRUGGISTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your issue of June 11 a report appeared in connection with the Poisons and Pharmacy Acts in the Free State, and the extended supervision of chemists and druggists, as intimated by the Commissioner of the Gardai. I have waited patiently for an explanation by someone more competent than myself, but none has so far come. It is not so much the actual facts, but when facts are presented to the lay mind, it is, surely, only just to the chemist and druggist that a perverse impression of the state of affairs is not created.

The current edition of the Irish Chemist and Druggist throws no light on the subject. I mention this because an extensive quotation was taken from the editorial of that paper by your correspondent. Your article to which I refer stated: "Heretofore the duty of ensuring that these Acts (the Poisons and Pharmacy Acts) were observed was confined to the limited number of Guards appointed to act as inspectors of weights and measures. Chemists and druggists . . . . will now be brought under close supervision similar to that exercised over licensed traders. It will be open to any Garda to walk into a pharmacy and inquire into the qualifications of the person in charge. . . . Surprise visits can now be paid by any Garda on duty, who may make an inspection of the poisons registers to ensure that sales are not made without the poisons law provisions being strictly observed. . . . The increase in the number of poison cases . . . is said to be one of the causes for this. . . ."

As regards the first part of this report, the enforcement of the Poisons and Pharmacy Acts always rested with the State police and the Pharmaceutical Society. The inspectors of weights and measures received a copy of the register of pharmaceutical chemists from the Registrar of the Society. The Society had power (since 1875) to prosecute. This refers chiefly to the Pharmacy Act, and particularly Section 17. The poisons laws were always supervised by the police, and any Garda inspected the registers of chemists under Part I., Schedule A, and, of course, the Dangerous Drugs Act. The Pharmaceutical Society also was empowered to erase the name of a registered chemist from the register who did not duly reply to a registered letter confirming his address. So that the law in this regard was always practically watertight.

It is now made to appear to the lay mind that anyone could hitherto control a pharmacy. This is erroneous and misleading to the public. As regards the poisons law, the pharmaceutical chemist is unfairly brought before the public as being the only person to whom an infringement of the Poisons Law can be attributed. The confused impression created by the mention of "licensed traders" does not help the public in this matter. Every person in the State is subject to the enforcement of a penal law. A pharmaceutical chemist is qualified by a State law to dispense, sell, and retail poisons, and might be said to be the guardian of the public by his efficient control and skill over the vast products of the animal, vegetable, and mineral kingdom. His training and severe examination before he qualifies ensure that the State has made no mistake in placing him in this position.

I do not know of one case where a "poison case" was attributed to the pharmaceutical chemist—the natural deduction from the report. If laws are lax in regard to unqualified people dealing in drugs and medicines, then it is clearly the duty of those in authority to remedy the evil, but why attack the doctor because a contagious disease has occurred? The logical thing to do is to cure the disease, and consequently the subject. If the laws are inadequate, supplement or amend them, but do not convey to the public that an unskilled supervision is going to end abuses. They will not believe you. Our prescription books are as Greek to an Aran Islander—they do not understand the cosmos of drugs, and that is what our Licentiates have spent the best part of their lives learning.

I believe that the general public rely on the chemist implicitly. Then, if this new supervision only refers to a minor section of the Act, why not explain this when the matter was published at all. Surprise visits to a pharmacy will not prevent the unqualified trader from selling poisons.—Yours, etc.,

F. J. WHELAN,
Pharmaceutical Chemist

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS

DUBLIN CENTRAL MISSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Please allow me space in your columns to appeal to your readers on behalf of the poor of Dublin. We in the Dublin Central Mission have a Holiday Home at Skerries. It has been enlarged and made capable of housing about 55 children. We took over 300 sick mothers and children from the stifling tenements for a fortnight's holiday each last year. We wish to take many more needy little ones this year. The charitable public responded to our former appeals splendidly. Will they do so again? Each ten shillings we receive will give a little child a holiday for two weeks. That gift may save the life of some poor mite in one of our poor families. Please send your gift to the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. J. Robertson Coade, Bayswater Lodge, Sandycove, Co. Dublin; or to yours, etc.,

MURDER CONVICTION QUASHED

A JUDGE'S CHARGE TO THE JURY

The Scottish Court of Criminal Appeal in Edinburgh yesterday unanimously allowed the appeal of James Mills, jun., against his conviction and sentence of death on a charge of murdering his stepmother, Mrs. Robina Mills, in Glasgow on April 8.

The Lord Justice Clerk said that there was ample evidence to justify the view that the woman was murdered, and that whoever murdered her arranged things in the house so as to suggest that she had taken her own life. He did not doubt for a single moment that upon the evidence the jury was amply warranted in finding a verdict of guilty, but on the question of the judge's charge to the jury the Lord Justice Clerk said that the judge drew no distinction between a verbal statement deponed to by the Assistant Chief Constable and a written statement signed by the appellant.

The charge proceeded upon the view that the accuracy of the police officer's statement was not in doubt. The appellant, in his evidence, gave a vitally different account of the words which he used. It was very easy for the most experienced judge to omit to give to the jury some direction that ought to be given, and the question must always be whether the omission was sufficiently material to vitiate the verdict. In his lordship's view the omission in the case was fatal to the verdict. He moved that the appeal be allowed and the verdict and sentence quashed.

Lords Anderson and Murray concurred, and Mills was immediately liberated.

ON THE WIRELESS

Daily Programme Review

TO-DAY

DUBLIN: "Round the Shows," No. 6, 8.

NORTHERN IRELAND: "Blue Ribands" Concert Party, 9.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Play, "Sir Thomas More," 8.30.

REGIONAL: Music Hall, 8.

WEST: Teddy Joyce and his Band, from Cardiff, 9.30.

ROME: Opera, "Il piccolo Marat" (Mascagni), 8.40.

BRUSSELS NO. 1: Concert from the Exhibition, 8.

APART from the various radio orchestras giving short programmes here and there, there is a conspicuous absence of orchestral contributions to-night. From Dublin Tom Madden presents another of his popular "Round the Shows" programmes in a selection of tuneful melodies from the latest film and stage successes. From 9 o'clock Northern Ireland gives a relay of the "Blue Ribands" Concert Party from the Town Hall, Portstewart.

B.B.C. Regional contributes an hour of Music Hall, with an excellent list of entertainers, including Clapham and Dwyer and Elsie and Doris Waters. North Regional announces another "Pleasure on Parade." This edition will be relayed from New Brighton at 9. Teddy Joyce and his Band are giving a performance of dance music for relay from the Capitol Theatre, Cardiff, and Henry Hall, directing the B.B.C. Dance Orchestra, commences at 10.10.

In direct contrast to all this frivolity, the B.B.C. National will put on a play entitled "Sir Thomas More."

Lewis Casson heads a capable cast for the performance, and the play comprises three sequences—The Trial, the Dream, the End and an epilogue.

To-day's outside broadcasts consist of the review of the Royal Air Force by the King, commencing at 2.20 (National).

At 3 on the same wave-length Captain H. B. Y. Wakelam and Colonel R. H. Brand will give commentaries from the centre court, Wimbledon, on the finals in the All-England Lawn Tennis Club championship.

The Northern Command Searchlight Tattoo will be relayed from Wollaton Park, Nottingham, in the Midland programme at 10.15.

TO-MORROW

DUBLIN: Opera, "An Cailin Ban," relayed from St. Louis Convent, Monaghan, 8.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Popular Orchestral Concert, 9.

REGIONAL: London Symphony Orchestra. Conductor, Sir Hamilton Harty, 9.20.

WEST: Band Concert, 5.30.

TOULOUSE: Opera, "Mirella" (Gounod), 9.

HILVERSUM: Relay from the Kurhaus, Scheveningen, 8.10.

THE opera, "An Cailin Ban," should have a special appeal for Irish scholars, since it will be performed entirely in Irish. The performance, which will be relayed from the Convent of St. Louis, Monaghan, will be given by the pupils and school orchestra. The opera has been adapted from "The Lily of Killarney," and translated into Irish by a member of the school staff. This will be the first broadcast of an opera in Irish.

Sir Hamilton Harty will direct the London Symphony Orchestra to-night. (Regional, 9.20.)

Hughes Macklin (tenor) is taking part in the concert of chamber music to be given by the Reginald Paul Pianoforte Quartet, in which Reginald Paul is the pianist. (National, 5.30.)

Leslie Heward's fourth talk in his "Why I Like . . . ." Series takes to-day music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with illustrations by the B.B.C. Midland Orchestra and singers, conducted by Leslie Heward. (Midland, 4.30.)

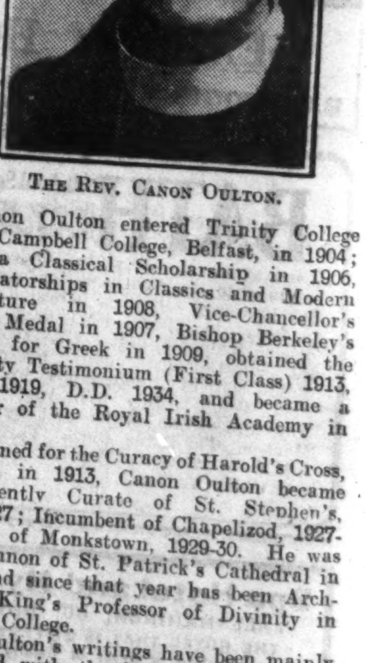
UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN

NEW REGIUS PROFESSOR OF DIVINITY

On the nomination of the Divinity School Council, and having been elected by the Board of Trinity College, the Rev. Canon John Ernest Leonard Oulton, D.D., has been admitted by the Vice-Chancellor, the Right Hon. Sir T. F. Molony, Bart., LL.D., to the Regius Professorship of Divinity.



THE REV. CANON OULTON.

Canon Oulton entered Trinity College from Campbell College, Belfast, in 1904; won a Classical Scholarship in 1906, Moderatorships in Classics and Modern Literature in 1908, Vice-Chancellor's Latin Medal in 1907, Bishop Berkeley's Medal for Greek in 1909, obtained the Divinity Testimonium (First Class) 1913, B.D. 1919, D.D. 1934, and became a member of the Royal Irish Academy in 1928.

Ordained for the Curacy of Harold's Cross, Dublin, in 1913, Canon Oulton became subsequently Curate of St. Stephen's, 1916-1927; Incumbent of Chapelizod, 1927-29, and of Monkstown, 1929-30. He was made Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral in 1930, and since that year has been Archbishop King's Professor of Divinity in Trinity College.

Dr. Oulton's writings have been mainly connected with the history and doctrine of the early Church. He is associated with Dr. Lawlor in an edition of the Church History of Eusebius, and his translation of Books VI.-X. forms the second volume of the Loeb Classical Library edition of that work, Dr. Kirsopp Lake having translated the earlier portion. In the recently published "History of the Church of Ireland" Dr. Oulton is responsible for the opening chapter, on the Church of Gaul. Among his other published writings may be mentioned "The Roman See in the Fourth and Fifth Centuries" and "The Theological Witness of the Irish Church in Pre-Reformation Times."

ARCHBISHOP KING'S PROFESSORSHIP

The Rev. Richard Randall Hartford, M.A., has been appointed to discharge the duties of Archbishop King's Professor of Divinity for the coming year. Mr. Hartford has been Dean of Residence for Church of Ireland Students and also Lecturer in Mental and Moral Science since 1931.

John Eglinton Returns

The Literary Renaissance and the People

Irish Literary Portraits. By John Eglinton. London: Macmillan. 5/- net.

THE literary life of Dublin, and of Ireland, suffered a severe loss when John Eglinton decided to live in England. Of the race "of those to whom England and Ireland were equally dear," he departed when the Irish Free State came into being, and since then has been silent until the publication of this volume. So the man whom George Moore named the finest writer of English prose ceased to practise his craft at a most critical moment in Irish letters.

This new volume contains essays on Mr. W. B. Yeats, "A.E.," Edward Dowden, George Moore and James Joyce, all of whom were, and some of whom still are, prominent in the Irish literary renascence to which John Eglinton himself played the part of critic.

"For a period of about a quarter of a century," he says in his introductory chapter, "Ireland had an opportunity of making its special contribution to literature. The great literary periods of Greece, England, Spain did not last much longer. There seemed no reason whatever why Ireland should not prove to be one of the small nations which, however weak politically, exercise an imperial influence and authority in the world of literature and thought. Yet Ireland was not so fortunate as it seemed. All the great literatures, in their supreme moments, have seemed in retrospect to have risen like emanations from the life of a whole people which has shared in the general exaltation: and this was not the case with Ireland. How could a literary movement be in any sense national when the whole interest of the nation lay in extirpating the conditions which produced it? While Yeats was busy and successful in raising the whole standard of literary expression in the English language, the youth of Ireland was zealously employed in conning the primers of another language. And in 1916 it was suddenly demonstrated that the Irish people did not wish to have its name associated with the so-called Irish literary renaissance."

The Young Yeats

That is surely an individual and partial view of the situation? There is reason to believe, even now, that the Irish people, in so far as it is literary at all, not only accepts, but rejoices, in the possession of those writers who first shot into prominence in the early years of this century. And among them John Eglinton has an honoured place.

It is typical of the penetrative mind of John Eglinton that he perceived that Mr. Yeats, in defending Synge at a time when many voices were raised against him, fought in a cause that was not entirely his own. Indeed, in a sense, he fought in a cause that was opposed to his own. And no one can now be certain which side has won. In this essay on Yeats John Eglinton gives a pleasant glimpse of the poet as a schoolboy when he sat beside Eglinton in the High School in Harcourt street.

He lived out at Howth, and came and went as he pleased, a yellow-skinned, lank, loose-coated figure; for he was several years older than most of us, and even had the beginnings of a beard. He was remarkable for the manner in which he attached himself to the most unlikely boys, even those who were avoided by the others, as if they presented a problem to him, and I think we all felt it a kind of distinction to be seen walking with him.

"Lucidity and Logic"

His first impression of George Moore is also interesting. It was in 1898, and "he was at this time turned forty, erect and coldly genial, and but for the curious appearance of his sloping shoulders he looked, with his bowler and his cane, more like an army officer than a distinguished writer." Surely that "coldly genial" fixes George Moore as no other phrase that has yet been written about him. There are two essays on James Joyce, and in one of them is quoted a saying of Mr. Yeats's which, many people will still believe, fixes Joyce more accurately than anything else written or said about that extraordinary creature. "Never," said Mr. Yeats, "have I encountered so much pretension with so little to show for it." It is made abundantly clear that John Eglinton does not share the enthusiasm of Joyce's admirers for his later experiments in telescoped words. "I am all for lucidity and logic, and the writer who in his work raises a problem . . . of what he means, appears to me to bring into annoying prominence his own idiosyncracy."

The Submarine War

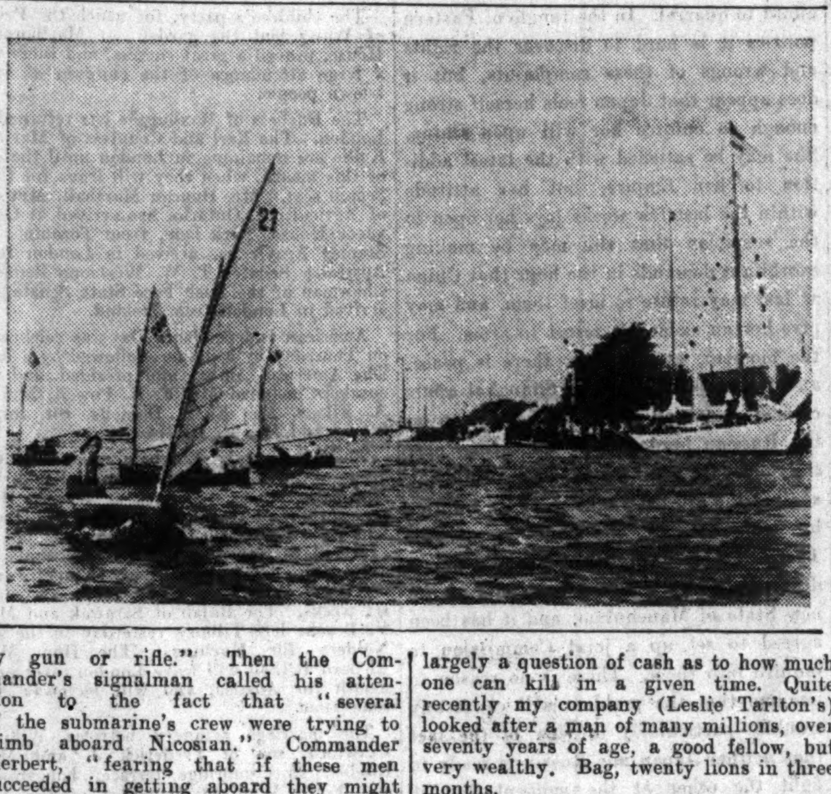
A Chronicle of Narrow Escapes.

Amazing Adventure. By E. Keble Chatterton. London: Hurst and Blackett. 18s. net.

THIS is the biography of Commander Godfrey Herbert, D.S.O., R.N., the submarine officer whom "luck snatched again and again from the king of terrors." He is commonly supposed to have survived more dangerous adventures than any other man who ever lived. His encounters with the enemy, however, seem to have been fewer than this reputation would warrant; but certainly he did have a number of narrow escapes from disabled submarines.

Perhaps it was fortunate for the German nation that Commander Herbert came into contact with her Navy so seldom; for he had a brusque way of dealing with the foe. Cruising one day in a Q-ship, the Baralong, he sighted a German submarine attacking the ss. Nicosian. At 600 yards he opened fire with his concealed guns, and "of those Germans who did not go down in the submarine most were killed by gun or rifle." Then the Commander's signalman called his attention to the fact that "several of the submarine's crew were trying to climb aboard Nicosian." Commander Herbert, "fearing that if these men succeeded in getting aboard they might set the large amount of fodder alight, ordered these men to be shot away." Six of them, however, got aboard the steamer and vanished below. They were found "huddled" in the propeller shaft alley, and "without further ado these were shot." The biographer's conclusion is that "it was a brilliant victory," and had "a cheery effect" on the Royal Navy.

The best part of this book is the account of the fifty-five hours that the submarine K13 spent disabled at the bottom of the Gareloch, and of how her crew were rescued by Commander Herbert. There is full-blooded drama here, with many men choking to death in air which escaped after the salvage "like black smoke," and with dying sailors, their nerves shattered, cursing the hiss of fresh air which came from the air pipe, after contact had been established with the rescuers.



26 Lions in Three Weeks

"The Motor-Car has Destroyed Hunting"

African Adventure. By Denis D. Lyell. London: Murray. 10/6 net.

MR. DENIS LYELL, a big game hunter of note and the author of a classic on that branch of sport, has now gathered together some of the fruits of a correspondence extending over many years with some of the foremost big game hunters of modern times. These correspondents include such famous names as Selous, Millais, Abel Chapman, Cuninghame, Stigand, Norman Smith Barnes and "Karamojo" Bell, and they discuss a number of points of the greatest interest and importance, including matters concerning vulnerable spots, methods of hunting, types of rifles and ammunition.

Modern methods are roundly condemned at times, especially the unsporting shooting of game from motor cars. "The motor car has destroyed hunting as we know it, and, especially with lion and other plains-loving animals, it is now largely a question of cash as to how much one can kill in a given time. Quite recently my company (Leslie Tarlton's) looked after a man of many millions, over seventy years of age, a good fellow, but very wealthy. Bag, twenty lions in three months.

"Yet another millionaire—bag twenty-six lions in three weeks. All quite honestly shot in the open in broad daylight, but such a record would be impossible without the cars."

The late President Roosevelt deservedly comes in for a bit of a rating, as does his son, Kermit, whose slaughter of nine white rhinoceros was a totally unnecessary piece of "trophy" hunting.

Various ways of preventing this wanton slaughter are suggested, and, though the book is supposedly on killing big game, it serves a far more useful purpose in suggesting ways and means of preserving these irreplaceable creatures and inculcating sporting principles. "Let him go for the really good male heads, leaving alone all the inferior males and sparing the females." That is the essence of the really sporting hunter's code.

"The English Dante"

Back to Langland. By Stanley B. James. London: Sands. 3/6 net.

THE Green International, a world-wide league of peasants, is not much more than a dream; yet, who knows but this dream, like others less desirable, may come true? Mr. James wishes Englishmen to go back to Langland, and to find in "Piers Plowman" an exhortation to revive their olden rural culture, and the ideals which once poured forth in passionate and devout song. Piers Plowman "represents the real England," the "England that once was and may be again."

All life was supernatural to Langland, and the fruit of the soil and man's labour was sacramental. When the peasant in England and in other lands becomes the acknowledged master Langland will be recognised as one of the greatest of poets. A complete modernised version of Langland's work is promised for this year, and Mr. James's book serves as a spirited introduction thereto. Not Chestertonian in style, but wholly in ideals, Mr. James is an enthusiast for "the English Dante," and not a little of his zeal touches the reader.

European History in Maps

An Atlas of European Geography. By J. F. Horrabin. London: Gollancz. 3/6 net.

THERE is scarcely a single aspect of European affairs to-day, for the understanding of which a set of historical maps is not a help, if not an essential. They are, however, expensive things and hard to come by, and few atlases at a reasonable price include even a map of Europe in 1914. Mr. Horrabin's work will be found extremely useful as a book of reference, but it is also a book of extraordinary interest in itself, to be read as a whole, not less than to be consulted from time to time. The long, and often meaningless, pageant of European history is covered in seventy maps, drawn in clear and bold outlines, the first twenty-eight covering history from the break-up of the Roman Empire to 1914, and the remainder the post-war partitions and arbitrary changes which are responsible for so many of our present ills. At three-and-sixpence it is as good a bargain as any publisher has offered in recent years.

MARKET FOR AUTHORS

THE LONDON MONOPOLY

IRISH WRITERS AND ENGLISH PUBLISHERS

IT has been a canon of faith for many years past that every Irish author who hopes to live by his work must publish outside Ireland. If you take any one of the leading Irish poets or novelists, and ask him what his prospects would be if he should entrust his work to an Irish, instead of an English, publisher, he will answer that the return on his book would hardly keep him in cigarettes for a week. The idea seems to be that, in order to obtain sales in England, the only hope is to publish in England. If he should venture to publish in Ireland, says our representative author, the English reviewers would take absolutely no notice of his book; the booksellers, taking their cue from the reviewers, would decline to give it any sort of a show in their shops; the American publishers would follow the English example, and our author would be dependent entirely on his Irish sales, which—to quote another expressive image that a poet of some distinction used when he was discussing the subject with me—would hardly keep a cockroach in clean shirts.

War Across the Water

I wonder why this should be. It seems to be true that, for one reason or another, the London publishers are an exceedingly jealous crowd, and resent the publication of books in any part of these islands outside London. So, at least, I have been informed on good authority more than once. Some time ago the representative of a Scottish firm—not, by the way, the one you first thought of—told me that his firm's initial efforts to establish itself were met by the fiercest, though subtlest, resistance on the part of the London publishers. Its publications either were overlooked entirely by the great majority of journals, or were damned with faint praise in niggardly little reviews, tucked obscurely in the remotest corners; and the metropolitan booksellers and libraries, if they could not decently place a complete ban on the firm's books, certainly abstained from recommending them to their customers. All this information, of course, may be untrue, or, at any rate, exaggerated—I have no first-hand knowledge on the subject; but my informant was mightily intense, and even bitter, about it.

Divorce and Reconciliation

This jealousy, however, cannot be the only reason why Irish authors abstain, to so large an extent, from publishing in Ireland. One reason, I suppose, which I may proffer without any offence to our own fine firms is that the large English firms can offer better terms to our authors. Another is that our Irish publishers, to judge from their output, are vastly puritanical about the stuff they accept for publication; and not all of our authors are equally particular about the fitness of their wares for Sunday-school distribution. Anyhow, reasons apart, this divorce between the Irish publishing houses and the better-known Irish authors is a grievous pity, and one of the chief causes, I do not doubt, of the growing neglect of letters in this Eden of the west. And, if ever literature is to play a real part with us again, a reconciliation of one kind or another must be effected. Who is to make the first overture I cannot tell. It would come better from the authors, but I cannot just see them make it. Perhaps, after another few years, the English public will develop a distaste for Irish work, no less vehement than their present liking for it; and then the problem will solve itself.

Is the Tide Turning?

As a matter of fact, the process already seems to have begun. It may be imagination, but it appears to me that the output of the Irish publishing houses has increased to quite a considerable extent during the last year or two, and that the quality of that output is substantially higher than it was a few years ago. The link with London, however, remains. I should like to know exactly what purpose is served by the simultaneous publication of a book by an Irish publisher and an English publisher, as happens every now and again. Is it to introduce an Irish book into London under the protection of an English firm? And does the practice make any real difference to the book's sales?

A Rationalist's Life of Christ

"Not Even a Man of Genius"

Jesus. By Ch. Guignebert. Translated from the French by S. H. Hooke. London: Kegan Paul. 25s. net.

THE author of this weighty work is Professor of the History of Christianity in the Sorbonne. He handles his subject in a purely rationalistic way. The virtual silence of secular authorities concerning the mission of Christ he explains by the observation that contemporaries had not the same reason to be interested in the Man who was crucified that we have, who live after the rise within history of an immense religion that rests upon Personality. "Christian propaganda created, developed, and elaborated a Christ myth at the expense of Jesus," says the Professor; but he grants that "it did not invent Jesus Himself . . . it was Jesus Himself who was in some way the inspiration of its faith in Him."

To this scholar of the twentieth century the historical figure of Christ is resolved into a simple peasant, ignorant, probably, of all languages save Aramaic, and of Greek culture and ways of thought; a man who was in the tradition of the Hebrew prophets. "His recorded utterances in the Gospels never rise beyond what is characteristic of human intellectual capacity." The Professor adds: "We have not even to do with what we may call a man of genius, but only with a man of singular spiritual loveliness and breadth of humanity."

"Too Heavy a Burden"

The Resurrection is explained away in an ingenious fashion. Convinced, by subjective visions, that they had seen the risen Lord, the disciples proclaimed His triumph over death; then asserted that the tomb was empty in order to fortify their statements. "It is doubtful . . . whether the dogma of the Resurrection, which has so long been the mainstay of Christianity, has not, in our day, become too heavy a burden for it to bear."

Of the author's scholarship there can be no question. If he follows the lines laid down by former textual critics, he adds little to them. His case does not rest on texts, but on a broad historical judgment. When he denies a unique mental capacity to the Speaker of the Sermon on the Mount—sees nothing original in the Christianity of the Gospel—regards historical Christianity as something that Christ "neither foresaw . . . nor desired"—he expresses opinions that every reader can weigh for himself. In effect, he is a literary, or historical, critic of the New Testament. His views differ radically, not merely from what orthodox Christianity teaches, but from the judgment of many rationalists before him. Are there not testimonies of many unbelievers that the figure of the Redeemer, and His utterances, are unlike anything else in history—a phenomenon to admire, if not to explain?

The Angler's Week-end Book

The Angler's Week-End Book. By Eric Taverner and John Moore. London: Seeley Service. 8/6 net.

MESSRS. TAVERNER and MOORE have produced, "in the name of the sound of running water," something quite new in angling literature. In this volume entertainment and instruction go hand in hand; an opulent anthology of angling prose and verse is presented, together with a wealth of practical, as well as some unusual and welcome, information. Many passages from angling writers of the past and present are quoted. With the inclusion of passages from "A treatyse of fysshynge wyth an angle"—one setting out in quaint style the "twelve manere of ympedymentes whyche cause a man to take noo fysshe"—the authors bring us back more than one hundred and fifty years before the appearance of Walton's "Compleat Angler"—from which, of course, many quotations also appear. Among living and recent authors of works on fishing lore from whom passages are quoted are Patrick Chalmers, Eric Parker, H. G. Nall, Zane Grey, Lord Grey of Falloden, Sir Herbert Maxwell, R. B. Marston and many others.

Separate chapters on the fisherman's bird, flowers, flies, and weeds, with another on the fisherman's inn, all delightfully presented, bring us to sections on boat and coracle management, useful knowledge, hints and recipes, fish cookery, and the fishery laws. A glossary of fishing terms; a dictionary of angling terms in English, German, French and Norwegian, and a list of angling writers and their works; an angler's and fly-fisher's "Who's Who," and a complete record of the heaviest individual specimens of the different species of British and foreign fresh-water fish landed up to date, are some of the other subjects of a most attractive book.

Wealth, Currency and Consumption

A Plan for the Free State

National Economic Recovery. An Outline Plan. Dublin: The Talbot Press. 1/- net.

MONEY, and monetary organisation, must be judged primarily by the way they work. And neither is working well just now. The "experts" on such matters seem to be as much at sea as the "fools" who rush in with suggestions. Yet, when money and monetary systems are to be investigated, as in our own country at present, recourse is had mainly to the very experts who have hitherto failed to make the system work satisfactorily. Satisfactorily; perhaps, they have made it work satisfactorily enough from their own viewpoint, and from their own side. But there are few people in the world to-day who believe that the currency and financial systems throughout the world need serious attention and radical alteration. The author of this excellent little book is one of those who believe that money must be controlled by and for the community.

Expanding Consumption

The author begins by stating categorically, and illustrating his statement by a series of diagrams, that "of the progressive economic decline of the Irish Free State there can be little doubt." "To diagnose the malady which is the root cause of our economic troubles is not difficult," he says. "It can be summed up in a few words. Every country requires expanding markets for its growing production. It cannot get them at home, because the monetary system restricts purchasing power, and, therefore, consumption, at home, and it cannot get them abroad because the same system has led to the same conditions there also. In common with other countries Ireland can produce real wealth in abundance if there is a market, but already a considerable part of our production can neither be sold at home nor exported abroad." The way out is to expand consumption at home: an obvious way, and one that will surely commend itself to a large and under-supplied section of our population.

Development Bonds

To do this an Economic Development Commission should be set up at once, and the Currency Commission should be given the necessary authority to issue legal tender notes, and to accept in return bonds free of interest from the Development Commission. These bonds may be redeemed at such time and in such manner as the Development Commission may decide. The currency issued to the Development Commission is to be used almost exclusively for wealth production in the most real and widest sense, and it should be issued at such times and in such quantities as the Development Commission may require.

The Unemployed an Asset

With this money the Development Commission would at once proceed to the utilisation of all the resources of the community, whether those resources be in unemployed human labour or in the physical conditions of the country. Land would be reclaimed, bogs drained and rivers canalised, houses would be built, forests planted, and a hundred and one other aspects of real wealth—real property—would be made much more valuable and infinitely more useful. The unemployed would change from a liability to an asset, and an outlet would be found for the work of the thousands of young people who are coming every year from schools to a glutted labour market. It is a grand vision, and a vision that contains nothing either preposterous or impossible in its realisation.

Experiment

In a small country with only three million people any kind of economic experiment is possible, and what succeeded in the famous case of Guernsey Market House would in all probability succeed equally well in the Irish Free State. Anyhow, some nation must make a beginning with a new currency and financial system, and it may as well be Ireland. Ireland could do it without unduly ruffling the financial system of the great international trading nations, or disturbing the world unnecessarily. It might be said that this is the idea of an "impossible" person; but Mr. H. G. Wells has just been pointing out that "irresponsible people have always shown a greater curiosity and enterprise in these questions of human relationship than the expert." This book may not be the work of an "expert," but it undoubtedly is the work of one who has thought deeply and studied widely. It is a book that will stimulate the imagination, and if only for that reason it deserves a wide circulation and a very careful reading. It is a subject that should be discussed by our legislators when they have time.

The Pursuit of Speed

Sir Malcolm Campbell's Story

My Thirty Years of Speed. By Sir Malcolm Campbell. London: Hutchinson. 18s. 6d. net.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL runs true to form in his autobiography. He is just as unassuming in his book as he is in real life. The quality helps to make a thrilling story also pleasant, and, as Sir Malcolm enjoys a certain skill in the mechanics of writing, the result is a thoroughly satisfactory book. He has plenty to tell, and there has been no attempt to "pad out" any of his adventures. He is generous with praise for his rivals, and, if he omits to mention who won some of the races in which he took part, he forbears likewise to dwell upon his own performances. In the later portion of the book, indeed, one gets the impression that track and road racing had very little interest for Sir Malcolm. It was the world's land speed record that mattered, and failure or success at Brooklands, in Ulster, or the Phœnix Park was of little account.

Campbell is the son of a London diamond merchant. Up to the time when he left the City he was an insurance broker at Lloyds, and in this book he tells us that he was the originator of insurance for newspapers against libel actions. He and another enthusiast built an aeroplane about the year 1909. It cost Campbell £800, and, after flying a few feet, the craft was sold for £22. He raced motor cycles and cars at Brooklands, and in 1912 used his first Blue Bird, named after Maeterlinck's play. Then came the War, in which he served first in the Royal West Kents, and later in the Royal Flying Corps. As a ferry pilot he had some uncanny adventures. The gods certainly were on his side when, gliding through thick fog with a dead engine and expecting to crash in the sea or on the rocks, he actually came down at the Calais Aerodrome.

300 Miles an Hour

Since the War Sir Malcolm has pursued the world's speed record, and, having caught it, has gone on raising it higher. The last words in his autobiography are: "I know that 300 m.p.h. is possible, and I know that Blue Bird can do the speed. When opportunity offers we will try again." He has suffered the most atrocious ill-luck. When he broke the record at Fanoe in 1923 the International Sporting Commission refused to recognise it, since the Dansk Club's timing apparatus had not previously received approval. When he was ready to attack the record at Verneuk Pan, in South Africa, where there had been no rain for five years, a storm broke, and next morning there were six inches of water in the lake bed.

In between his motor racing Campbell has hunted for pirate treasure on Cocos Island and for gold in Africa. He has been captured by the Riffs, and has had other strange adventures.

In Persia To-day

Persia: Romance and Reality. By O. A. Merritt-Hawkes. London: Ivor Nicholson and Watson. 18/- net.

PERSIA is the land of woman's servitude. Revolt is coming. The stimulus to freedom is—the cinematograph! So Mrs. Merritt-Hawkes tells, in her interesting book of observations made in Persia; the spectacle of women receiving polite homage, as depicted by the American film, has made Persian women envious and discontented. In Teheran there is a "cinema-school," which an enthusiastic Armenian conducts. Short films of Persian life have been made under Russian direction.

At Ispahan the author attended a meeting of the Poetry Club. Turns were taken in the reading of modern poems, all imitations of the Persian classics; and an artist lamented that poetry was not modernised, as in Europe. The club gave talks on hygiene. "It is good to be a poet, but better to be a clean poet," said one member, newly acquainted with soap. May we recommend this dictum, and the hygiene lecture, to imitation where it is needed? All members thanked the Englishwoman for her presence. "We will tell our women," said one. "They are interested in European clothes, but now we can say European ladies like poetry as well as dresses."

In Julfa Mrs. Merritt-Hawkes "saw the loveliest piece of material in Persia—a skirt of brilliant, deep-rose velvet on an old woman. It was torn and mended, old but glorious, making everything, even the Persian sky, faded and lifeless."

From a mediæval Persian author this story is quoted:—

> Three poor men were travelling in a desert when they met a rich man who gave them a piece of silver money. What should they buy with it?
> The Arab said, "I want Enab." The Turk said, "I want Uzum." The Persian said, "I want Angoor." And they all began an argument which ended in a fight. Just as blood was beginning to be shed, a dervish came by and asked the cause of the quarrel. They explained that each wanted something different with the pieces of silver.
> "Oh fools," said the dervish. "You all want the same thing, grapes, but because you belong to different nations and speak different languages you have forgotten that you are brothers with a common desire."

New Novels

Polycarp's Progress. By Victor Canning. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

Gone to Ground. A Sporting Decameron. By T. H. White. Collins. 7/6 net.

JOHN POLYCARP JARVIS was a young man with no parents, no money, an adventurous spirit, and an inexhaustible flow of conversation. Mr. Victor Canning tells how he found fame and fortune. On his twenty-first birthday he discovers suddenly that he can stand his office no longer, and after a speech to his employer which leaves that unfortunate wholly bewildered and convulsed with rage, Polycarp sets out on his own. His first job is with the Red Dragon Company, driving one of their long-distance omnibuses. Eventually, however, he misses a turning on one trip, and brings his incensed passengers to a lonely spot on the downs. He excuses himself by telling them that he brought them to look at the dawn; but loses his job. His next venture is as a seller of patent medicine, and then, in conjunction with an ex-R.A.F. pilot, he sets up an aeroplane joy-riding company. This is a success, until they bomb a town with flour bags in the course of a carnival. Up to this point the book is very entertaining, indeed; but now Polycarp is taken up by a big business man, buys a newspaper, and becomes a big business man himself. His subsequent exploits are a little too improbable to be amusing; but the novel is well worth reading for those first wild adventures.

The end of "Earth Stopped," one of last year's most amusing novels, finds all the people concerned awaiting death on the hunting-field when the war breaks out which ends the world. "Gone to Ground" reprieves them; for they find refuge in the subterranean residence of Facey Romford and Soapey Sponge. Here they fall to story-telling as the world crumbles overhead. If the result is somewhat disappointing it is the fault rather of the machinery of the book than the stories in it. Mr. Marx, the Countess of Scamperdale, Mary Springwheat, and the rest were amusing in the earlier book. In the links between the stories of this one they become tedious, and it is questionable whether the revival of the Surtees characters justifies itself. The stories themselves show great versatility. Some slight, some piquant, they are all a little mannered, and one or two may be found too macabre for most tastes. Mr. White's humour has an increasingly sharp edge, but it seems that he has yet to write the book which shall set it off to best advantage.

If She is Wise. By Sarah Crampton. Davies. 7s. 6d. net.

Wigs on the Green. By Nancy Mitford. Thornton Butterworth. 7s. 6d. net.

Vestal Virgin. By Arthur Meeker, Jun. Stanley Paul. 7s. 6d. net.

THIS is a first novel of really outstanding talent, dealing with the petty jealousies and eternal squabbles of life in a girls' school. It is concerned wholly with the staff of the school—an American one of no distinction—and their strange friendships and enmities. Emily Nasmyth has no illusions about her life, and she is constantly at loggerheads with Circassia Rhys, surely one of the strangest characters ever invented by a novelist. Rosy Palfret, the new teacher, arrives, and is pursued by Circassia to the amusement of Emily. The account of this campaign is an extremely cruel, but most amusing, exposé of the ways of women in the herd. Eventually Circassia goes mad, and Emily becomes a governess to some German children. She carries on an unsatisfactory affair with their father, "the stolidly colourless Hermann," but we leave her lying on the "warm turf of Tents-muir," Rome in Fife, deciding she is sufficient unto herself.

"Wigs on the Green" is almost exactly what one would expect from one of the more successful modern English novelists of the rising generation. There is a familiar slickness of wit about it, a slightly fantastic note, a more heavily satirical one, and a collection of characters who drink to excess and make love with complete insincerity. There is even the charming, young, but worthless and unscrupulous, young man who is the standby of every humorous writer. The story deals with queer doings in an English village, the Union Jackshirts, two young men in search of an heiress, a pageant, an asylum for mad peers, which is built as a replica of the House of Lords, and wherein legislative business is conducted, and an old lady representing the decayed landed gentry of England. It is an amusing trifle, and nothing more.

* * *

In "Vestal Virgin" the author of "Strange Capers" gives us a chronicle novel whose period stretches from the 'seventies of last century to the present day, and whose geography extends from Bavaria to Hollywood. In the early chapters we see Marie Lange, a minor soprano in a small itinerant opera troupe, achieving her artistic ambition without spoiling her natural homeliness. Twenty years later her daughter Mirianal becomes a famous diva, at whose feet the musical world, and royalty itself, lay homage and jewels. The third generation is represented by Nanetta, whose kingdom is of the contemporary world. Her hosts are film kings, not mere grand dukes. "Vestal Virgin" is an interesting novel of a singer's devotion to her art.

Road of Ages. By Robert Nathan. Constable. 7/6 net.

Love and the Lieutenant. By Robert W. Chambers. Appleton-Century. 7s. 6d. net.

MR. ROBERT NATHAN imagines a general expulsion of the Jews from Europe and America. From the cities and countries where they had established their homes they make another great exodus, lacking no shade of the colour, no element of the tragedy of the Biblical account. "The Jews were going into exile," trekking across Europe to seek refuge in the Gobi Desert because Palestine had been closed against them. In the long train went men and women of every class, every clime, every age, every opinion. With them they brought all their racial characteristics, their acquired qualities, their virtues, their faults, their loves and their hates, their unions and their divisions. Capitalist and wage-slave, professions, traders, financiers, the Arts, Communists, Socialists, neutrals, the young and the old, the strong and the decrepit, the lustful, the ascetic, civilian and soldier, birth, death, peace, war, taking and giving in marriage—all were represented in the exodus, even to pathos and quiet, ironical humour. Some of Mr. Nathan's child studies in this book are among the best of their kind, and the whole has a style, a passion, a delicacy which take this novel out of the common rut.

Mr. Robert Chambers has found yet another thrilling period in history for the subject of his latest, highly coloured romance. This time he is concerned with the mercenary troops raised by England in Germany to take part in the American War of Independence. A lively American girl works in Germany as propaganda agent against the unpopular recruiting. She is suspected by the headstrong young Captain Seadrift, who, unfortunately for himself, falls in love with this enemy of his country; and the oft-told story of the conflict between duty and love follows. In addition, there are many stirring tales of the actual war in America, culminating in a vivid picture of the Battle of Saratoga.

G.F.S. COUNTRY FAIR

The opening ceremony of the Girls' Friendly Society Fair was performed on the third day by Mrs. Shannon, President of the Girls' Friendly Society in Dublin Diocese, who thanked all present for the work they had done. The Dean of St. Patrick's Cathedral occupied the chair, and spoke warmly of the Girls' Friendly Society and of the great success and usefulness of the Oak House, the headquarters of the Society in Ireland.

The Fair will close to-night at 10 o'clock, but the dancing in the Covered Courtyard will be from 8.30-11 p.m. The bands of the 1st and 14th Dublin Companies of the Boys' Brigade will play at intervals, and other attractions will be children's sports, an Irish play and Irish dancing.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

The University of Dublin yesterday conferred honorary degrees on Sir Frederick Kenyon, Professor G. T. Morgan, Professor T. H. Milroy, and Sir Norman Walker.—(Page 9.)

Yesterday was the fifth day of the Longford murder trial. Evidence was given of the movements of some of the accused men on the night of the shooting.—(Page 4.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Early yesterday morning a railway guard discovered a couple, both of whom were shot dead, in a railway carriage at Southampton. The identity of the man was established as that of J. J. Keyes, of Castleview, Ferns, Co. Wexford.—(Page 9.)

ABROAD

Eight persons were killed when a 'plane crashed and set fire to a block of flats in Berlin.—(Page 9.)

SPORTING

At Newmarket yesterday Shining Tor won the Waterbeach Handicap.—(Page 12.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were irregular, and the only feature was selective buying of some Industrials.—(Page 14.)

The Treasury bill rate was 12s. 6d. per cent., compared with 12s. 1½d. per cent. last week. Gold was unchanged, and £281,000 was sold.—(Page 14.)

Dublin Market was dull. Guinness units, Great Northern Ord., Dublin Tram, and Alliance Gas were easier. Munster and Leinster Bank shares rose sharply.—(Page 14.)

Child Torture

Among the reforms which have been undertaken by Mr. Stanley Baldwin's new Administration is that of public education. The Minister has announced in Parliament that he intends to give special attention to the bodily welfare of the children of Britain. Fresh provision will be made for physical training, and there will be "after-school" care of the young people. We hope that Britain's example will not pass unheeded in Ireland. Reforms in England in this matter, as in many others, point to measures of prevention that are within Ireland's happier competence. Too often we mistake for progress the very developments that England rues—we raise jerry-built suburbs and hygienic tenements just as England did in the days of mistaken growth, and lay up for ourselves the problems with which England now desperately grapples. In the matter of the health of the race we have an advantage which we easily may lose. Most of our young folk are the children of country folk, and live near the fields, or in them. Most of England's are city-bred of several generations. The physique of that stalwart England which Emerson admired—as he tells in his essays on "English Characteristics"—is gone; how long will the physique that gives us Ireland's tall policemen, her sportsmen, her farmers and fishermen endure? The decision rests in the schools. It is not excessive to say that a strain is laid on the young by school conditions which tells mightily against their bodily welfare. Former generations knew nothing of it. The giants of the countryside who are depicted in William Carleton's invaluable pages, and those harvesters whom Young described, dancing all night after labouring all day—these strong ones were unschooled. Those who were literate got their learning at their own costs, studying at some teachers' feet in open air. The race as a whole knew nothing in childhood of confinement, day after day, in close schools.

Illiteracy, of course, is not a boon; but it would be well for legislators to get out of their heads the notion that the illiterate needs must be ignorant. Children who got no book-learning, but learnt the craft of the land in the best of schools—practical experience in the field, side by side with their wise elders—got what they most needed for their calling, and preserved their health. Book-learning need not be grudged to any class, but it is a mistaken kindness that forces it, in the measure of long, dreary hours, on those who need little of it and lose what is more valuable to them when they are required to learn much. In the outcome the long, compulsory school hours are wasted. The pupils forget speedily what they have learned without desire—the capital of Kamchatka and the whereabouts of Timbuktu. In order to satisfy the fetish of "universal, compulsory and free education," therefore, we deny to the masses a direct training for life; we force tender children to trudge miles to school, with no food in their little frames save tea and bread; to sit in a class dully attending to unnecessary subjects, and then to drag their unnourished bodies home over the same miles to get their first real meal in the evening. Home lessons add to the strain on the starved nerves. Pupils of the class that needs book-learning, who approach their studies with zest, are kept back by the weight of unwilling students around them. Thus, striving to teach all, we educate none. Our humble class is possessed of a universal smattering, but has fewer and fewer of those fine old country scholars who were well-founded in what they knew, took a keen, intelligent interest in affairs, and were the grave, acknowledged, natural leaders of their fellows. For this calamitous end we are breaking the health of the race, and glorying in the belief that we are in the van of progress. In truth, this is Gadarene progress, and the error in primary education is followed in the secondary.

The programme laid before our secondary schools seems to have been devised by persons whose notion of education is simply the passing of examination tests. During the last few months children have been "crammed" for the Intermediate and Leaving Certificates in a manner that cries to Heaven. It is no uncommon thing for boys and girls to be kept at the desk from morning until ten and eleven o'clock at night, until, with smarting eyes and tortured brain, they desist from study through utter exhaustion. When the results appear in September we will see the schools which have been most ruthless rewarded with a melancholy distinction; they will have long lists of pupils who have passed with honours, but only at the cost of mens sana in corpore sano. Any business man or industrialist can testify that never was the standard of real education lower. Young people who have been tortured through examinations are as full of rules, dates and facts as a Christmas turkey is full of stuffing; but hardly any of them can compose a grammatical letter or give an intelligent answer to a question in general knowledge. Many wear the coveted Fáinne; few can write correct Irish. Liberal culture hardly exists. University degrees are conferred on students who answer correctly question papers in history that they have learned by rote, and, when their general education is considered, it is found that they never have read a novel by Scott or by Dickens. When was taste in literature and the arts more crude? When were the graces of good manners neglected more contemptuously? It would be well if the present incubus of programmes were thrown aside and moderate and liberal curricula were adopted, with no forcing of the unwilling. Let learning become once more a matter of enthusiasm, and it will be worthy of its name.

Tension in the East

Abject apologies from the Kuomintang—the Chinese Nationalist Party—have followed the latest Japanese complaints. A few days ago, a Chinese weekly newspaper published some matter that was regarded as an insult to the Japanese Emperor, and the Japanese population in Shanghai took such deep offence that the Foreign Office decided on firm steps. It demanded the dismissal of a high Chinese official, the abolition of the Kuomintang headquarters in Shanghai, the suppression of the Chinese Fascist Party in the city, and a formal apology from the Chinese Government itself. The Kuomintang, by their full recantation, may have avoided the enforcement of the other demands, which must strike every outside observer as so peremptory as to be almost unique in the dealings of one sovereign nation with another. Yet it must be remembered that similar demands were made on China only a few weeks ago. Apparently there was cause for complaint just south of the new border of Manchukuo, and the Japanese, while making their protest, backed it up by a threat that the "demilitarised zone" would be extended forcibly unless their terms were met. In both cases the Chinese authorities have shown the greatest eagerness to fall in with the views of Japan, and, no doubt, their attitude has been wise. Bitter experience, ending in the loss of Manchuria, has taught China that she cannot afford to quarrel. In the tangle of Eastern politics it is hard to discover the rights and wrongs of these complaints, but it does appear that Japan feels herself strong enough to enforce her will upon China. She may be satisfied with the latest addition to her Empire, but her attitude within the last few weeks lays her open to the suspicion that she may be making exorbitant demands in the hope that China at last may refuse to meet them, and may give her an excuse to resort to arms. For the moment, at any rate, there is peace, and the settlement of the Shanghai affair coincides with an easing of the tension on the Russian border. For some time past the Soviet Government has been protesting against the alleged violation of its frontier by Japanese or Manchukuan troops. These incidents probably are due to a difference of opinion on the limits of the new State of Manchukuo, and it has been agreed to set up a joint Commission to inquire into them. There is no reason to imagine that the problem will cause any trouble—particularly in view of the fact that neither Japan nor Russia is ready to fight the other at the moment—but it draws attention to a situation which may cause trouble in future unless it is handled with care. The stronger Japan becomes on the continent of Asia, the more carefully will Russia watch her, and the strengthening of her defences in Eastern Siberia shows that she has no intention of being caught unawares.

The Toll of the Road

There is one good thing about the smallness of the Free State's "car population"; it means fewer road accidents. The number of fatal accidents on the Free State's roads, indeed, is surprisingly low; and, while she loses one of the chief advantages of modern progress—rapid transport—she may congratulate herself on her comparative lack of its deadly accompaniment. Nevertheless, she is by no means immune from the evil which has afflicted many other nations so cruelly. Civic Guard statistics, which we publish to-day, show that there were 688 road accidents of one sort or another in the Saorstát during the three months ending in last March, as compared with 572 in the corresponding quarter of last year; and of this number 44, as compared with 33, resulted in death, while the list of persons injured, whether seriously or slightly, rose from 601 to 709. It is all very well to say, on reading these figures: "Look at London." However small they may be, they are still too large; and it must be a principal aim of the law—or, better, of education—not merely to reduce, but to abolish, this toll of the roads. Only experience—bought, unhappily, at the highest of prices—can show how the law can play its part to the best advantage. There are authorities who contend that a low speed limit is the surest of all safeguards; others insist that nothing leads to more certain calamity than a legally imposed speed limit. Until one side or the other can prove its case to the hilt, it is not our place to be dogmatic on the subject of speed limits, or of any of the elaborate precautions that are taken in most modern States. In the last analysis, carelessness remains the chief cause of road accidents—carelessness on the part not only of the rider or driver, but on the part of the pedestrian; and, while it is still possible to ride or to walk without due regard to safety, not all the legislative safeguards in the world will effect any real improvement.

Racing Waiters

One of the three thousand things which annually drive Parisians wild with excitement is the notorious race for waiters, held in and around the purlieus of Montmartre. Once a year the waiters—a carefully chosen group—rush all over the city carrying trays, glasses, and a conviction that this will be the end of them. It now seems that New York wants to include such a contest in its list of sporting fixtures for the year; for last Wednesday a certain heavy-weight boxer organised a race round the block for forty-two waiters, dressed in white summer suits. No one will be surprised that a heavy-weight boxer is at the bottom of it all. Anyone in the heavy-weight class who has boxed in America, who is about to box in America, or who conceivably may be induced to box in America, must pay careful attention to what we may describe as his general glamour. Now the city of New York is accustomed, more or less, to ladies in tights swinging from one side of the street to the other on a pulley held in their teeth; but it upset the citizens profoundly to see waiters flashing past with the necessities of life at a hand-gallop. In the first place, it was fundamentally unlike a waiter to move so swiftly; and, secondly, the citizenry could not imagine who might have wanted one so urgently as to issue so rushed a "rush order." As the race proceeded, however, we feel sure, the good people of New York overcame their timidity, and many a panting waiter disappeared into an alleyway, to emerge a moment or two later without his burden. The result of the race was that the boxer gained his measure of publicity; but we do not like to contemplate the effect which the contest had upon the entrants. It may have filled them to a dangerous degree with the lure of speed. In the days to come Machinegun Schnitz will order his glass of Bourbon, and, before he knows what has happened, his waiter will be off up the street like a shell, getting up the requisite velocity for the rush to the bar, and back to Machinegun Schnitz. If Machinegun Schnitz fails to fill the waiter with lead, suspecting a plot, we will be surprised.

LONDON LETTER

BRITAIN AND ABYSSINIA

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE possibility that Great Britain may take further steps to induce any country to join her in proposing that the League of Nations shall take economic sanctions against Italy is receding. There are still several weeks before the Council of the League will meet, and, as it is apparent that France is reluctant to enter into any sanctions, it is not easy to see how Great Britain alone can persevere. In addition, before the Government can come to a decision in any way it will have to consult the Governments of the Dominions, and an assurance to this effect has already been given. A very important point at the moment is whether France has given Italy a free hand in Abyssinia. Information at the Foreign Office does not encourage such a definite view, but at the same time it is felt that the key to a very difficult situation is in Paris, as Italy will give more attention to France than to any other country.

Air Strength

Early next week a supplementary estimate will be issued by the Government to meet the cost of the preliminary stages of the great air expansion programme. It is expected that the sum needed will be about five million pounds, this being necessary to pay for the services of the personnel, the acquiring of land for aerodromes, and the manufacture of aeroplanes. The total sum necessary during the next five years to bring the Royal Air Force to the strength of that of any other Power "within striking distance" will probably amount to fifty million pounds. This depends, however, on a number of circumstances, including the possibility of arranging an air pact for Western Europe. The estimate will provide occasion for a debate in the House of Commons before Parliament adjourns for the recess.

Labour and Unemployment

The Labour vote of censure on the Government for "its failure to produce a considered plan to cope with unemployment" takes place on Tuesday. On this occasion there will be a strong electioneering flavour about the debate, and the attack will be led by Mr. Arthur Greenwood and Sir Stafford Cripps. Much will be heard about the continuation of unemployment, though it is only a few years ago that the Labour Party professed to be the only party with a certain cure. The Prime Minister, who will reply, will be supported by Sir John Simon, who is to make his first big speech since he became Deputy-Leader of the House. It is unlikely that the Government will produce any spectacular policy on this occasion, since it believes that there is no wholesale solution for unemployment.

Air Raid Precautions

Local authorities are to have a series of conferences with representatives from the Home Office during the next few months, so that they may receive information at first hand regarding the arrangements to be made in the event of air raids. Much has been heard as to the possibility of providing air raid shelters, but it seems that the Government experts are not in favour of such a development, since shelters are not only extremely costly, but are likely to involve a dangerous panic in case of a raid. During the Great War the London tubes were much used as shelters during air raids, and it is understood that they may again take their part in the general scheme of protection.

Battleships

Unless a new naval agreement is arranged before the extended Washington Naval Treaty expires at the end of next year, the construction of large battleships by Great Britain appears to be inevitable, since increased building programmes are being arranged by all the principal naval Powers. France and Italy each have two battleships of 35,000 tons in hand, while the projected United States battleships will be the most powerful in the world. A noteworthy feature of the American vessels will be their great range of action, for they will carry about 7,000 tons of oil, an amount sufficient to enable them to make a voyage round the world without the necessity for refuelling.

Danish Bacon

The recent proposal to impose a levy next year on foreign imported bacon is the subject of sharp criticism in Denmark. The prominent trade daily, Boersen, characterises it as "not especially creditable to Great Britain. Great Britain has not given Denmark fair play in accordance with the terms of the present Anglo-Danish Trade Treaty." The newspaper adds: "The Danish public do not understand her behaviour. Denmark has fulfilled all her obligations under the Treaty, and it is not even necessary to prove that she has made greater concessions to Great Britain than the Treaty demands. Denmark has given Britain much more than she could afford, considering the extent to which she has been forced to economise recently." An Anglo-Danish Trade Treaty was concluded in 1933, by which Denmark was allowed to retain her existing share of the British bacon and butter market, on condition that she imported more coal, iron and steel from Great Britain. Since then British exports to Denmark have increased, whereas Danish exports to Britain, although still over twice as great as British exports, have fallen.

Lawrence of Arabia

Copies of letters written by Lawrence of Arabia are to be preserved until the year 2000. This plan was made known to-day in an appeal by his brother, Mr. A. A. Lawrence, to all who may possess letters written by Colonel Lawrence. He hopes eventually to edit and publish a selection, and the profits of this book will be devoted to purposes of which Lawrence himself approved, under the administration of a trust composed of Viscount Carlow, Colonel Alan G. C. Dawnay, the Hon. E. G. Eliot, and himself. Copies of all these letters not included in the published volume will be preserved in places where they will be accessible only to persons authorised by the trustees until the year 2000, after which date no restrictions will be imposed.

Domestic Servants

The Minister of Labour stated to-day that he proposes to refer to the Unemployment Insurance Statutory Committee the question whether private domestic service should be brought within the unemployment insurance scheme. In saying this he adds:—"I must not be taken as expressing any opinion whether the fact that private domestic servants are outside the scheme leads to a shortage of such employés." It had been suggested that the absence of a scheme was regarded as one of the contributory causes of the shortage of domestic employés.

Supplementary Estimates

A supplementary Civil Service estimate for £3,004,442 was issued to-day. The sum of £2,788,000 is required for the beet sugar subsidy, £130,000 for unemployment assistance allowances, £50,000 for India services, £22,000 for the herring industry, and £14,412 for the Treasury for repayments to the Civil Contingencies Fund. Supplementary estimates for 1935, for £3,395,000, have already been presented, and the present estimate brings the total asked for to £6,399,412. The amount for the India Office is to be devoted entirely to relief work at Quetta.

ITALY TO INCREASE NAVY

MILITARY UNDERSTANDING WITH FRANCE?

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION

DIVERTING ATTENTION FROM HOME DISTRESS

CERTAIN definite measures to increase the power of the Italian naval forces were taken yesterday at a meeting of Admirals, presided over by Signor Mussolini. The Admiralty Committee, which is the supreme consultative body of the Italian Navy, was convoked by Signor Mussolini on Wednesday for an extraordinary session. It was understood then that important matters in connection with a colonial expedition were discussed.

Doubt was expressed in Rome regarding a report that France had given approval to an Italian campaign in Abyssinia in so definite a form as to conclude a secret agreement on the subject. France is not expected to encourage such action, as it would weaken Italy's capacity to support her in Europe, and, in view of growing German armaments, Paris will naturally wish to avoid such a result.

The recent visit of General Gamelin, Chief of the French General Staff, to Rome, is believed to have resulted in some kind of military understanding regarding an exchange of facilities, such as the use of aerodromes and so on, in the event of attack. It is stated, however, that there was no signed agreement, and the intention was to guard against German aggression, rather than to leave Italy free to concentrate her forces on Abyssinia.

Italy's action in Abyssinia, said Sir George Paish, at the General Council of the League of Nations Union, at Cambridge yesterday, was the direct result of the financial and economic distress of Italy. Mussolini was endeavouring to divert the attention of the Italian people from their own suffering by military action. The action of Mussolini in Abyssinia would tend to destroy confidence, instead of promoting it.

RED SEA ISLAND FORTIFICATIONS

PARIS, Friday.

No secret treaty between France and Italy with regard to Abyssinia exists, Reuter understands.

What is a fact is that M. Laval, when in Rome last January, informed Signor Mussolini that France would disinterest herself economically in Abyssinia, apart from the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway and its immediate zone. The British Government was informed of this assurance.

Nothing, however, was said in Rome of the territorial or political aspects of the Abyssinian question.

There is the tale of feverish fortification of the Red Sea island of Dumeira by the Italians. Prior to the Rome agreement of January 7th this islet was a no-man's land. It was neither French nor Italian. When the frontier was drawn some fifteen miles southward to Der Elousa, Dumeira became Italian because it was now in Italian territorial waters.

The rumour that the Italians are fortifying the island is greeted in French quarters with complete incredulity.

In regard to Franco-British diplomatic conversations on Abyssinia, the French have hitherto made no concrete proposal. On the other hand, French diplomatic quarters are still sanguine that a formula will be found which Signor Mussolini can ultimately accept and which will avert a war, which is considered here as incalculably dangerous.

TURNED DOWN

ABYSSINIAN PLEA REJECTED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

The United States, in a reply to the Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia, agreed upon by President Roosevelt and Mr. Cordell Hull (Secretary of State), has, in effect, rejected Ethiopia's plea that the United States should invoke the Kellogg Pact.

The aim of the Emperor's plea was to obtain a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

In a quick reply to the Emperor's appeal sent through the United States Chargé d'Affaires in Addis Ababa, the United States has made it clear that it would take no immediate, if any, part in the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia.

The United States Note said that the Government was "gratified" that the League of Nations "has given its attention to the controversy." The Note added that America would be "loath to believe" that either Italy or Ethiopia would seek to settle the dispute by other than pacific means.

SUEZ CANAL

The legal aspect of the question of the eventual closing of the Suez Canal as a measure of pressure against Italy has, Reuter understands, been examined by international jurists at Geneva.

It was held that the statute of the Suez Canal Company would not allow the Canal to be closed to any belligerent national, but under Article 20 of the Covenant the members of the League severally agreed that this Covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations which are inconsistent with the terms thereof. It was, therefore, recognised that, if the Council declared an embargo of arms to Somaliland and Eritrea, it would be within its competence to order the examination of all ships passing through the Canal and the seizure of all cargoes coming within the scope of the ban.

AIMED AT BRITAIN?

BERLIN, Friday.

The decision to increase the efficiency of Italy's fleet has made a profound impression in Germany. No doubt is entertained either in official or in political circles that it is a measure principally aimed at British diplomacy and an immediate consequence of the position from the Abyssinian dispute.

It is not thought that Germany is immediately concerned in any way by the Italian move, and official quarters are disposed to take a calm view of a situation which they regard as serious, but in no way hopeless.

ONE THOUSAND HOMES DESTROYED

FIRE IN INDIAN CITY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NATHIA GALI (N.W. FRONTIER), Friday.

The Indian quarter of Abbottabad, chief city of Nazarra district and headquarters of an infantry brigade, was gutted by a fire which raged for seven hours to-day. At least 1,000 homes were destroyed.

Owing to shortage of water and the absence of fire-fighting service the blaze got out of control, and at one time threatened the whole city. Troops were rushed from the cantonment and tried to limit the blaze by blowing up buildings.

PUNISHMENT WITHOUT LAW

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

The principle of "no penalty without a law," which forms the basis of all Western legal systems, has been abolished at one stroke from the German criminal code under amendments designed to bring that code into conformity with Nazi principles. Under those amendments, an act is punishable when it deserves punishment.

EX-KING IN CAR SMASH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LEGHORN, Friday.

Ex-King Alfonso of Spain and an aide-de-camp were slightly injured to-day when their car got out of control owing to a puncture and overturned, near Follinico, a seaside resort. The ex-King received a slight cut on the forehead and the aide-de-camp injured his shoulder.

They received first aid on the spot and then proceeded in another car to visit a detachment of four British destroyers of the Second Division which are on a visit from Malta.

TRADE UNIONS' RIGHTS

ROOSEVELT SIGNS U.S. BILL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

President Roosevelt to-day signed the Wagner Labour Disputes Bill. After appending his signature he made the following statement:

"This Act defines as part of our substantive law the right of the self-organisation of employés in industry for the purpose of collective bargaining, and provides methods whereby the Government can safeguard the legal right. Better relationship between labour and management is the high purpose of this Act"

PLANS FOR RETURN OF HAPSBURGS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VIENNA, Friday.

Ex-Empress Zita is to spend part of the summer at Reichenau, in Lower Austria, at the castle where she lived for a long time with the late Emperor. The Archduke Otto, heir to the Austrian Throne, will not be with his mother. Her other children, however, will accompany her, according to a newspaper report.

It is reliably reported that the Austrian Government will grant the Hapsburg family an annual income of £35,000 as compensation for property, which for various reasons cannot be returned to them.

FINANCE BILL PASSED

The House of Commons yesterday passed the third reading of the Finance Bill by 163 votes to 11. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in concluding his speech, said that in spite of the Labour Party's efforts to damp the spirits of the country "the outlook remained persistently and doggedly favourable."

FOUND SHOT IN TRAIN

IRISHMAN AND A GIRL

GUARD'S DISCOVERY AT SOUTHAMPTON

A YOUNG Irishman and a girl, who had recently returned home from South Africa, yesterday were found shot in a first-class compartment of the midnight train from Waterloo to Southampton.

They were John Joseph Keyes, aged 28, of Castle View, Ferns, Co. Wexford, a writer, employed in the purser's office of the liner Arundel Castle, and Miss Emily Mary Jarvis, aged 24, of Pine View, Burlesdon, Hants.

The discovery was made at Southampton terminus railway station when the train arrived at about 2 a.m. yesterday. A guard glanced through the half-drawn blinds of the compartment, and saw what he thought were the sleeping figures of a man and a woman.

He was joined by a railway cleaner, and the two men entered the carriage with the intention of awakening the couple. They then saw that there was blood on the woman's dress, and that there was a pistol lying on the seat beside the man.

Police were called, and, after investigations lasting for two hours, they satisfied themselves that there was no third party concerned in the shooting.

FOUR SHOTS FIRED

Four shots had been fired from the pistol. Two bullets had passed through the woman's body near the heart, and there were two bullets in the man's chest. The bodies were lying side by side on a seat. The couple had been dead about an hour.

Keyes and Miss Jarvis met on the Union Castle liner Winchester, on which Keyes was employed. Keyes stayed at a Southampton hotel after leaving his ship, and the girl used to visit him there. Yesterday Keyes was to have sailed on the Arundel Castle. He should have reported to his ship on Thursday, but he did not do so, and no message was received from him explaining his absence.

Miss Jarvis was the daughter of Mrs. Emily Jane Jarvis. Her father, Mr. Charles Jarvis, a mariner, is dead.

IDENTIFIED BY AUNT

Her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Annie Randall, who identified the body yesterday, told the police that her niece had been living in Johannesburg with her mother, and that they both came home at the beginning of March. Mrs. Randall said that the last time that she saw the girl alive was at 8.30 a.m. on Thursday, when she said that she was going to London with "Paddy."

The news of the death of Keyes was conveyed to his father and mother at Castle View, Ferns, Co. Wexford, by a Civic Guard sergeant yesterday. John Joseph Keyes, who has three brothers and one sister, crossed over to Ireland frequently to visit his father and mother. His friends have been greatly shocked by the news of his death.

The inquest will be opened at Southampton next Monday afternoon.

IRISH WEDDING IN LONDON

MR. C. E. KNIGHT AND MISS SHEILA KEANE

The marriage took place in St. Mary's Church, Bryanston square, London, of Mr. Christopher E. Knight and Miss Sheila Keane. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Knight, Hokworth, Lymington, Hants., and the bride is the daughter of Sir John and Lady Eleanor Keane, Cappoquin, County Waterford, and 46 Hamilton terrace, London.

The officiating clergyman was Canon H. A. Knight, uncle of the bridegroom.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a graceful gown of parchment satin, with a panel of embroidered lilies. Her tulle veil was held in place by a head-dress of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of auratum lilies.

Miss Cecilia Portal, Miss Myrtle Fletcher, Miss Diana Davidson and Miss Lucy Keane were the bridesmaids. Their powder blue frocks were lined with parchment crêpe. Each carried a bouquet of white roses and wore a powder blue net head-dress. The bridegroom's souvenir gifts were paste brooches.

Mr. Humphrey Gascoigne acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at 46 Hamilton terrace. The honeymoon will be spent in Devonshire.

Among the guests were:—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Knight, Mr. M. Knight, General and Mrs. H. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Knight, Miss K. A. Knight, Miss J. Knight, Canon H. A. Knight, Edith Lady Bradford, Colonel and Mrs. E. Bradford, Miss Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. G. Spicer, Miss P. Spicer, Bishop and Mrs. Fyfe, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Yorke Scarlett, Sir John and Lady Eleanor Keane, Mr. R. M. Keane, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Pegge, the Countess of St. Aldwyn, Lady Victoria Hicks-Beach, Lady Susan Hicks-Beach, Lady Mary Bridgeman, Captain and Lady Delia Llewelyn, Mrs. Hicks-Beach, Mr. and Lady Gordon Duff, Mr. Ellice Hicks Duff, Sir Archibald and Lady Flower, Captain and Mrs. George Keane.

MARRIAGE OF LADY ANN COLE

A LONDON CEREMONY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

The marriage took place at Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, to-day, of Mr. John Hastings James, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. F. James, and Lady Ann Florence Cole, eldest daughter of the Earl of Enniskillen, of Florence Court, Enniskillen, and Irene, Countess of Enniskillen.

The Rev. W. Marshall Selwyn officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of cream net. The sleeves were full and billowy, while the bodice had a high waist-line. A train of the net was arranged from the waist of the dress, and over this fell a veil of old Brussels lace, arranged first as a cap, and held by a loosely-formed wreath of orange buds. Instead of a bouquet she carried a prayer-book.

There were eight bridesmaids—Lady Frances and Lady Kathleen Cole (sisters of the bride), Miss Sonia Syers, Miss Urseula Kearsley, Miss Claudia Johnson, Miss Ursula Wyndham, Miss Helen Villiers (cousin of the bride), and Miss Ambrosine Phillpotts. Their dresses were of cream colour also, but of stiffened chiffon, the skirts being trimmed with frills at the hem. The bodices had short capes of the dress material, and at the waists were sashes falling in long ends of jade green shot silk. Each wore a wreath of green and gold leaves, and carried a bag of cream suede, the gifts of the bridegroom.

Mr. Edward Compton acted as best man.

After the ceremony the bride's mother held a reception at 1 Egerton Place, S.W.

Soviet Russia is to build sixteen huge aeroplanes, of the same size as the Maxim Gorky, the largest aeroplane in the world, which crashed with the loss of forty-seven lives on May 18th last.

The reconstruction of the railway wall which collapsed between Sandycove and Dun Laoghaire last week and nearly involved the Drumm Battery train in disaster, was begun yesterday by the employés of the railway company.

IRISH LAMBS IN BRITAIN

MEAT TRADERS' PROTEST

MEN THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

Representatives of the meat trade in Great Britain and Northern Ireland held a meeting in London to-day to protest against the present tariffs, which allow dead lambs to be imported into the British Isles from the Irish Free State at a cheaper rate than live lambs.

The organisations represented were the National Union of Distributive and Allied Workers, the Northern Ireland Butchers' Association, and the Manchester Meat Workers' Association.

It was decided to send a resolution to the Ministry of Agriculture and the Board of Trade, stating that the national meat traders desired to draw the attention of the Government to the unjust handicap on labour in Great Britain caused by the tariffs.

At the present time, the resolution stated, for every hundred lambs dressed in Ireland three men were put out of work for a week in Great Britain, and there was also a loss to shipping and railway services.

DRESSED IN THE FREE STATE

Alderman T. McLellan, National Organiser of the Union of Distributive and Allied Workers, said that recently there had been an increase in the number of lambs killed and dressed in the Irish Free State for the purposes of export to Great Britain. It had come to be regarded as a new industry, and English traders felt there was need for some little adjustment to give them back the employment which they had lost. The extent of this importation, he said, could be judged by the fact that at Smithfield alone about sixty-three tons were received weekly.

Mr. McLellan said that the tax on imported live lambs to England was 10s. each. Freightage and dock dues were 3s. 6d. and veterinary fees 1d., making a total of 13s. 7d. The dead carcase was only taxed at 10s. and the freightage was 1s., making a total of 11s. The Free State Government handed back to the Irish dealer 6s. 2d. on each case of 45lb. sold in England. For every 100 carcases imported, he added, three slaughtermen were displaced each week. It was true to say that the workers on both sides of the Channel were more or less suffering as a result.

A Manchester representative said that the number of carcases received there from the Free State averaged at least 200 a week.

DAIL SCENES

The Dail, after a session lasting from 10.30 yesterday morning until 12.5 this morning, will meet again to-day.

Lively scenes marked the close of the debate last night on the Committee stage of the Finance Bill, the Opposition protesting loudly against the decision to assemble again to-day until midnight, if necessary.

[Report on Page 10.]

A LABOUR T.D.'S SPEECH

TRADE UNION CONGRESS STATEMENT

A very serious view of the complaint lodged by the Dublin Trade Union Council regarding a speech by Mr. W. Davin, T.D., Leix-Offaly, was taken by the National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress, to whom the matter was referred. An official statement on the matter was issued yesterday by Mr. E. Lynch, Secretary to the Congress. In the course of this it is stated:—

"The National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress had under consideration at their meeting on the 4th July the statement read by Mr. William Davin, T.D., to the Catholic Truth Society Congress at Kilkenny on the 29th ult., and to which statement the attention of the National Executive was called by the Dublin Trade Union Council.

"The National Executive took a very serious view of the charge made by Mr. Davin, when he said: 'The control of the Unions by the paid officials was . . . . . . bound to lead to friction between sections of the organised workers, with consequent disturbance in industry. The recent tramway stoppage in Dublin and the consequential loss to both sides was a glaring example of that.'

"If this statement was not delivered from typescript it might be treated as a characteristic piece of febrile irresponsibility, but in view of its premeditation the National Executive must consider it a deliberate effort to injure the trade union movement.

"The National Executive, solicitous of the interests of the trade union movement, and desirous of defending the reputation of a number of honourable officials, who give loyal and faithful service, not alone to their Unions, but also to the principles of democracy, intend to sift these base and unfounded charges, which must even be proved or withdrawn in the same public manner in which they were made."

DEATH IN BANDON

ITINERANT STABBED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BANDON, Friday.

A fatal stabbing took place in a public-house in Shannon street to-night, the victim being Patrick Driscoll, a middle-aged "langler," whose home is at Dunmanway. In connection with the affair John Sheridan, of Kinsale, also of the itinerant class, was taken into custody. Sheridan is married to a relative of the dead man.

The men, with another itinerant, also named Driscoll and cousin of the dead man, were having a drink at the counter, when Sheridan is alleged to have drawn a knife and stabbed Driscoll, who collapsed at once, dying within five minutes.

THE WELWYN TRAIN ACCIDENT

The coroner's jury investigating the Welwyn train disaster on June 15, when fourteen lives were lost, yesterday found that the deaths were accidental, "owing to a temporary lapse of memory and error of judgment on the part of the Welwyn Garden City signalman."

A FRONTIER COMMISSION

RUSSIA AND JAPAN

CHINESE IN BORDER INCIDENT

DEMANDS ACCEPTED AT SHANGHAI

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TOKYO, Friday.

THE Soviet Union has accepted Japan's proposal for the organisation of a joint Soviet-Manchukuan-Japanese Frontier Commission to deal with frontier incidents.

M. Yurehev, the Soviet Ambassador here, who only last Monday handed over a strong note of protest on the recurrent frontier incidents, conveyed this news to the Japanese Foreign Minister, M. Hirota, to-day.

The details of the new organisation will be worked out in Tokyo. The idea of a Joint Commission is one that has been put forward by the Japanese for some time.

A party of one hundred Japanese troops is being rushed to the border region of Jehol, following a report that a detachment of General Sung Cheh-Yuan's Army has attacked and looted a Manchukuo frontier post, seriously injuring two guards.

General Sung, former Chinese Commander in Chahar Province, was dismissed by the Nanking Government, following the latest Japanese demands. The Japanese have demanded the withdrawal of all General Sung's troops from Chahar.

Serious developments of the Sino-Japanese situation in Shanghai, following the publication in a Chinese newspaper of an article alleged to be insulting to the Emperor, have been averted by the prompt action of the Central Publicity Committee of the Kuomintang in meeting Japanese requirements, says a Nanking telegram.

The Committee has ordered the dismissal of the officials of the Shanghai Publications Censorship Board pending a re-organisation, and has also instructed local Kuomintangs strictly to suppress the offending article.

The Mayor of Shanghai, General Wu Teh Chen, has tendered an apology to the Japanese.

THE LABOUR PARTY

A REGRETTABLE MISTAKE

In our issue of 7th June, 1935, we published, under the headings, "Legislators Secured," "A Labour Paradox," an account by our Special Representative of the proceedings in Dail Eireann on the occasion of a motion by Deputy Davin relating to the wages paid to workers on the Government forestry scheme.

Our account gave the names of five Labour deputies who voted for Deputy Davin's motion. The names of Deputy Michael J. Keyes and Deputy Timothy J. Murphy were omitted, and it might be inferred that they deliberately abstained from voting in favour of the motion. Our report, as published, was as follows:

> "Now, there are no two ways about this. If the Labour Party wanted the motion carried, involving as it did a matter of wages, and their leaders were prepared to go against the Government, why did not they themselves follow Deputy Norton into the Fine Gael Lobby? The result of the division is that certain forestry labourers will continue to live upon 22s. a week: and the Labour Leaders can honestly say that they voted against the continuance of this state of affairs."

The fact is, however, that the entire Labour Party, with the exception of one member who was absent in the country, did follow Deputy Norton into the lobby, and did vote for Deputy Davin's motion.

Deputy Michael J. Keyes and Deputy Timothy J. Murphy, whose names were omitted in our account, complain of this omission, and also say that our account, representing the Labour Party as not following their leader, Deputy Norton, on the occasion in question, is untrue, seeing that seven out of the eight members constituting that party, including Deputy Michael J. Keyes and Deputy Timothy J. Murphy, did vote with Deputy Norton.

Our account of the Labour Party's action was in error, and the suggestion that the Labour Party did not want the motion carried was entirely without foundation.

We withdraw the allegations against the Labour Party contained in our report, and we tender our regret to Deputy Michael J. Keyes, Deputy Timothy J. Murphy and the other deputies of the Labour Party for the mistake.

Our attention has been drawn to the matter by Mr. John S. O'Connor, solicitor, acting on behalf of Deputy Michael J. Keyes and Deputy Timothy J. Murphy.

'PLANE CRASH IN BERLIN

EIGHT PERSONS DEAD

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

EIGHT people were killed when an experimental aeroplane flying low to carry out wireless tests crashed into a block of flats in the suburbs of Berlin to-day.

Owing to the terrific force of the impact the petrol tank exploded, causing a jet of fire which seared its way through several flats until it reached a fireproof wall, and set the whole building alight.

Six of the dead were engineers and pilot of the machine. The other two were the caretaker of the flats and his wife, who were having lunch when they were caught by the flames.

Desperate attempts were made by panic-stricken flat-dwellers to escape the flames. One aged woman jumped with her grandchild from a window into the courtyard before the arrival of the fire-brigade with ladders. Both were seriously injured.

A few escaped by the stairs, and five others were caught in rescue sheets held by firemen.

The cause of the disaster has not yet been officially ascertained. The machine is officially stated to have dropped from a height of 900 feet.

Eye-witnesses declare that the 'plane was observed to get suddenly out of control, toss about, and then plunge earthwards with terrific force. The disaster occurred fifteen minutes after the 'plane had taken off from the aerodrome in the south-east of Berlin.

A POLICEMAN SHOT

ARMAGH BORDER AMBUSH

ASSAILANT ESCAPES IN DARKNESS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

NEWRY, Friday.

A SHOOTING affair, in which Constable Andrew McIlhagga, of the Newtownhamilton Customs Patrol, was fired on and wounded, occurred about two o'clock this morning in the townland of Skeriff, near the Border at Cullyhanna, South Armagh.

The patrol consisted of Sergeant Napier and Constables McIlhagga, Lowe and Todd. About two o'clock they noticed a man approaching with a calf.

They halted him for interrogation, when suddenly a revolver shot was fired from behind a hedge by another person, who had evidently been lying in ambush. The constable was hit beneath the heart, and collapsed.

The patrol did not return the fire, but speedily took cover, and the miscreant succeeded in making good his escape.

The members of the patrol afterwards assisted their wounded comrade to the barracks, from where he was removed to the County Armagh Infirmary.

It is understood that the wound, while serious enough, is not likely to prove fatal.

Following the outrage there was considerable police activity in the district, the operations being in charge of District-Inspector Kiernan and Head-Constable Kennedy, Bessbrook.

Constable McIlhagga, who is a native of Ballee, County Antrim, joined the R.U.C. in October, 1922, having previously served with the "A" Special Constabulary. He was stationed in Poyntzpass for a number of years, and, prior to going to Newtownhamilton, was stationed for three years in Lurgan. He is an ex-naval man.

A DECOY

It is understood that when the man with the calf drew level with the police, who were in ambush, Constable McIlhagga rose from behind a bush in a lane, locally known as McCaw's. Flashes of two shots were seen to come from the opposite side of the road about 30 yards away, and the constable collapsed in his tracks. The bullet, which is believed to have been fired from an automatic, entered the body two inches below the heart. The drover managed to escape in the darkness. It is stated, however, that the drover was not the man who fired the shots, but some other person who was with him and walking through the fields.

The wounded constable was attended on the roadside by Dr. Dawson, Newtownhamilton, and, after having his wound dressed, was removed to Armagh Infirmary, where he was operated upon.

It is locally held that the calf seized was sent across as a decoy in order to discover if the road was clear, so that a large drove could be smuggled across to Crossmaglen fair, which is being held to-day.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

MR. ROOSEVELT AND CONGRESS

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—There is no reason to imagine that Congress, which on many occasions has shown itself much more Radical than the President, has now suddenly changed its temper, and has become the obedient instrument of the influence behind the opposition to the Holding Companies Bill. Certainly no such conclusion is warranted by the difference between the House of Representatives and the President. It is common ground between them that the public interest demands a much more severe control of the public utility companies, and that such control is rendered difficult by the complicated way in which this business is organised and financed with holding companies, operating companies, and subsidiary and affiliated companies of all kinds and descriptions.

The holding companies are regarded by the President as particularly objectionable, since they tend to concentrate in a few hands the control of the wealth and business of the country, creating that "private socialism of concentrated private power" which he holds to be just as dangerous to the public welfare as governmental socialism, and likely to lead to governmental socialism if not checked in time. The bill as drafted and as it left the Senate provided that holding companies should be liquidated at the end of five years if they could not satisfy the Securities Exchange Commission that they exercised a useful function. As amended by the House of Representatives, the Commission has power to order their liquidation if they are proved redundant. In other words, the defendant is to be treated as innocent unless he is proved guilty, and not assumed to be guilty unless he can prove his innocence.

Although the President would have preferred the more drastic course, as is understandable from the history of his long conflict with the powerful interests behind these companies, it seems hard to understand why he should have risked a rebuff in attempting to force his views upon the House in the way he did. It will be interesting to watch his handling of the Banking Bill, and to see how and with what success he will endeavour to get it restored to its original shape before it becomes law.

PERRY RETAINS HIS TITLE

CHAMPION'S FINE FORM AT WIMBLEDON

F. J. Perry (England) retained his men's singles title at Wimbledon yesterday, beating G. von Cramm (Germany) 6-2, 6-4 6-4 in the final. Ranked No. 1 in the world, Perry is now holder of the Wimbledon, American and French Singles Championships. He gave the most brilliant display of his career yesterday, and fairly outplayed the German in one of the best matches ever seen on the centre court.

IMPORT OF TYRES AND SUGAR

Two Orders were made by the Executive Council yesterday under the Control of Imports Act, 1934, as follows:—

(1) Appointing 100 outer covers of pneumatic tyres for motor cars of the sizes specified in Control of Imports (Quota No. 19) Order, 1935, as the quota for the period from 1st August, 1935, to 31st January, 1936.

(2) Increasing by 16,000 tons the quota of sugar appointed by Control of Imports (Quota No. 5, Fourth Period) Order, 1935, for the period 1st July, 1935, to 30th September, 1935.

UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN

FOUR MEN OF EMINENCE

RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREES

THE PUBLIC ORATOR'S ADDRESSES

THE Senate of the University of Dublin met in the Theatre of Trinity College yesterday for the purpose of conferring Honorary and other Degrees. The Caput consisted of the Vice-Chancellor (the Right Hon. Sir T. F. Molony, Bart., LL.D.); the Provost, and the Senior Master Non-Regent (Mr. John Fraser, F.,T.C.D.).

Much interest was shown in the occasion, and the hall was crowded in view of the fact that Honorary Degrees were to be conferred on several eminent men.

Among the members of the Senate present were:—M. W. J. Fry, S.F.,T.C.D. (Senior Lecturer); J. G. Smyly, S.F.,T.C.D. (Librarian and Senior Dean); William Kennedy, S.F.,T.C.D. (Senior Proctor); W. A. Goligher, S.F.,T.C.D. (Registrar); Sir Robert Tate, F.,T.C.D. (Public Orator); K. C. Bailey, F.,T.C.D. (Junior Dean); H. W. Parke, F.,T.C.D.; G. A. Duncan, F.,T.C.D. (Junior Proctor); T. S. Broderick, F.,T.C.D.; the Regius Professors T. Gillman Moorhead, M.D.; Samuel L. Brown, M.A., and Canon J. E. L. Oulton, D.D.; Professors A. F. Dixon, E. A. Werner, J. W. Bigger, and G. H. P. Hewson; also J. H. Shaw, M.A. (Assistant Registrar); Edwin Solomons, M.A.; Dr. Ella G. Webb, M.A.; A. Denne Bolton, LL.D.; Miss C. Godfrey, M.A. (Lady Registrar); William Moore, M.A.

HONORARY DEGREES

THE PUBLIC ORATOR'S TRIBUTES

The Public Orator introduced the recipients of Honorary Degrees in the customary Latin speeches, summarised as follows:—

SC.D.

PROFESSOR GILBERT THOMAS MORGAN.

Dr. Gilbert Thomas Morgan is a Fellow of the Royal Society and Director of the Chemical Research Laboratory at Teddington. He has also been Professor of Chemistry in the University of Birmingham and, in former years, at the Royal College of Science in Dublin. He is one of the most eminent investigators in the British Isles in the domain of applied organic chemistry, and his work in the fields of industrial and therapeutic discovery is specially famous: tot chemiæ secreta tam ad medicorum artem quam ad operariorum industriam promovendam eblanditur. To his study of complex nitrogen compounds derived from coal-tar we owe the invention of many artificial dyes: præstantia eius inventa de materiæ genere plus quam uno novimus quod lanam pulcherrimo colore tingit: and his labours on the organic derivatives of arsenic, antimony and tellurium have given us many substances of great germicidal power. But Latin is no fit vehicle for the description of the marvels revealed by the scientist of to-day. The Public Orator, therefore, requested his audience to make up for his shortcomings by their enthusiasm.

LITT.D.

SIR FREDERICK GEORGE KENYON, G.B.E., K.C.B.

Sir Frederick George Kenyon went up from Winchester to New College, and afterwards became a Fellow of Magdalen. Of both these latter Colleges he is now an Honorary Fellow, while he is also a Fellow of the British Academy. From Oxford he went to the British Museum, of which he was Director and Principal Librarian for more than twenty years. He is one of the greatest living authorities on palæography: in arte palæographica nobilis et præcellens: is deeply versed in the study of Greek papyri, and to him we owe a long succession of editiones principes, beginning with that of Aristotle's Constitution of Athens in 1891. His works on Biblical manuscripts, on the textual criticism of the New Testament: Novi Testamenti e re critica laudem singularem consecutus est; and on that of the Greek Bible in general, are of the highest value, and known as widely as scholarship itself. But this is not all. He has deserved no less well of the literature of his own country; for he produced the Century Edition of Browning, besides editing Mrs. Browning's poems and letters: poetæ egregii, Roberti Browning, opera, uxoris eius carmina et epistolas stilo in primis luculento edidit. Sir Frederick is already an Honorary Graduate of most of the chief Universities on both sides of the Atlantic, and a member of nearly all the principal learned societies of Europe. What wonder, then, that Dublin follows their example and renders him her applause?

M.D.

PROFESSOR THOMAS HUGH MILROY.

Dr. Thomas Hugh Milroy, whose colleague, Dr. Robert Mitchell Henry, we honoured last year, is, said the Public Orator, by birth a Wigtownshire man. He is a graduate of Edinburgh, pursued his studies at Berlin and Marburg, and finally came to Belfast, where he was appointed to the Chair of Physiology, a position which, after more than thirty years of service, he still occupies with distinction in the Queen's University: quam cathedram prosperrimo eventu iam annos plus triginta, uti nostis, obtinet. He is a noted lecturer: si quid difficilius occurrit, audientium maximo cum fructu exponit: is the author of many papers and articles in scientific publications, and has done much to spread the knowledge of his subject by his text-book of Physiological Chemistry, written in collaboration with Dr. J. A. Milroy: scientiæ suæ regionem chemicam libro quantivis pretii discipulis aperit. In conferring our Degree upon a friend from Queen's we testify to the strength and permanence of the bond by which the Universities of the three Kingdoms are united.

SIR NORMAN WALKER.

Sir Norman Walker, who was knighted in 1923, is direct representative for Scotland on the General Medical Council: a Caledonia sua patronus electus: and has been President of that body for some years. He is a dermatologist of repute, and has made considerable contributions to the literature dealing with that aspect of medicine; cutis morbidae ad mala dignoscenda et sananda ne unum quidem magis idoneum inveneris. He has also held many offices connected with the administrative side of his profession, amongst them a highly successful editorship of the Scottish Medical and Surgical Journal: in Medicorum et Chirurgorum Actis edendis apud Scotos diu occupatus quantum studiis communibus profuerit vix dici potest. But his greatest merit it the universal confidence with which he inspires his fellow-practitioners, whose trust in him is so implicit that when questions arose as to the medical instruction imparted in certain universities over seas, he was unanimously chosen to conduct inquiries on the spot and report his results to the Council at home. To Sir Norman, then, as one

A TWO THOUSAND MILE WALK

For a wager of £200 two young artists, H. Carl-Winther and Richard Godfrey, are walking the 2,000 miles from Melbourne to Cairns, in North Queensland. They expect to take three or four months on the journey, which, if they win the wager, will thus be paid for at the rate of one shilling a mile. They are taking no money, only a small amount of clothing and a blanket each. They must obtain their food on the way by their own endeavours or by gift.

DAIL ENDS ON LIVELY NOTE

ADJOURNMENT AT MIDNIGHT

ALL-DAY DEBATE ON BUDGET TAXES

HOUSE TO MEET AGAIN TO-DAY

THE Dail closed at five minutes past twelve this morning on a lively note, with the Opposition protesting vehemently against the "unprecedented" decision to sit again to-day—till midnight if necessary.

Cries of: "It is an outrage," "It is a scandal," resounded through the chamber, and Mr. Mulcahy was heard to declare: "The Government are out to destroy the institutions they tried to destroy at their birth."

The Minister for Finance, Mr. MacEntee, maintained his attitude of silence virtually throughout the entire debate, which was on the Committee stage of the Finance Bill, and began at 10.30 yesterday morning.

The Budget taxes were again subjected to severe criticisms by the Opposition.

A keen discussion centred round the tax of five shillings on imported slates, the consensus of opinion being that the impost would increase the cost of buildings and house rents. It was contended also that the tax on glass would put up the cost of house-building.

The tax on imported paper was characterised as one of the most oppressive in the Budget.

The duties on wallpaper, fruit, boots and shoes also were denounced.

Mr. Lemass stated that rubber boots and shoes would be manufactured by the Dunlop firm in Cork next October.

On two occasions during the debate attention was called to the fact that there was not a quorum present.

MR. MacENTEE MAINTAINS SILENCE

Continuing the debate on an amendment to delete from the bill the tax of five shillings per cwt. on imported slates, Mr. MULCAHY (U.I.P., North Dublin) said that this was another of the impositions that was going to add to the cost of building and the increase in house rents.

Mr. DOCKRELL (U.I.P., Co. Dublin) asked if this were a revenue or a protective tax.

The MINISTER (Mr. MacEntee)—It is a revenue tax.

Mr. DOCKRELL asked the Minister to do away with a lot of small taxes, which were only increasing the cost of materials.

Mr. BELTON (Ind., North Dublin) said that in the district from Nenagh to Killaloe there were slate deposits richer than any in Wales, and better than the best English slates, but he had it from an expert that the quarrying there was scamped over and the best slates were left at the bottom. Glasgow had big orders with Killaloe for months ahead, while a Dublin firm could not get an order.

Mr. HUGO FLINN, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, said that the tariff would have a protective, as well as a revenue, effect, and, so far as slates required protection, they would get it.

Professor O'SULLIVAN (U.I.P., Kerry) said that the lack of development in the slate industry was due not to any lack of demand, but to lack of supply, owing to want of capital.

Mr. BELTON said that their trouble was the getting of slates, and not the fostering of an industry. He had been unable to get Irish slates, and at extra expense had to provide Bangor slates.

On a division the amendment was rejected by 44 to 21.

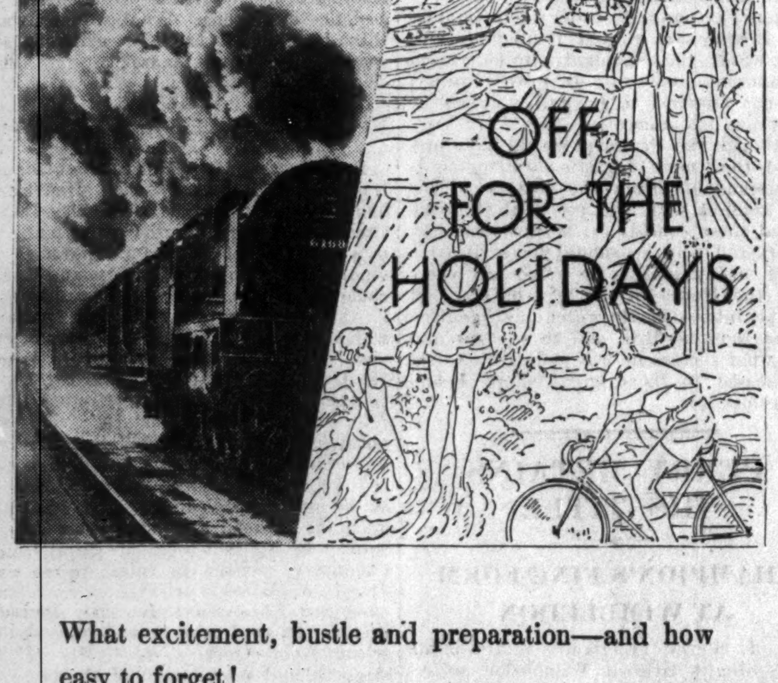
GLAZED PIPES

Mr. MULCAHY moved an amendment to delete the tax of ninepence per cwt. on glazed pipes made wholly or partly of earth. They were told by the Minister that this also was a revenue tax, and the only result would be to increase the cost of building and rents.

The amendment was defeated by 44 votes to 24.

Mr. MULCAHY, opposing the tariff of 10 per cent. on glass of all kinds, whether in sheets, flat, curved or otherwise shaped, said that tax after tax had been imposed which would increase the cost of house-building at a time when both rates and ordinary revenue were being used on big schemes for housing the poorer classes of people.

Mr. BELTON said that this tax would put up the cost of house-building by from 10 to 20 per cent. There were 2,000 people earning their living on the Dublin Corporation housing schemes, and nothing was staring these people in the face but the sack in a couple of months, because there would be no money to carry on. There was another thousand employed on housing schemes by private speculators, and they were dribbling out gradually, because owing to the financial stringency there would be no money to purchase the houses when they were built. The cost of house construction was going up because the Minister was poking his nose into a dying trade to get money out of it.



What excitement, bustle and preparation—and how easy to forget!

Memo. 2. Jar or tube of Science Cream for your regular shoes. You won't be romping on the sands all the time.

Memo. 3. Tin of Tut after boating, fishing or high adventure. Removes the most obstinate dirt, and keeps your hands soft and velvety.

On Merit Alone.

WINDOW TAX

Mr. COSTELLO (U.I.P., Dublin Co.) characterised the proposal as a reversion to the old window tax of a century ago.

The amendment was defeated by 56 votes to 46.

Mr. MULCAHY moved an amendment that the tax of 10 per cent. on glassware for household use, or ornaments, be deleted.

Mr. P. McGILLIGAN said that the Minister was maintaining a cowardly silence that could not be defended. The tax would hit particularly people who were house-hunting for the first time. The Budget was a pick-pocket Budget.

The amendment was defeated by 47 to 27 votes.

Mr. MULCAHY moved to delete the tax of 5 per cent. on paper imported without design or printed matter thereon. He said that to go no further than paper used for newsprint, this tax would impose a very heavy burden on the newspaper publishers and compel them to reorganise their overhead charges in such a way as to allow for this imposition, and that could only be done by reducing employment. He wanted to know if the Minister had examined the position, particularly from the point of view of the big daily newspapers, and did he not agree that the tax must inevitably bring about a reduction in the employment they gave? The Government had been for a long time, and the rank and file of Fianna Fail also, attacking newspapers in this country. Resolutions had been passed in parts of the country calling for the suppression of certain local papers, and repeatedly the Government organ stated that but for the anti-national character of all the Irish papers, except the Government organ, itself, there would be no economic war at the present time. He would like the Minister to say how much he expected to get from this tax and what portion would be realised from the tax on newspapers.

RAW MATERIALS

Mr. DOCKRELL said that a certain amount of paper was produced here, but the tax was not confired to the class of paper which was competing with the home manufactured article. Paper was the raw material of manufacturing stationers, and, for instance, sensitised paper was not manufactured here. At present that had to be imported, and, as the mere words, "Post Card," printed on it brought it under the heading of printed matter, it was liable to a duty of 50 per cent. Even a protective tariff of 75 per cent. would not suffice to save an industry which had to bear a duty of 50 per cent. on its raw materials.

Mr. MORRISSEY (U.I., Tipperary) said that the Irish newspapers had suffered heavy losses in the last three years as the result of Government policy, and he was informed that in many cases even small provincial papers with small circulation had suffered losses varying from £500 to £2,000—a direct result of the Government policy. These papers gave a considerable amount of very good and well-paid employment, and it would be a serious matter if, in his efforts to get revenue, the Minister caused unemployment in this industry.

Mr. FitzGERALD-KENNEY (U.I., South Mayo) said that the tax was one of the most oppressive in the Budget, and it exhibited a considerable degree of ignorance on the part of the Minister. Everybody who was familiar with conditions in Dublin knew that many people had from time to time endeavoured to establish magazines here of a high literary and artistic standard, and he knew how exceedingly difficult it was to keep such magazines alive. This tax would make that task far more difficult, because of the heavy extra cost it would impose. He and many others had hoped to see established here a good publishing business. There was a great deal of literary talent in Ireland, and at present many books of enormous circulation, written by distinguished Irishmen, were published in England. He had hoped to see the day when Irish publishing houses would be in a position to undertake this task, but, by handicapping the Irish publisher in his struggle against British and American competitors, the Minister was making that hope almost impossible of achievement.

Mr. MULCAHY (U.I.P., Dublin, N.) said that, according to statistics, the Minister expected to raise £16,000 on paper imported for printing purposes. Did the Minister think he could take £16,000 out of the newspaper business here without bringing about a reduction in the number of persons employed in that industry? Was there to be any relief for those publishing firms who competed with firms from outside?

Mr. MacENTEE said that the Deputy could obtain any information he wanted by putting Parliamentary questions.

The amendment was defeated by 44 votes to 28.

Mr. MULCAHY moved an amendment to delete the tax of 5 per cent. on imported wallpaper.

Mr. FitzGERALD-KENNEY (U.I., Mayo, N.) said that justice or injustice had nothing to do with the Fianna Fail system of taxation, which was punitive. That tax obviously was an unjust one.

NO QUORUM

At this stage (6.15 p.m.) Mr. BENNETT (U.I., Limerick) drew the attention of the Speaker to the fact that there was not a quorum present.

Mr. BELTON said that it was purely a revenue tax, and nothing else.

The amendment was defeated by 45 votes to 26.

On the second schedule, Mr. MULCAHY asked if licences were given for the importation, free of duty, of asphalt and bitumen used for road-making, or would local authorities have to bear the duty. He also asked if licences were being granted for the importation of starch, on which it was proposed to impose a duty of 3s. per cwt. Had the Minister, he asked, given any consideration to the effect that this tax would have on the linen industry.

Mr. E. O'NEILL (U.I., West Cork) said that there was no starch factory in this country at present, and if one were started it would find its raw material taxed to the extent of two shillings per cwt.

The MINISTER (Mr. MacEntee) said that there was no licensing provision in the schedule.

On a division the schedule was passed by 42 votes to 22.

On the third schedule, Mr. MULCAHY said that it should not be passed, because of the burden it imposed on the buyers of sugar.

Mr. McGILLIGAN requested the Minister for Finance to give the House some information upon the section dealing with molasses and glucose.

The MINISTER did not reply.

Mr. MULCAHY asked the Minister how much would be added to the present price of sugar by the operation of the relative schedule. So far the Minister had only shaken his head when it was shown that the country would have to pay £980,000 per annum more for its sugar.

The MINISTER replied that the Deputy should know that he could elicit the desired information through a Parliamentary question.

The schedule passed by 42 votes to 25.

FRUIT

On the schedule imposing a duty on imported pears, plums, strawberries, cherries, and gooseberries,

Mr. MULCAHY asked for information about this tariff.

On a division, the schedule was adopted by 43 votes to 23.

On the fifth schedule, Mr. MULCAHY asked the Minister if he intended to introduce on report an amendment to the schedule that would reduce the taxation on tobacco.

Mr. MacENTEE said that already he had given due notice as to the amendments he intended to introduce.

On a division the fifth schedule was carried by 39 votes to 22.

On the sixth schedule, which imposes duties on boots and shoes, Mr. LEMASS, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said that this was simply to make systematic duties imposed by an Emergency Order. Its operations affected boots made wholly or mainly of rubber proofed material—rubber boots, plimsolls, and the like—and the duties were extended to children's boots and shoes Sufficient boots and shoes were being manufactured in this country.

Mr. COSGRAVE asked were they being manufactured at present.

The MINISTER replied that they were not being manufactured at the moment, but they would be manufactured in October by the Dunlop firm in Cork. He anticipated that these rubber boots and plimsolls would be manufactured here at prices which would be slightly higher than the corresponding British price, but not substantially higher.

Mr. COSGRAVE said that this particular imposition was unreasonable. It was more than a tariff; it was a tax. It was a price beyond what was necessary for starting the factory. The deputy knew the firm which was to start the factory very well, and the firm did not require to have such a tax imposed to aid it.

Mr. LEMASS said that the tax had been imposed and approved in 1933. It had not been paid by anybody, because it was prohibitive.

The schedule (No. 6) passed by 39 votes to 33.

LEATHER STRAPS

On Schedule 8, which imposes a duty on imported leather straps for harness, which had hitherto been exempt,

Mr. McGILLIGAN moved an amendment to delete the proposed duty.

Mr. LEMASS said that the main reason for the duty was that they were arranging all the leather duties on a basis of 40 per cent. flat rate. There was now a factory for making harness leather, and there were enough harness-making firms to supply their needs.

Professor O'SULLIVAN called attention to the fact that there was not a quorum present, and business had to be suspended until "a House assembled."

The schedule was carried by 39 votes to 25.

Mr. MULCAHY moved on Schedule 9 to exclude from it the provision increasing from twenty to fifty per cent the duty on putty paint and distemper. It was, he said, yet another tax on house-building materials.

The Schedule passed by 41 votes to 23.

Mr. MULCAHY moved that the 50 per cent. duty on presses for tennis and badminton racquets be deleted from the schedule.

The amendment was defeated by 39 votes to 21.

FOOTBALLS

Mr. MULCAHY next moved the deletion of the reference in the schedule raising the duty on leather footballs from twenty-five to forty per cent.

Mr. McGILLIGAN rose to continue the debate when Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, who had come into the House, said that he moved to report progress.

The SPEAKER said that he accepted that motion, and he also had another motion to the effect that the Dail adjourn until 10.30 o'clock the following morning (Saturday), and sit not later than 12 o'clock mid-night.

Mr. COSGRAVE said that earlier that day the House had decided that the House sit after 2.30 that day, and adjourn not later than 12 o'clock midnight. He suggested that the present motion was out of order, and that it was without precedent. Standing Orders prescribed certain days on which the Dáil should meet—these were Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and it was, he submitted, irregular to accept a motion to sit on Saturday without any notice or previous intimation.

Mr. McGILLIGAN rose to speak when

The SPEAKER said that there could be no discussion. He was putting the motion that progress be reported.

BOYCOTTED DEBATE

Mr. McGILLIGAN said that on that motion he wished to point out that they had been told it was necessary to get the Finance Bill through that day, as well as the Conditions of Employment Bill, the Cereals Bill, and also the Widows and Orphans Bill, and that it would be necessary to sit until midnight. He said that the delay in connection with the Conditions of Employment Bill was due to the Minister's own fault, and that the Finance Bill was the most cumbrous and unwieldly Finance Bill every introduced. The Government Party had first accused the Opposition of being afraid to offer any criti[illegible], and then the Ministers had effectively boycotted debate.

Mr. McGILLIGAN was developing this point, when Dr. RYAN rose and moved that the question be now put.

The SPEAKER said that he was now putting the question.

Mr. McGILLIGAN protested.

The SPEAKER—There can be no discussion.

Mr. MORRISSEY—It is an outrage on the Standing Orders.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—It is an outrage and a scandal, and you are responsible.

The SPEAKER—I am putting the motion, that the question be now put.

Mr. MORRISSEY—It is unprecedented—It has never happened before.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—It is collusion.

The closure motion was carried on a division by 39 to 20.

The motion that progress be reported on the Committee stage of the Finance Bill was carried by 40 votes to 22.

AN IMPERTINENCE

The SPEAKER said that the next motion he had was that the Dail adjourn until 10.30 a.m. on Saturday morning, July 6. That motion, he said, was given to him as a matter of urgency, as certain bills had to go through the House within a week. He thought that it would be an impertinence on the part of the Chair to decide that the majority of the House could not come to a decision of that sort.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—That is a gas reason.

The SPEAKER—Any comments on the action of the Chair may be made by express resolution.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—I propose to take that course immediately.

At this stage Professor O'Sullivan, Mr. McGilligan, and other occupants of the Opposition Front Bench rose to their feet, and were heard shouting: "It is a scandal." "It is perfectly outrageous."

Professor O'SULLIVAN said that the Chair was taking that motion without notice to the House. It was a motion different from any other. Objection had been taken to it by a certain number of people in the House. There was no such urgency about the bills as had been suggested. There was plenty of time to get the Finance Bill through next week. The attitude of the Minister for Finance all through the bill was one of "I don't recognise the court."

UNFAIR TO DAIL

Mr. COSGRAVE said that the motion was unfair to the Dail. It should be remembered that th eminority had rights, and the intimation to the House that day was that it was to adjourn at midnight until 3 o'clock on Tuesday. The majority had not kept faith with the minority. He asked the Speaker would he accept an amendment that the House adjourn until 3 o'clock next Tuesday.

The SPEAKER said that he had accepted the motion that the question be put.

Several Opposition deputies shouted: "It is an outrage."

Mr. McGILLIGAN—I wouldn't expect anything else from you.

At this stage there was considerable confusion, and as the question was being put from the Chair Mr. Mulcahy said: "The Government are out to destroy the institutions they tried to destroy at their birth."

Mr. BENNETT—The only way to get this Finance Bill through is by the gag.

Mr. LEMASS—You tried reason.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—You can do it only through a tool—a willing tool.

Mr. MORRISSEY—You have tried for the last three weeks to intimidate the Chair. You have only succeeded to-night.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—I don't think intimidation is the word. You don't use intimidation to a weak man, but bullying.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY—The Chair never before stated that it is subservient to the majority party.

Mr. O'NEILL—It is prostitution.

The SPEAKER put the motion: "That the question be now put," and this was passed by 38 votes to 22.

The main question was then put that the Dail sit at 10.30 this (Saturday) morning and not later than 12 midnight, and on a division this was carried by 40 votes to 22, and at five minutes past twelve the House adjourned until this morning at 10.30.

CO. WESTMEATH SHOOTING

MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MULLINGAR, Friday.

BEFORE Justice Beatty at a Special Court in Mullingar to-day, Patrick Lynch, painter, Kinnegad, was charged with the murder of Bernard Sheridan, farmer and cattle dealer, Griffinstown

James Garvy, Kinnegad, stated that he knew Bridget Lynch, the accused man's daughter, had been a servant at the deceased man's house, and had returned home about a fortnight before the shooting. After Mass on the day of the shooting, witness saw Lynch go from his house along the street and turn into Hughes's yard. Witness then heard shots, and saw the accused man come from the yard. There was something shining in his hand, and he crossed to the Guards' barracks.

Thomas Sheridan, Hill of Down, brother of the dead man, stated that he walked with the deceased man down to Hughes's yard after Mass. A man named Christopher Bligh joined witness and his brother in the yard.

"I AM SHOT"

After talking for some minutes witness heard two or three shots. Witness had his back to the gate, but then turned round and saw Lynch going out to the street with a revolver in his hand. Bernard Sheridan said: "I am shot." He did not hear accused man say anything.

Christopher Bligh, farmer, Ardnamullen, gave evidence of talking to Bernard Sheridan in Hughes's yard. He saw a man, whom he now identified as prisoner, in the yard, and this man said to Sheridan: "You bloody ——— Witness then heard three shots fired. Bernard Sheridan fell after the third shot, when the prisoner left the yard. Afterwards witness followed him to the gate and saw him go to the Guards' barracks. After the shots Sheridan said: "He's after shooting me."

Joseph Mitchell, Berrymore, stated that he was in Hughes's yard getting his bicycle when he heard a sound like an explosion in the yard. He saw the accused man, who had a revolver, and was close to Bernard Sheridan fire two shots at the latter. Sheridan fell, and prisoner left the yard with the revolver in his hand.

Christopher Corcoran, Kinnegad, stated that when going into Hughes's yard for his bicycle, after the shooting, Lynch came out of the yard. He had something in his hand.

Denis Griffin stated that he saw the accused man walk into Hughes's yard. He next heard three shots, and saw Bernard Sheridan on the ground The prisoner was coming towards the gate, and had a Webley revolver in his hand. Bernard Sheridan said, "He's after shooting me." Lynch turned round and said, "Bernard Sheridan, I've got you, and I'm glad of it." The accused man gave the revolver a twist in his hand as he left the gate, and then proceeded towards the barracks.

Thomas Ennis, Kinnegad, stated that he heard three shots in the yard. The accused man came out, and witness saw him break the revolver and look at it. Witness thought he ejected something from it.

John Lynch, son of the accused man, gave evidence of a conversation with his father on 15th June. The accused said: "We are nicely shown up now; we'll never get a day's work now." Witness asked what he meant, and he said: "That dirty blackguard Sheridan and your sister."

In another conversation witness's father said that when all this would be over (witness understanding he was referring to his sister) he (prisoner) would go up to Sheridan and give him a good hiding." Witness warned him against violence, and conveyed that the Guards could attend to what he was speaking of.

Guard Clarke was standing with Sergeant Burke at the barracks in Kinnegad when the accused man came from Hughes's yard, carrying a revolver by the barrel in his right hand. He said: "I'm after shooting Sheridan above in Hughes's yard." He then handed the revolver to Sergeant Burke and said: "There is the weapon."

Guard Cunniffe, Kinnegad, stated that he heard the accused man say: "I could not stand it any longer, bringing disgrace on a man's decent family. I don't care what happens me now."

The prisoner was remanded.

ALEXANDRA COLLEGE

AN ENJOYABLE GARDEN PARTY

LARGE ASSEMBLY OF GUESTS

THE Council and the Lady Principal of Alexandra College, Dublin, were "At Home" yesterday afternoon, when a very enjoyable garden party was given in the College grounds, Earlsfort terrace. The guests were received by the Lady Principal, the Archbishop of Dublin, Visitor of the College, and Mr. R. Meredith, C.S.I.

The College gardens and buildings were thrown open to the guests, who numbered several hundred. During the afternoon an interesting programme was provided. A concert arranged by Mr. Percy Whitehead was given in the Jellicoe Hall, in which the following artists took part:—Miss Eileen Clancy, Miss D. Leonard, Mr. Robert Irwin, and Mr. Clifford Bradshaw, with Mrs. Yoakley at the piano.

Various parts of the College buildings housed exhibits such as hand work, brush work, basketry, and housecraft displays, in addition to exhibits of drawings and paintings, while a demonstration was given of typewriting in rhythmic style to music.

In the tennis court garden performances of folk dances and Irish dances were given to the accompaniment of pipes played by Sean Dempsey.

DRESSES

Mrs. Preston, Lady Principal, looked well in a two-piece ensemble of navy blue marocain, with a corsage of printed silk to tone, and a navy blue chip straw hat. Mrs. Gregg was wearing a becoming black romaine gown trimmed with touches of green, and a pedal straw hat. Mrs. Gwynn's navy blue patterned crêpe-de-chine frock was worn under a navy blue coat, with a small navy straw hat. Lady Porter chose a smart black two-piece, with a bankok straw hat. Mrs. Le Fanu was wearing a blue toilette. A flowered silk dress was worn by Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, with a wide cream tagal picture hat. Mrs. David Wilson was wearing a royal blue mushroom-shaped hat, with a two-piece of marocain in the same shade. Mrs. W. Jellett wore a navy blue tailored suit with her small black hat. Mrs. Starkie's black hat was banded with white, with which she wore a becoming black two-piece. Lady Thompson was attired in navy, with a straw hat to tone.

THE GUESTS

Among those present were:—The Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. Gregg, the Provost of Trinity College and Mrs. Gwynn, Sir Frederick Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. R. FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL

Preparing for the Twelfth : Agricultural Shows : Dr. Grierson's Illness : Belfast Corporation Criticised

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE North has this week been given up for the most part to preparations for its great annual holiday—the Glorious Twelfth of July.

The roll of the drums has been heard everywhere practising for the big day, though, truth to tell, it seems to be less in evidence than in any previous year. Its place is taken by innumerable accordeon bands, who parade nightly in city and country, followed by bands of callow admirers. This year the music has been emphasised and varied in Belfast by an alarming amount of stone and bottle-throwing, to say nothing of revolver firing. Orange processions have been attacked, more than half-a-dozen people have been shot, and windows innumerable have been broken. There have been a few pitched battles with Nationalists, who, with great daring, have flaunted their banners commemorating the Rebellion of 1798, and at least one such flag has been captured by the Orangemen and torn to rags, with every possible mark of obloquy.

All this is very reprehensible, and is frowned upon by the leaders of the Orange Order. Its suppression is, however, a matter for the police and the citizens generally. The number of people brought to book for the disturbances is miserably inadequate, and this would not be the case were not the rioters actively aided in escaping from the police by sympathisers among the householders in the neighbourhood of the "trouble."

The citizens will have a heavy bill to pay in compensation for malicious injuries. Already claims running into thousands of pounds have been lodged, and there is no indication that we have yet reached the end of the trouble. The action of Sir Dawson Bates in removing the ban on processions and unlawful assemblies, which had proved so effective an instrument in the hands of the police in maintaining order is severely criticised, though it is recognised that he was faced with a difficult problem in making his decision.

The Demonstrations

The "Twelfth" demonstrations themselves promise to be as impressive and successful as ever. Mass meetings of the brethren will be held in each of the six counties, and there will be many smaller gatherings throughout the province.

Almost every member of the Government is engaged to speak at one or other of the gatherings. The resolutions, which will, no doubt, be enthusiastically endorsed by hundreds of thousands of demonstrators, will congratulate His Majesty the King on having attained his Jubilee, express appreciation of the recent visit of the Duke of Gloucester to the province, will call upon all members of the Order to resist all forces and influences which make for the destruction of their Protestant heritage, will pledge their loyalty to the Throne, and to maintain civil and religious liberty, and will declare that they view with disfavour "the attitude of disloyalty displayed and the attempts made by our opponents to bring discredit on Northern Ireland by creating serious trouble and mischief previous to and during the period of the recent Royal visit."

Agricultural Shows

The principal agricultural shows in Northern Ireland have now been held, with a considerable measure of success.

A notable feature in almost every instance has been the marked improvement in the quality of the animals and produce exhibited. This is the more notable in view of the persistent criticism to which the Ministry of Agriculture is subjected. It is, however, not the only indication that in its agricultural policy the Government is right and its critics wrong. The export figures for cattle, sheep, potatoes, eggs, and even apples, are all increasing steadily, and it is difficult to understand, in face of these facts, and of the derating which has taken place, why the farmer should continue his criticisms. On the face of things it would appear that he should be in a much more prosperous condition than he was three or four years ago.

Dr. Grierson

Church of Ireland people throughout the country will learn with deep concern that Dr. Grierson, formerly Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, is lying gravely ill at the house of his son-in-law in Belfast.

It was failing health that induced him to resign the Bishopric, and it was hoped by his relatives and friends that with the increased leisure and relief from the heavy strain entailed by the work of the diocese, a change for the better might take place. A little time ago he had, however, a severe attack of influenza, which left him extremely weak, and he has not rallied, as had been hoped. Within the last few days his relatives have become increasingly anxious concerning him.

Belfast Corporation

The Belfast Corporation has been severely criticised from two angles this week—by the Local Government Auditor for wasteful expenditure, and by the Deputy-Chairman of the Finance Committee for increasing the capital charges without any consideration of the ability of the ratepayers to bear the burden.

The Auditor calls attention to the acceptance by the Corporation of tenders other than the lowest, and cites instances. In one case articles were purchased at £4,500 which could have been had for £2,100, and in another £2,995 was paid for goods for which the lowest tender was £2,178. The reasons given for the acceptance of certain tenders was "on the recommendation of the City Surveyor, having regard to the quality of materials offered, and to the fact that in the case of the tender which is the lowest the goods would not be manufactured in the city." Regarding the latter contention, the Auditor points out that in a recent judgment it was laid down that "the Council are in a fiduciary position not merely towards a majority who have elected them, but towards the whole of the ratepayers. A councillor is not entitled to follow a course which in his private capacity he might think it proper or advisable to pursue, but he must confine his discretion within the limits imposed by the law. He is not entitled to be unduly generous at the expense of those on whose behalf he is a trustee." The Auditor adds that, while he decided that the cases did not call for action on his part by way of surcharge, he felt difficulty in appreciating fully the reasons for acceptance of the higher tenders.

Dealing with the growing burden of fixed loan charges, Councillor F. J. Holland, deputy chairman of the Corporation, pointed out that these had grown from £230,548 to £369,740 in 1935, and roundly declared that this growth must be put a stop to. "The sooner the Corporation realises that capital expenditure must be controlled, the sooner the committees face this question in a sane, common-sense manner, the better," he declared. And, to judge by past experience, the expenditure will continue to grow.

SPRAY POTATOES NOW

The following notice was issued yesterday by the Government Bureau of Information:—

Farmers are urged to spray their potatoes immediately, as otherwise there is grave risk of serious loss of crop. Reports of the appearance of potato blight have already been received from many quarters, and the prevailing weather conditions are very favourable for the rapid spread of disease.

Growers who took the precaution to spray early are also to carry out a second spraying with as little delay as possible. This is all the more necessary because of the rapid growth of the crop in recent weeks and the consequent large proportion of new foliage.

It is of the greatest importance that the spraying mixture should be properly prepared. Full information on this subject will be found in Leaflet No. 14, which can be had, post free, on application to the Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Dublin.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

LORD DERBY'S SUCCESSES

Shining Tor Finds His Best Form at Last

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Friday.

THE attendance was smaller this afternoon, but, still, it was a good one for a Friday on the July course. It has, indeed, been a wonderful week, and I believe the sums taken by the caterer have broken all records, and with something to spare.

The notable feature of the day was the success of the horses owned by Lord Derby, who won three races, two of them with a son and a daughter of Fairway, who has definitely and finally established himself as a sire by the good wins of his progeny this week; and the third with a son of Pharos, whom he keeps in France.

This was Shining Tor, a colt that he bred at his French stud and brought back to England last back-end, after he had shown himself to be of high class by his wins on the other side of the Channel.

Found His True Form

It has taken him some little time to find his true form here, but he found it all right to-day, when he won the Waterbeach Handicap with 9st. 9lb., a splendid performance, for he was giving 26lb. to the second, Pegasus, who is no slouch, and yet he won decisively once he had been shaken up.

Flying Spear II. had made the running, but he dropped back in the last furlong. Greenore, one of our best sprinters, could only finish third, and was receiving 6lb. from Shining Tor.

I had hoped that Shining Tor would win the Stewards' Cup at Goodwood, and he may do so even now, but his success to-day puts him still higher in the handicap, and the handicappers have never been lenient with him since he came to England.

Lord Derby's first success of the afternoon was gained in the Ellesmere Stakes (11 furlongs) with Bunker, by Fairway—Wandering Maid. This is a lazy colt, and he had to be sharply reminded of his duty by Perryman. The moment he was wakened up he came and slammed Quai d'Orsay and Woodstock. Bunker is a really good staying colt.

Tide-Way Wins

Then came a success for the black jacket and white cap, with Tide Way, by Fairway out of Drift, in the Fulborne Stakes. The filly had finished fourth in the Queen Mary Stakes at Ascot, where she did not have the best of luck.

Strapeto and Trelissia had set a good pace, but neither stayed out the last furlong. Up the rise Tide Way, like Bunker, had to be shown the whip, but the moment she was she ran on, and was an easy winner from Pay Up, a good-looking colt, also by Fairway, and owned by Lord Astor, and the Flower Show filly.

Strapeto and Trelissia finished on the heels of the placed horses. Strapeto is very fast, but she may want a slightly easier course.

First Four Favourites

The first four favourites had won; for Yugo was a 2 to 1 on chance, in the Ixworth Selling Plate, which he took cleverly from Eta, and was bought in for 560 guineas.

The fifth race was the Princess Stakes, in which Montesano, reported to be almost as good as Pike Barn, was favourite from Mrs. Ambrose Clark's colt, by Beresford out of Silver Whip. There was also one of His Majesty's, the Blandford filly, Parity, much fancied.

All of them were beaten by Nakomis, a Papyrus colt that has recently won a couple of little races in the North, and has been sold since by Mr. Norman Field to Mr. G. H. Fairhurst, a new patron of Mr. Lambton's stable.

Nakomis Stays On

Parity and Corban made the running, with Montesano and the Silver Whip colt always well placed. Up the hill Nakomis stayed on a little the better, and was a smart winner by half a length and a neck from the Silver Whip colt and Montesano, with Symphony and Parity only beaten by necks for places.

Another favourite disappointed when Brecknock could only finish fourth in the last race of the meeting, the Milton Handicap, which Plunger, a gelding by Winalot, won by a length and three lengths from Vieni Presto and Western Wave. The winner belongs to Mrs. Chester Beatty, who recently sent the few horses she has in training in England to Manton.

Selections

The racing to-morrow is at Alexandra Park, where the London Cup horses seem hardly up to the class of other years. I had thought that Easter Rush would win, but he was found, I understand, to be lame this morning.

In his absence the race looks to me more open, and chances can be given to Democrat, who ran well in the Ascot Stakes, Tramaway and Ca-Ca-Ce. I take DEMOCRAT to win from Ca-Ca-Ce.

The Hornsey Handicap should be won by COLONEL GAUNT, and the July Handicap by POLAR BEAR.

There are a few horses gone from here to Stockton, and most of them should win, such as PRICKET in the Durham Plate and VALKYRIE in the Yarum Plate.

UNDER THIRTY should win the Stokeley Plate.

GALTEE MORE.

TOWN MOUSE NAPPED

Tramaway Fancied on Home Form for London Cup

THE Alexandra Park Executive experienced some difficulty in obtaining a satisfactory entry for their feature race to-day, the London Cup, as it twice failed to fill. Although it cannot be said that class is so well represented as in some previous years, this £1,000 handicap has an intriguing appearance.

The only recent winner in the field will be Misanthrope, who is thought to have improved a lot since he won over ten furlongs at Hurst Park last month. On the balance of his form a mile and a half appears to be his best distance; still, this is an easy course, and he may get the extra furlong.

Tramaway will have plenty of admirers, despite the fact that he has not had a race this season. The Aga Khan's five-year-old has been as busy as most horses, having been leading Bahram and Frank Butters's other classic horses in their preparations. He is fit, and has a lenient weight.

Bloater has run well in all his races this year without being good enough to win. One of his best efforts was when he ran Spring Morning to a short-head over two miles and a furlong at Newbury. Spring Morning has run badly since then, which accounts for the fact that she is 2lb. better treated with Bloater this time.

Easter Rush showed a return to form when he just missed a place in the Newbury Cup. I understand that the improvement has been maintained on the training grounds. Strictly on the Ascot Stakes running, Democrat should beat Spring Morning and Bloater. He was a useful handicapper during the back-end of last season, and if he has found his old form few will be capable of beating him.

The "horses for courses" theory works out pretty well here, and for that reason Annihilation comes into the argument. Last time out he finished second to St. Hubert over two miles at Manchester. Ca-Ca-Ce, the useful Irish performer, is reported to have pleased in his recent home gallops. His last running at Gatwick can be ignored, as he met with a slight mishap.

I shall recommend

who has only to reproduce his best home form to win.

Several consistent sprinters will be in opposition for the July Handicap. Such as Early Closing, Morstone, Icarus, Antiseptic and La Rubia are certain to run well. I am content to leave it to LA RUBIA.

This speedy filly led all the way at Gatwick last month to beat some smart handicappers. I am told that she has not looked back since.

Walter Nightingall probably holds the key to the situation in the Hornsey Handicap, in which he can choose from Durex and Loch Affaric. Durex won over this course and distance in the spring.

The easy Carlisle winner,

TOWN MOUSE

is a confident choice for the Wood Green Plate. She is at the top of her form.

The Hon. George Lambton has sent Pricket for the Durham Handicap at Stockton in preference to Piperno.

PRICKET

is such a good weight-carrier that I take him to beat the fancied Ailsa Craig.

FUZZY WUZZY,

who has been specially reserved, might beat Valkyrie at the weights in the Yarum Handicap.

BALDOYLE PROGRAMME

BYRONIC MAY ATONE

Markington Likely to Follow Up Bellewstown Success

IN connection with to-day's meeting at Baldoyle trains will leave Amiens street for Sutton at 1.30, 1.50, 2.5, and 2.35 p.m. Buses will leave Burgh quay and Eden quay from 1.30, while the usual tram service will run from the city to Baldoyle road.

Two very interesting races figure on the card—namely, the Heath Plate for two years old and the Clonard Steeplechase.

Nine runners have been declared for the Heath Plate, including H.W. and Byronic, who finished first and second in the Finaghy Plate at the Maze last month. Byronic, who was subsequently beaten in the Waterford Testimonial Stakes, won by his stable companion, Ballymoney, now has a pull of 9lb. in the weights with H.W., and as he ran green in both his previous races he may show improvement on this occasion.

Tote double on fourth and fifth races.

P. Behan's stable will also be represented by Cree and Clarity, and the selected of the three will take a lot of beating. The selection is BYRONIC.

In the Clonard Steeplechase Markington and Royal Ambassador, who finished first and second for the Drogheda Tradesmen's Plate at Bellewstown on Wednesday, meet again, and both should be concerned in the finish. Probably will win again. Selections:—

Coolock Plate—Magheramorne.
Killester Plate—Marjorie's Pet.
Claremont Plate—Symphonious.
Heath Plate—Byronic.
Clonard Plate—Markington.
Milverton Plate—Maazeen.

TOTE DOUBLE.

Byronic and Markington.

3.0—COOLOCK PLATE of 55 sovs. Second 8 sovs., third 5 sovs. A flat race for maidens under all rules at entry. About 1 m. 1 f. and 80 yds. Age. st. lb.

NEWMARKET HINTS FOR TO-DAY

At Alexandra Park,

THE DYMOKE,

who will be making his first appearance in a "seller," should win the Southgate Plate, and for the Juvenile Selling Plate I shall rely upon

BAR SILVER.

Polar Bear has been very consistent in his last three races, and he should play a prominent part in the July Handicap. Stage Star has done well since beating a big field at Birmingham in May, but I shall take a chance with who has been showing up well in his gallops of late with Shalfleet.

Easter Rush is not a certain runner for the London Cup, but we stand an excellent chance of winning this nice prize with who is fit and well from leading the classic horses, Bahram and Theft in their work.

COLONEL GAUNT

did not make any show in the Royal Hunt Cup, but the company he will be meeting in the Hornsey Handicap is not so formidable, and, as Sammy does not run, he may score.

PENELOPHON

has my vote for the Wood Green Maiden Plate.

At Stockton my fancies are;—3.0, Valkyrie (next best); 3.30, Under Thirty; 4.0, Pricket; 4.30, Le Fantome.

SPECIAL SELECTIONS

SPORTING GOSSIP

Lord Derby's Treble

The King congratulated Lord Derby in the paddock at Newmarket yesterday on his success in three consecutive races. C. Leader, trainer, and R. Perryman, jockey, shared in the feat. The horses were Bunker (Ellesmere Stakes), Shining Tor (Waterbeach Handicap) and Tide-way (Fulbourne Stakes). All three horses were hot favourites.

Denis Hannon's New Owner

Our Curragh Correspondent states that Mr B. Kerr has sold his three-year-old, Denis Hannon, to Commander P. C. de Crespigny, and the gelding has left James Canty's stable at Curragh Glebe for V. Tabor's place at Epsom.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH

BEHAN'S Cree was sent three furlongs sharply. Lucky Patch, Grangemore, Byronic, Poor Fellow and Hocus Pocus were given easy five furlong canters.

JAMES CANTY'S Representation and St. Ultan galloped five furlongs at a nice pace.

J. DAWSON'S Kitty's Pet and Lady Turk were sharpened up over a couple of furlongs. Jorto, Royal Band and Shady Lane had easy exercise.

DOYLE'S Greek Jim, Beech Top, Sweet Home and Dunree cantered five furlongs steadily.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Scandal, Queen Christina, Hivi-Hivi, Catesby, Toprail and others took healthy exercise.

Coolock Plate—MAGHERAMORNE.
Killester Plate—BEEFEATER.
Claremont Plate—REPRESENTATION.
Heath Plate—H. W.
Clonard Steeplechase—BACHELOR'S GOLD.
Milverton Plate—LINDETTE.

ROWING.

BANK CREW'S SUCCESS

The Opening Day of the Dublin Metropolitan Regatta

THE Dublin Metropolitan Regatta opened yesterday at Islandbridge. The weather at the start was threatening, and some showers fell at the start, but the evening afterwards held up fine. There was a strong following breeze from the Chapelizod end, which conduced to fast times. There were ten heats listed on the programme, and, despite an extra event, caused by a re-row in a heat of the Visitors' Challenge Cup, the events were all got through in good time.

In the Civic Challenge Cup, for maiden fours, Drogheda, who won with the same crew at the Trinity Regatta and at Portadown, had a comfortable win over Dolphin, whose first outing this year it was, and who had to make a couple of last-minute changes in their boat.

Neptune were closely pressed by Commercial in the second heat, but later on they defeated Dublin University in the second round by half a length.

In the first heat of the Visitors' Cup, for maiden eights, Trinity were close pressed to win from Drogheda by a length, and there was a contretemps in the second heat. University College, Dublin, and Commercial were level half-way down the straight, when oars were crossed in the middle of the river, and the race was ordered to be re-rowed. In the row-off University College won, Commercial catching a crab near home, when they had held their own well.

In the third heat Neptune were disqualified on a foul at the last bend, and Dublin R.C. got an easy award.

In the second round of the Visitors' Cup, Trinity beat Dolphin by a length and a half, after both had been level at the enclosure.

Bank of Ireland, unbeaten for two seasons, easily defeated Methodist College, Belfast, in the Liffey Challenge Cup for junior fours, and in Heat B of the Metropolitan Grand Challenge Cup (senior fours) University College, Dublin, had an easy victory over City of Derry, winning in a strong paddle. Details:—

PERRY CHAMPION AGAIN

Straight Set Victory Over Von Cramm at Wimbledon

FRED PERRY walked off court yesterday crowned again Wimbledon champion. He eclipsed all his previous performances by a brilliant victory over Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany, by 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 in the men's singles final, and carved for himself a niche in the history of lawn tennis. No man has played through and won two years running, no one has retained his title since Tilden's success in 1921, and no English player has accomplished this feat since A. W. Gore won in 1909.

The score does not in any way convey the intensive nature of a match that brought out the very best in both men. Von Cramm, the first German player to figure in the final of the men's singles at Wimbledon since Froitzheim in 1914, had all the equipment necessary to produce the most dazzling shots. His beautiful forehand would have overcome any other player but Perry. This stroke was the German's best, and while he was afforded the opportunities for its employment the title-holder was given cause for anxiety.

VON CRAMM'S WEAKNESS

The secret of Von Cramm's defeat was his pronounced weakness in dealing with short returns to his backhand. If Perry was not in possession of that secret before the match, he was not long in acquiring it once they had started. The Englishman paid his opponent the compliment he deserved in his unflagging concentration, and even when he held a lead of two sets Perry did not for a second ease his attack.

The Englishman directed his major attack at the other's backhand wing, coming in for the volley upon a forehand shot that sent Von Cramm wide to his backhand corner. Perry persisted with that mode of attack, basing his hopes of success upon Von Cramm becoming erratic under pressure. That is precisely what occurred. The German was not sure of himself when the pace compelled him to take an early ball on his backhand. So long as he was given time, his returns on that hand were a menace to Perry's line, and until the Englishman speeded up his ground shots a duel of pretty finessing was seen.

Perry varied the length of his shots, and induced the German to net. Von Cramm drove [illegible] to extricate himself from that fatal backhand wing, and for quite appreciable periods he prevailed upon the Englishman to engage in forehand duels, all of which were a privilege to watch.

But sooner or later Perry reverted to the policy which had established his ascendancy. Von Cramm resisted in gallant fashion, and after he had been pulled back from a two-one lead in the third set he saved two match points with a great-hearted effort when Perry was 5-4.

The German never led in the first set, but was 1-love, 2-1 and 3-2 in the second, and 1-love and 2-1 in the third; but figures are inconsequential where this match is concerned. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES—FINAL.

MISS ROUND DECLARES OFF WIGHTMAN CUP TEAM

Miss Dorothy Round, Great Britain's No. 1 woman player, has dropped out of the British Wightman Cup team which is to meet U.S.A. at Forest Hills, New York, on August 16 and 17. This decision is a serious blow to Britain's hopes of regaining the Cup, but Miss Round has withdrawn from the side as she feels that she needs a rest. She says that she is getting a little stale, and that the injury to her leg is still troubling her.

E. F. KILDUFF BEATS C. H. WEST

LAST FOUR FOR LUMSDEN MEMORIAL CUP

E. F. Kilduff achieved one of his most notable performances when, in the fifth round of the Lumsden Cup at Dun Laoghaire last evening, he defeated C. H. West. He was very steady on the outward holes, and turned 1 up. He, however, lost the tenth and eleventh, to become 1 down. He squared at the twelfth, and, after winning the thirteenth, he halved the next five holes, to win by 1 up.

The semi-finals will be played this afternoon at 2.30 and 2.34.

FIFTH ROUND.

E. F. Kilduff (Milltown) (3) beat C. H. West (Royal Dublin) (scr.), 1 up.
D. E. Batchen (Milltown) (5) beat G. J. Greene (Royal Dublin) (5), 3 and 2.
A. G. Anketell (Dun Laoghaire) (7) beat T. A. McKeever (Portmarnock), 2 and 1.
F. K. Kelly (Howth) (3) beat P. J. Kavanagh (Milltown) (9), 3 and 2.

SHAW-LUNHAM GOLF CUP.

By kind permission of the Limerick Golf Club, the finals of the second annual competition for the Shaw-Lunham Golf Cup were played at Ballyclough, Limerick, on Sunday, 30th June, the teams consisting of the directors and staffs of the two firms.

Shaw's, Limerick, again secured possession of the cup for the second year by winning the singles and four-ball in this, the return match, having also won the previous match played at Little Island, Cork, on the 14th April.

The cup, which has been presented by Messrs. Lunham Bros. (Cork), Ltd., and W. J. Shaw and Sons (Limerick), Ltd., is to be played for annually, the winners of the combined matches at Limerick and Cork holding the cup for the year.

J. McLEAN AND H. THOMSON MEET IN FINAL TO-DAY

John McLean (Hayston), the title holder, who won the Irish Open Amateur Championship at Dollymount in 1932, and the following year at Newcastle, and Hector Thomson (Williamwood), the Irish Open Amateur Champion, are to meet in the thirty-six holes final of the Scottish Amateur Championship at St. Andrew's to-day.

Next to McLean, Thomson is considered to be Scotland's best amateur, and their match over the old course should be a thrilling one. After playing nineteen holes in each of his first three matches, McLean showed better form yesterday, and defeated J. A. Lang, of Erskine, by 3 and 2 in the semi-final round. He was 3 up with five holes played, but turned only 1 up. The champion won the twelfth and fifteenth to become dormy, and halved the sixteenth.

In the other semi-final Thomson took forty strokes for the first nine, yet he turned 4 up on J. Brodlie, junior (Forfar), and won by 6 and 4.

FOURTH ROUND.

J. A. Lang (Erskine) beat Dr. W. M. Robb (Moseley)—1 up.
J. McLean (Hayston) (holder) beat G. B. Peters (Ferenze)—2 and 1.
Hector Thomson (Williamwood) beat W. S. McLeod (Ranfurley Old)—1 up.
J. Brodlie, junior (Forfar) beat R. S. Walker (Royal Aberdeen)—1 up.

SEMI-FINALS.

McLean beat Lang—3 and 2.
Thomson beat Brodlie—6 and 4.

IRISH TRIAL MATCHES

BLUES.................. 3 WHITES.................. 1

The final Leinster trial in connection with the Ireland-Wales match at Seven Sisters on next Saturday took place at Clontarf Baths last evening before a large crowd.

O'Brien scored in the first half for Blues, and in the second period Dowds and Nairn increased their lead, while O'Mahony scored for Whites.

TO-DAY'S FINAL TRIAL

The following have been nominated for the final Irish trial to-day at Clontarf Baths at 3.30 p.m., after which the team to play Wales will be selected:—

Whites—K. O'Grady (Clontarf); G. Daly and H. A. Daniels (Dublin University); M. O'Mahony (Clontarf) (captain); H. P. Dockrell, M. D. Fletcher (Dublin University), and L. O'Brien (Sandycove).

Blues—J. K. Ward (Clonard); W. Bell (Wellington) and B. G. Kearon (Dublin University); P. McClure (Clonard); P. McCorry (Clonard), C. Major (Donegal), and H. Connor (East End).

Reserves—J. P. Shannon (Pembroke), goal; T. A. O'Reilly (Clontarf), back; J. Nairn (Pembroke) and C. A. Boyle (Dublin University), forwards.

GAELIC GAMES

KILDARE AND LEIX AT TULLAMORE

THE LEINSTER FOOTBALL SEMI-FINAL

(By PAT'O.)

Dublin were experimenting with their front line at Naas; yet, so convincingly did Kildare win, that I sensed a return of their old form. They meet a resolute Leix side to-morrow at a venue new to both in championships. Such a wide ground as Tullamore favours Kildare, and I think the following side will play well:—

Kildare—Chanders (goal); C. Higgins, Goff, Byrne; Maguire, J. Higgins, Dowling; Matthews, Mulhall; Geraghty, Martin, Fox; Burke, Keogh, Mangan.

This is a very useful fifteen. There may be a change or two in attack, for the selection committee believe that a North-Kildare dominance may make the game more tense than a South-Kildare side playing their Leix neighbours.

Laoighis are a heavy, resolute side, and have been showing much improvement in attack. From the names submitted, a very strong fifteen can be selected, and they may decide for the following:—

Laoighis—Delaneys (4); Wall, Brennan, Carberry; Douglas, Brown; Rankin, Short, Finlay; Comerford, Dunne, Cartie.

I expect to see Kildare well held. Much as I deplore the loss of Peter Waters at mid-field, and acknowledging that Leix and Wexford are Kildare's "bogey" counties, I think the All-Whites will come through to the Leinster final, in which they may meet Louth's smart side.

Tipperary's hurling strength has shifted from Tubberadora and Nenagh to the teams around Carrick. For the first time in many years. South Tipperary takes a hand in the team. The Swans and Davin clubs are represented, and, on their home ground, will have strong support. My information from Waterford is that Erin's Own are fit and confident. Should Tipperary reproduce their form as against Kilkenny on the same ground I think they will contest the Munster final Fermanagh and Armagh meet to-morrow at Enniskillen, and the issue is very open. Fermanagh are stronger individually, but Armagh are very useful on ground and overhead. I like Fermanagh's chances, but the Ulster title is likely to rest, as last year, with the Breffni Park men.

Kilkenny are sending their strongest team to Newport to meet Limerick, in aid of the Nenagh Church fund.

THE FIXTURES

Tullamore—Kildare v. Laoighis (Senior Football), 3.45; Dublin v. Kilkenny (Minor Hurling), 2.30; Meath v. Carlow (Junior Hurling), 5.0.

Carrick-on-Suir—Tipperary v. Clare (Senior Hurling), 3.45; Tipperary v. Waterford (Junior Football), 2.30.

Enniskillen—Armagh v. Fermanagh (Senior Football), 4.0.

DUBLIN DULL

GUINNESS LOWER

NORTHERN ORD. WEAK

There was a little more doing on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, but most interest was connected with squaring up transactions in connection with the present account. The tone was dull.

The Free State Funds were well maintained, but British Funds tended lower. Cork 4 per cent. Loan spurted 2⅜ points, and Rathmines and Rathgar 3½ per cent. improved, but Dublin 3½ per cent. (1955-80) drooped to 94.

In Banks, Munster and Leinsters jumped 1s. 9d., but Hibernians and Nationals eased a shade.

Guinness Ordinary met with fresh selling, and lost nearly another 1s.

In Rails the only movement of interest was the fall of two points in Great Northern Ordinary.

Dublin Tram Ordinary were 1s. lower, and the "A" Debenture gave way. Alliance Gas Ordinary and Ranks (Ireland) Ordinary hardened slightly.

Coats Ordinary advanced to 61s. 1½d., and Courtaulds improved, but Tobaccos showed an easier trend. Dunlop Rubbers, Lever 7 per cent. Pref. and Unilever Ordinary all lost pence.

LONDON IRREGULAR

BUYING OF INDUSTRIALS RESUMED

With dealers busily engaged in making arrangements for Monday's carryover, quiet conditions were prevalent on the London Stock markets yesterday, and few sections showed any signs of cheerfulness, while sentiment was not assisted by further slight weakness of British Funds. A point of interest, however was some selective buying of Industrials and certain Gold Mining shares for the new account, but, with speculators displaying a disposition to take profits, the general tone was irregular.

In the gilt-edged market buyers acted cautiously in view of the coming Railway Electrification Loan. India Stocks were inactive and unchanged. The feature in a subdued Foreign Bond section was a demand for Peruvian Corporation issues, based on the increase in the past year's traffic receipts.

The market for British Rails again attracted little attention, and most issues finished unchanged. Among Colonials, Canadian Pacifics were dull and lost ¼ to 9⅞.

In the Industrial market buying for the new account, though of small proportions, was sufficient to impart a generally firm tendency. Gallahers were a bright feature, being strongly supported on renewed talk of favourable trading, and British Aluminium were in demand on optimistic view regarding good trading prospects. There was also considerable speculative activity in British Oxygen, while interest in Greyhound shares showed no signs of diminishing. Elsewhere certain Breweries made headway, and a few small advances occurred among Motor issues. In the Diamond group the effect of the De Beers Board's decision not to proceed with the scheme was to cause a fall in the Defd.

THE MONEY MARKET

TREASURY BILL RATE HIGHER

Applications were received at the Bank of England yesterday for £40,000,000 Treasury bills. Tenders, dated Monday to Friday of next week at £99 16s. 10d., get about 54 per cent., above in full. Tenders, dated Saturday, at £99 16s. 11d. and above, receive in full. These figures indicate an average rate of about 12s. 6d. p.c., as compared with 12s. 1½d. per cent. for last week's bills.

With the repayment of a further moderate amount yesterday, Lombard Street discharged its indebtedness to the Bank of England incurred in connection with the half-year end pressure for money. Credit remained in plentiful supply, and borrowers were offered accommodation until to-day at ½ per cent. Bill rates were firm on the Treasury bill results, fine three months' bills being quoted at 9/16 to ⅝ per cent.

The price of gold was again fixed at 140s. 11d. per fine oz., but the premium was lower in the case of the dollar at 3½d. on an exchange rate of 4.94⅝. The premium on the franc remained at 4d., based on the exchange of 74 11/16. About £281,000 was disposed of in the market.

Silver remained at 31d. per ounce for spot and 31 1/16d. for forward delivery.

Further wide fluctuations in the principal gold currencies provided the outstanding feature of the London Foreign Exchange Market yesterday. Early in the day the franc was well offered from the Continental centres, and weakened further in relation to both sterling and dollar, until the London authorities entered the market in support of the franc. Later in the day the tendency underwent a material change, nearly all the gold currencies recovering sharply, to close in many cases with small improvements in relation to the £.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

WHITEHEAD IRON IN DEMAND: GALLAHERS' RECOVERY

Although Industrials generally finished the account quietly, buying for new time was apparent in some quarters and several satisfactory rises resulted. Steels took the lead among trans-Atlantic counters, and Radios were another firm spot. Cable and Wireless "A" reacted on profit-taking and Canadian Marconis eased. Electric Supply shares were well maintained. Victoria Falls were a firm spot, renewed buying taking the price up ¼ to 8⅛. Only a small volume of business was reported by dealers in the Electrical Equipments group.

WHITEHEAD IRON.

Slight and irregular changes resulted from a moderate business in Iron and Steel issues. A strong feature was provided, however, by Whitehead Iron, which are now quoted ex rights.

Motor shares were a fairly active market. There was renewed buying of Austins, which improved, while small gains were shown by A.E.C., Fords and Standards. In the Aviation group Hawkers continued to receive attention, while Fairey hardened. Otherwise a dull tendency prevailed.

In the Stores group Harrod's "B A" fell back somewhat on profit-taking. Woolworths were a shade harder.

Little interest was taken in Provision and Catering descriptions.

COURTAULDS SUPPORTED.

Textile issues remained rather quiet, and prices showed little change. Rayons were active, but movements were irregular. Courtaulds met with renewed support. American Celanese were also in demand, but British Celanese reacted.

Although relieved by occasional firm spots, the Brewery group failed to maintain a satisfactory tone. Guinness lost further ground, Watney Defd. slipped back, and Bass were dull.

TOBACCOS' GOOD SHOWING.

Tobaccos made a good showing under the lead of Gallahers, which met with investment buying, and were finally 5/32 to the good at 6 31/32.

On the whole, the Miscellaneous section had a firm appearance. British Oxygens came in for support, and British Aluminium strengthened. Swedish Match "B" made a partial recovery, and Triplex were on the dull side. Dunlops eased.

OIL MARKET NARROW

Business on the final day of the account was of a quiet character in the Oil Market. As a matter of fact, the account now in course of settlement has provided little of interest from the point of view of share dealings, although reports issued and statements at meetings have generally been well received.

RUBBERS DEPRESSED

Idle conditions characterised the Rubber Share Market, and in the absence of support many issues were quoted at lower prices. Movements were not large, however, and the only decline of any importance was that of 9d. to 25s. 9d. in Golden Hope. In the commodity section trading was of moderate dimensions with spot rubber selling down to 5⅞d. per lb. United Kingdom stocks of rubber are estimated to have increased by 2,200 tons during the past week.

LONDON MINING MARKET

IRREGULAR TENDENCY IN KAFFIRS

In view of the approach of the week-end and the close of the account, dealings in the Mining market yesterday were not on a large scale, though in view of the fact that a great many shares are being taken up, a rather better tendency developed in most departments. General Mining were supported, but "Johnnies" relapsed on profit-taking following their recent advance. Business in Rhodesians was limited, and few changes of importance could be recorded.

Among Diamonds, the De Beers issues were easier on the publication of the news of the withdrawal of the scheme for dealing with the arrears of Pref. dividends.

A modest week-end revival was witnessed in the West African department, where business was, however, still mainly of a professional character. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Irish Bank Dividends

The first batch of Irish Bank dividends for the half year ended June 30 were announced yesterday. They are all the same rate as this time last year, and, only in the case of the Munster and Leinster, are the allocation figures given, affording an indication of the business of the half year. The total allotted to the various reserves is again £22,500, and the carry-forward is increased by just over £700.

French Bank Rate Down to 4 p.c.

Contrary to expectations, the reduction in the French bank rate to 4 per cent. failed to stimulate the Paris Bourse, and Rentes dropped to the lowest levels recorded this year, the declines ranging from 70c. up to 1f. The Paris market, it is reported, was disappointed owing to there being no reduction in the advances against securities.

Canada's Wheat Position

The grain operators at Toronto deny all knowledge of the Government's wheat policy, but give no credence to Liverpool reports of the removal of the peg to 70 cents., pointing out that it is hardly possible, since the Grain Bill before the Federal House has not yet received its third reading. It is believed at Toronto that the break in the Liverpool price is due to adverse expression of opinion in England, plus the authorisation of wheat exports by the French Government. While Canadian wheat fell to the peg level of 80 cents., coarse grains in the unrestricted market showed some heavy falls, rye falling 3⅝ cents. and barley 3½ cents.

Scale Makers' Share Bonus

As the issued capital of W. and T. Avery, makers of weighing machines, etc., is £979,783, and the assets are valued at £1,922,010, it is considered desirable to bring the two items more into accord with each other. Consequently, it is proposed to capitalise £142,363 of the reserve, and distribute one Ord. share free for each five held. As the existing shares are quoted at about 4 3/16, a substantial bonus is involved. The net profits for the year ended March 31 last, amounted to £124,087, showing an increase of fully £21,000. The appropriation to reserve is raised from £1,000 to £30,000, and the previous dividend of 15 per cent. is repeated—a rate that has been paid for many years past.

CORK

First National Loan steady at 100⅝, Second Loan eased to 116¼, Fourth Loan unchanged at 97, Land Bonds repeated 109⅝, Munster and Leinsters again better at 100s., Nationals quoted 48s. 1½d., Great Southern Guaranteed brought 70¼, Great Southern Deb. sellers 80, Beamish Debs. dealt in 38, Cannock and Co. Ord. buyers at 30s., Coats Ord. done 60s. 7½d., Cork Corporation (1933) Stock again done 99, Cork Gas buyers 7¼, sellers 7¾; Dunlop Rubber Ord. eased to 43s., Guinness Ord. lower 146s. 9d., Harbour Board Irredeemable dealt in 75, Irish Dunlop Pref. steady at 22s.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

IRISH BANKING RESULTS

MUNSTER AND LEINSTER BANK

The directors of the Munster and Leinster Bank, Ltd., announce a dividend for the half-year ended 30th June, 1935, at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, free of tax, the placing of £12,500 to contingencies account and £5,000 to staff pension fund, the application of £5,000 in reduction of bank premises account, and the carrying forward of £43,494. (The dividend for the corresponding half-year was the same, with £12,500 to contingencies, £5,000 to staff pension fund, and £5,000 to premises, with £42,703 forward.)

PROVINCIAL BANK OF IRELAND

The directors yesterday declared a dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, less income tax, for the half-year ended 30th ultimo, this being at the same rate as for the previous half-year.

ROYAL BANK OF IRELAND

At the meeting of the board yesterday an interim dividend at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, less income tax, for the half-year ended 30th June last was declared (same as last year). The dividend will be payable on and after the 1st August next. The books for the transfer of shares will be closed from the 15th to the 29th inst., both dates inclusive.

MIDLAND BANK

The directors of the Midland Bank, Ltd., yesterday announced an interim dividend for the half-year ended, June 30 at the rate of 16 per cent. per annum, less income tax, payable on July 15. (The same rate of dividend was declared a year ago.)

LLOYD'S BANK

Interim dividend for half year ended 30th June last, payable (less tax) on and after 27th July, of 1s. 2 2-5d. on each "A" share, being at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, and of 6d. on each "B" share, being at the maximum rate of 5 per cent. per annum. (Both unchanged.)

NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK

Interim dividend at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum. (Same.)

WILLIAMS DEACONS BANK

Interim dividend for half year ended 30th June at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum (less tax) on both the "A" and "B" shares. (Same.)

COMMERCIAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA.

The directors announce a final dividend of 3⅓ per cent., making the total distribution for the year ended June 30 last 5 5-6 per cent. This payment compares with 5 per cent. for the year ended June 30, 1930. The dividend will be payable in Australian currency.

BANCO DE CHILE.

The London agency is advised that the profit for the half year ended June 29 last amounts to 8,300,407 pesos, and that a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. for the half-year will probably be declared.

A. F. Stoddard.—The directors of A. F. Stoddard and Co., Ltd. (manufacturers of carpets, etc., Elderslie), in their report for the year ended May 31, 1935, state that net profit, after making provision for depreciation, bad debts, employés' provident fund and income tax, amounted to £32,172, making, with the balance brought forward, £6,425, a total of £38,597. Dividend on Preference shares absorbed £7,500, and interim on Ordinary shares at 2½ per cent., actual, £5,000. The directors recommend placing to general reserve fund the sum of £7,500, and paying a final dividend on the Ordinary shares at the rate of 6 per cent., actual, for the six months ended May 31, 1935, making 8½ per cent. for the year, absorbing £12,000, leaving to be carried forward £6,597. It is proposed to convert the share capital of the company into Preference and Ordinary stock, transferable in multiples of £1. In the previous year net profit amounted to £27,077, and 5 per cent., less tax, was paid on the Ordinary shares.

Aldford House (Park Lane).—Interim dividend on the Ordinary shares of 3 per cent. actual, less tax (maiden dividend).

Bertam Consolidated Rubber.—Dividend of 11 per cent., less tax, for past year (7 per cent. in 1933-4).

Beira Works.—During the year to March 31 last, net revenue, including transfer fees, totalled £261,590, as against £208,359 in the preceding year. General expenses absorbed £37,908, against £33,742, fees £2,400, Debenture charges £92,227, interest £38,909, against £39,669, and £2,678 was again written off Debenture discount. After providing £37,968, against £37,705 for depreciation, and meeting other expenses, there was a profit of £49,293, in contrast with a loss of £24,593, and this profit is to be carried forward. No dividends have yet been paid. In January last the capital was reduced by writing 5/6 off each £1 share, and the £165,000 thus obtained was applied in writing off the debit of £141,120 at profit and loss, and preliminary expenses were reduced by £23,880.

Associated Breweries.—Final dividend of 4½ per cent., making 7½ per cent. for year (against 4½ per cent.)

Gossard.—Interim dividend at rate of 10 per cent. per annum (maiden dividend).

Deamoolie Tea.—A dividend of 7½ per cent. is recommended for 1934, as against 20 per cent. for the preceding year.

Ismay Industries.—Special interim dividend of 4 per cent. actual on the Ordinary shares, principally to recompense the Ordinary shareholders of John Ismay and Sons, Ltd., who have converted their shares.

Michael Nairn and Greenwich.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent. (same).

Port Dickson-Lukut Rubber.—The accounts of Port Dickson-Lukut (F.M.S.) Rubber Estates, Ltd., for the year ended March 31 last show that crop of 1,386,924 lb. yielded £36,594, which compares with £22,279 for 1933-34, when the crop was 1,497,403 lb. Sundry revenue, interest, and transfer fees brought in £2,499, compared with £2,136, making a total of £39,093, as against £26,624 last year, when there was a profit on investments of £2,209. Estate expenditure absorbed £23,682, compared with £17,780, and, after allowing £1,782, against £1,652, for general expenses and directors' fees, there remained a net profit of £13,628, as against £7,192. With £26,208 brought in, there became available £39,836. The dividend for the year is to be raised from 4 1-6 per cent. to 5 per cent., leaving, subject to staff commissions £27,513 to be carried forward. The standard assessment for 1935 has been provisionally fixed at 1,885,647 lb. It is proposed to convert the shares into stock, and to alter the Articles of Association so as to permit of the stock being transferable in sums of 2s.

Rupal Tea.—The dividend for 1934 is to be 7½ per cent., which compares with 15 per cent. for 1933.

S. C. Larkin.—Interim dividend of 3½ per cent. (same).

Scottish American Mortgage.—The directors, after transferring to revenue account the sum of £924 from surplus revenue account, have decided to recommend a dividend of 4 per cent., less income tax, on the Ord. shares for the year to May 31st, 1935. In 1934, a like payment was made on the shares.

W. and T. Avery.—Accounts for year to March 31 show that trading profits increased from £133,065 to £155,687, while the net figure advanced from £102,925 to £124,087. Final ordinary dividend of 10 per cent., making 15 per cent. for the year (same).

CONTROLLING OFFICERS

ARBITRATION SCHEME REJECTED

At a meeting of the newly-elected executive of the Post Office Controlling Officers held last night in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, the Civil Service arbitration proposals put forward by the Ministry of Finance were discussed. It was unanimously decided to reject them, as it was considered that they were entirely inadequate.

Other matters discussed were organisation, telephone traffic, officers' salaries claim and a recent promotion in the Dublin postal district. Dissatisfaction was expressed at the delay in dealing with the salaries claim mentioned, and with the promotion referred to, and the meeting decided upon a course of action.

GOLD PROFITS

Luipaard's Vlei Estate and Gold.—During June 44,500 tons were crushed, yielding 9,576 fine ounces, of an estimated value of £67,516; total profit (including sundry revenue), £21,744.

IRISH SPORTSMEN ABROAD.

Keep your relatives or friends living abroad in touch with Irish sporting affairs by subscribing for them to "THE IRISH FIELD," which will be sent to any address on the following terms:—Year 13/, half-year 6/6, quarter 3/3 (post free). Head Office, 11 D'Olier street, Dublin.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

ADVANCES TOUCH TWO DOLLARS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Opinions on the Stock Exchange to-day regarding the legislative developments were of a mixed nature. Despite the decided set-back in wheat and cotton, however, operators distinctly favoured the buying side, and gains touching two dollars were recorded following a turnover of 880,000 shares.

The gains were mostly of a fractional character, but numerous well-known stocks rose 1 to 2 points. Steel shares were very much to the fore, on expectations of a substantial expansion in the activity of mills shortly; Motors responded to the belief that the industry will give an excellent account of itself in the coming months, while Utilities were bought despite the uncertainties attached to the Holding Company Bill.

The market closed firm.

Call money remained at ¼ per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ¼ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered.

Sterling exchange opened ⅞ up at 4.94½, and improved during the morning to 4.94⅝. The rate remained at this level in the afternoon, and finally closed ⅜ higher compared with the previous close at 4.94⅞.

Silver was ⅜ lower at 69.

DR. BELL ENTERTAINED

Dr. James Bell, the new Fellow of Trinity College, was entertained to dinner on Thursday at the Gresham Hotel by his friends in Adelaide Road Presbyterian Church and in the Dublin Presbytery.

The Very Rev. Dr. R. K. Hanna presided, and the Blessing was asked by the Very Rev. Dr. J. L. Morrow.

The toast of "Our Country" was responded to by the Hon. Mr. Justice Hanna, and "Our Church" by the Right Rev. Dr. A. F. Moody, the Moderator of the General Assembly.

The toast of "Our Guest" was proposed by Dr. T. H. Milroy, Professor of Physiology in Queen's University, Belfast, who spoke in appreciative terms of Dr. Bell's standing in the Church, in the universities and in the community.

Dr. Bell, in his reply, thanked the members of Adelaide Road Church, and his friends in the Dublin Presbytery, for this mark of their kindness and appreciation. He was pleased that so many students from the North continued to come to Trinity, as the University was one of the healing and unifying influences at work in the country.

The toast of "Our Universities" was responded to by Professor R. A. S. Macalister, Litt.D., and that of "Our Visitors" by Mr. David Barry, O.B.E., and the Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D. A programme of music was supplied by Mr. Chris. Butler and Mr. Robert Shepherd, with Mr. G. Boucher at the piano.

DIOCESAN BOYS' SCHOOL

On the results of an examination held on 20th June, the Committee of Management of the Diocesan Boys' School, Dublin, awarded free scholarships to R. W. Lyons, William Hodgins, and D. Jack, and assisted scholarships were offered to C. Hughes, P. Smyth, A. G. Beckett, A. Parsons, L. James, and Vivian James.

BRITISH INSULATED CABLES BIG DEAL

The advancement of British electrical interests by the establishment of a group covering the whole manufacturing field of cables and equipment power, control, telephone apparatus, etc., is conveyed in an announcement made yesterday that British Insulated Cables had acquired "from American interests" the "A" Deferred shares of International Automatic Telephone Company of London. The American company concerned is the Associated Telephone and Telegraph Company. The deal embraces association with Telephone and General Trust, which ensures reception of the wide financial support necessary for the groups' activities.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—The prospects of Canada coming into the international market, with their surplus wheat supplies at competitive prices, had already been discounted by Thursday's "slump" here, and forward deliveries showed a sharp advance under a material reaction at the commencement of operations. Prices, however, quickly lost a great part of the improvement, owing to private reports of rain in Western Australia, then again moved upwards, fluctuated frequently, though afternoon cables were discouraging and caused prices to recede to worst point, marking only a partial moderate gain on the day at the finish. C.i.f. parcels Rosario Santa Fe 63½lb. August and September sold at 22/4½ per quarter. C.i.f. parcels River Plate—MAIZE—June and July sold at 15/- per quarter. Wheat on the spot quietly steady. DUBLIN POTATO.—No market on Friday.

DUBLIN POULTRY.—Market heavily supplied with all classes, especially dead, many parcels of which arrived in green condition owing to failure of senders to have gut drawn. Sales opened to a fair attendance of buyers, who bid fairly well for best handled lots; but prices generally showed a weaker trend and a clearance difficult to effect at:—Chickens 9d. to 11d. per lb., fatted ducks around 9d.; fat hens, large 1/6 to 2/- each, others 1/-; large rabbits 4d. to 6d., and smalls 2d. to 3d. each.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG.—Creams continue to offer freely, with buyers still in a cautious mood at fixed prices. Farmers' parcels under average, and readily placed at 10d. to 1/1 per lb., and choice creams 145/- to 147/- per cwt. Egg supplies not excessive, but ample for all requirements, there being little continental or cross Channel inquiries at present. Local sales continue fairly steady for the cheaper grades around previous values. Ducks in short supply, but neglected, most arrivals being cleared to best advantage. Extra heavy grades 9/6 to 10/- case lots, ordinary and ungraded 8/6 to 9/-, medium 7/- to 7/6, trade smalls, etc., 5/6 to 6/6, and ducks 5/- to 6/6 per 120.

DUBLIN FISH.—Moderate supplies included 73 packages salmon, 12 chests lobsters, 60 boxes herrings, 30 boxes mackerel, and a fair amount from country and local senders. Demand equal to an early clearance at:—Salmon 10d. to 1/1 per lb., grilse 8d. to 9d.; lobsters 15/- to 17/- per 13 large, medium 10/- to 12/-, smalls 6/- to 8/-; soles 20/- to 25/- per 9 pairs, large, medium 10/- to 15/-; slips 3/- to 5/-, turbot 1/- to 6/- each, brill 6d. to 2/6; herrings 15/- to 25/- box, mackerel 20/- to 30/-, plaice 20/- to 30/- half-box, and ray 10/- to 20/-.

OILCAKES—Linseed cakes—The recent sharp decline in cereals is causing a depressing effect on all other feeding-stuffs, and notwithstanding that values have reached an abnormally low level there is almost a cessation of business, for the reason that most of the buyers are already committed not only as regards spot and near positions, but also for shipments ahead till the end of December, while the future holds out little prospects of any material improvement. London made remain quietly steady at last week's price of £7 10/- to £7 15/-, with fine quality Bombay slabs offering at £6 10/- to £6 12/6, ex steamer, and 10 per cent. screwpressed Calcuttas at £6 10/- for July-August shipment and £6 15/- for autumn. Cotton cakes—The market generally may be quoted the turn dearer in all positions, with Egyptians in bags firmly held at £3 11/3, ex ship terms, duty paid, for afloat parcels, and £3 17/6 for forward shipments, while landed lots remain relatively cheap at £3 18/9 to £4. English makes have been advanced 5/- per ton to £4 10/-. Groundnut cakes—Best brands of 54 per cent. light coloured Bombay expellers are obtainable on slightly better terms, the spot price being £6 5/- and forward at £5 18/9, ex ship, for the early months, and £6 to £6 1/3 for monthly shipments to the end of the year. OFFALS—Stocks of both English and foreign are comparatively small, and quotations are firmly held up, with English weatings offering at £6 2/6 to £6 5/-, and broad bran at £5 5/- and ordinary at £4 15/-. Italian middlings are attractively mentioned at £5 15/- in warehouse, and Turkish at £5 10/-, with Plate pollard available at £4 17/6 and Plate bran at £4 15/-. MAIZE FOODS—Garton's maize gluten feed is without alteration at £5 10/-, with sellers of flake maize at £5 7/6, maize germ cake at £5 7/6, and fine quality white South African maize germ meal at £5 per ton, ex store.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN LEGION'S VISIT TO FLANDERS

A party of about 150 members of the Free State branch of the British Legion left on the Lady Leinster, en route for a tour of the Flanders battlefields last night.

The men, accompanied by Major-General Sir W. B. Hickie, K.C.B., and Mr. A. P. Connolly, will arrive at Ostend to-morrow. A ceremony will be held at the War Memorial, and the party will be joined by local representatives of other ex-Service men's organisations. British Legion standards and flags of the inter-Allied ex-Service societies will be carried and War decorations will be worn.

At night a banquet will be held in the Hotel Regina et Provdence, to which representatives of the Army, the Churches, the Belgian Marine and the British Consular Service have been invited.

The tour will consist of visits to the battlefields, a half-day trip along the Belgian coast, visiting the famous Zeebrugge Mole, and a day at the Brussels Exhibition.

Dearer Bread.—The price of bread in Cork will be increased by one penny per 4lb. loaf from Monday.

LATE SITTING DECISION

PROTESTS IN THE DAIL

CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

When the Dail met yesterday morning, Mr. S. LEMASS, Minister for Industry and Commerce, moved that the House sit later than 2 p.m. and not later than midnight.

Mr. W. COSGRAVE (U.I.P., Cork) said that he protested against the motion. The House should be given a reason for the late sitting. Since the Government came into office the legislation passed by it had been a disgrace to modern Parliaments. Everything was done in haste.

Dr. RYAN, Minister for Agriculture, said that the Finance Bill must be law before August 5, and the Conditions of Employment Bill must be passed during the session. It was obviously urgent thta the Widows' and Orphans' Pensions Bill should be passed as soon as possible, and all the other business on the Order paper also was important. The Committee stage of the Finance Bill must be finished that day.

Mr. LEMASS moved that the "question be now put."

The SPEAKER put the closure motion, which, on a division, was carried by 55 votes to 24.

The motion that the House sit not later than 12 midnight was then put, and on a division was carried by 55 votes to 26.

BATCH OF AMENDMENTS

The House then resumed the debate on the Conditions of Employment Bill in Committee.

Mr. DOCKRELL (U.I.P., Co. Dublin) moved an amendment to secure that on the joint representations of the workers and employers it would be possible to shorten the lunch interval to half-an-hour in cases where the retention of the hour would prevent the operation of the nine-hour day. He instanced the case of builders during the month of December. The men would not want to sit an hour over their dinner, and the early approach of darkness would shorten the working day so much as to make the forty hours' week difficult to carry out.

Mr. LEMASS said that he proposed to consider generally whether an amendment could be made on that section or on Section 22. He agreed with what the deputy had said on the matter.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Mr. NORTON (Labour, Kildare) moved an amendment, which was withdrawn, to the effect that where a worker is called upon to work overtime he should be paid for the half-hours interval before the overtime begins.

Mr. NORTON moved an amendment that where Sunday work is permissible in a six-day working week, special rates of pay should be provided for work done on Sunday.

Mr. LEMASS suggested that any such provision should be brought about by agreement. In another section such agreements could be made obligatory on the whole of the particular industry.

The amendment was defeated by 52 votes to 27.

PUBLIC HOLIDAYS

Mr. NORTON proposed an amendment that in the case where a man works on a public holiday, he should be given 24 hours' rest in respect of that holiday, as was provided in the bill in the case of Sunday. He said that in not providing for that rest the Minister was close to the Russian experiment of abolishing the normal working week.

Mr. LEMASS said that the section provided that a worker would get 24 hours' rest in respect of Sunday. In the bill they were providing for minimum standards. In some cases workers who were on duty on public holidays got double pay and sometimes treble pay. Was it suggested that they were to get 24 hours' rest also?

The amendment was negatived.

Mr. NORTON moved an amendment to secure that workers should get paid for public holidays.

Mr. LEMASS said that there was no statutory obligation under the bill to pay workers in respect of public holidays.

The amendment was, by leave, withdrawn, the Minister agreeing to consider the points raised.

The MINISTER said that he proposed to introduce an amendment providing that workers who only worked three or four hours on the Sunday would not have to be laid off until the next day.

Mr. R. S. ANTHONY (Ind., Cork City) moved an amendment to the section providing for the registration of trade agreements; that the negotiating body of workers in the section should be a trade union body, and that the definition of trade unnn should be a body affiliated to or recognised by the Irish Trades Union Congress.

Mr. LEMASS said that he was prepared to consider an amendment providing that no agreement should be registered unless both parties so requested. This would ensure that each party would be properly represented. From the trade union point of view, the present amendment was not desirable. He was also prepared to give the right of appeal to the Courts regarding agreements on the ground that the parties to the agreement were not properly represented. He intended to introduce an amendment on Sub-section 4 in order to make it clear that trade unions would not be restricted from taking action because of a wages agreement being registered.

TRADES UNIONS

Mr. NORTON moved the deletion of Subsections 3 and 4, because there was a suspicion that it was desired to restrict trades union action. A committee of workers and employers should be set up to consider agreements. The Minister should introduce an amendment on which there would be substantial agreement with the trades unions.

The amendment was withdrawn, the Minister saying that he would undertake to look into the point.

Replying to a question by Mr. DOCKRELL, Mr. LEMASS said that the Department of Industry and Commerce would have no power to make, or enforce, agreements between workers and their employers.

The Committee stage of the Bill (Conditions of Employment) was concluded, and the Report stage fixed for July 17th, the Minister promising to have the amendments in the hands of deputies for some time before then.

CRICKET

SOUTH AFRICANS WIN

Fine Performance by Verity at Colchester

Somerset threw out a serious challenge to the South Africans at Bath, but the task of getting 240 to win proved beyond them, and they were beaten by 51 runs. F. Lee, Hawkins, Longrigg and Andrews did best of the home batsmen. Mitchell took five wickets for nine runs apiece—figures that were quite good, considering dropped catches.

Bowes and Verity proved much too good for the timid Essex batsmen at Colchester. Essex in both innings, cut a very sorry figure, and were hopelessly outclassed.

Bowes, again bowling only medium pace, claimed three wickets for 19 runs, thus making his record for the match 10 for 77. Verity had five wickets for 17 runs—a splendid performance.

ANDREW J. KEOGH'S SALES

FAVOURABLY KNOWN AND VALUABLE LICENSED PREMISES,

51 SOUTH GREAT GEORGE'S STREET.

FOR SALE BY PUBLIC AUCTION, at 10 LOWER ORMOND QUAY,

NEXT FRIDAY, 12th JULY, at Two o'clock.

(Per instructions of Mr. William Fitzpatrick, who is retiring after a successful trading, extending over a period of 40 years.)

The above important property is held for ever, subject to the moderate annual rent of £47 16s. 0d. It is situate in one of the leading streets of the Metropolis, where business premises command most substantial rents. It is the only licensed premises but one on the west side of the thoroughfare, extending from Dame street to Redmond's Hill. The widening of South Great George's street will result in the elimination of one or more retail licences in the immediate vicinity.

The premises, which are soundly built and exceptionally well appointed, comprise splendid residential and business accommodation.

The business portion consists of modern and spacious spirit bar with select lounge and auxiliary hall bar; the two latter departments having separate lavatory accommodation from the main bar on ground floor level; three compartment cellarage (h. and c. water supply), fitted with goods lift, also spirit and wine stores convenient to bars.

The residence attached consists of drawingroom and diningroom with folding doors (marble mantelpieces), six bedrooms, kitchen, bathroom with wash-hand basin (h. and c. supply), copper cylinder and copper circulating pipes.

The property is in good decorative order.

Particulars of trading from Auctioneer. An inspection of the premises and a perusal of the trading returns will be convincing proof of the value of this attractive lot.

May be inspected daily from 12 to 2 o'clock on Auctioneer's order.

Conditions of Sale from JAMES G. O'CONNOR, LL.B., Solicitor, 9 Clare street.

AUCTION—Tuesday, 16th July, at 1.30, in Salerooms, 188 Pearse St.

CO. DUBLIN FULL 7-DAY LICENSED PREMISES,

"O'REILLY'S," STEPASIDE, About 7½ miles from G.P.O.

Together with large garden, paddock, and 2 Cottages (in One Lot), by instructions of the Owner, Mrs. Smyth, who is retiring from business. (The property is in the ownership of Vendor's family for, it is believed, about 200 years.)

A lease will be granted for a term of 99 years at £30 per annum.

Description—The licensed premises consists of a spacious, suitably appointed shop, bar parlour, and 7 domestic apartments; also yard, haggard, garden and paddock, garage, cow-house, stabling, piggery, and poultry house. The two cottages are let at a total weekly rental of 3/-, which rental would reduce the head rent to £22 4s. 0d. yearly (say 8/6 weekly). There is a plentiful water supply.
